Paul King Honored To York Holstein Hall Of Fame

WINTERSTOWN (York Co.) — York County Holstein breeders have honored Paul King by inducting him into the association's Hall of Fame.

King's addition to the York County Holstein Hall of Fame capped the group's annual meeting, held last week at the Winterstown Fire Hall. Awarding of the honor followed a slide program presentation by Paul and Kathy King on mission work they took part in earlier this year.

Born in Damascus, Maryland, Paul grew up on the Lesley King and Sons Kingstead Farms. He and Kathy moved their family and herd to the Delta area of York County in 1968, after dairying on their own in Maryland for seven years.

The Kingway herd was well-known on the local and state show circuit, winning numerous local championships and honors at York shows, and several premier breeder awards at Pennsylvania Farm Show. Kingway also exhibited at the Pennsylvania All-

Year-End DHIA Production Records Released

Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—Richlawn Sarah Transformer Stella, Ex 91, was reported the highest producer of milk in a lactation in Pennsylvania for the 1991 year ending in September. Owned by Smysers Richlawn Farms in York County, Stella was milked two times per day and had a high of 192 lbs. of milk per day. When her 7y11m laction was completed, she had the state record of 41,195m 1155f 1189p.

The year-end lactation reports were released this week from the State DHIA office.

Robert and Rodney Smyther run the Richlawn farm. They lead feed the dry cows 7 to 10 days before calving and challenge feed their cows in early lactation to obtain as high a peak production as possible. Corn silage and haylage are used as roughages. But Robert said it takes all the good management practices together to get a cow to produce at this high level.

The only other two cows over 40,000lbs. of milk were also in the Richlawn herd. Doreen had 40,3931bs. and Fond had 40,026lbs.

A Berks County Holstein had the top protein and fat records in the state. Three-year-old Plushanski Mark Fife ET produced 37,210m 3.5% 1303p 4.5% 1688f for Plushanski Farms at Kutztown in Berks County. A Chief Mark daughter, Fife, VG87, is at Select Embroes in Ohio for flushing. Fife is also No. 5 on the national CTPI list. Four brothers, Clyde, Charles, REEDSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — People like quotes. And everyone has a favorite saying. So when David Schaffer, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, presented his half of "A View of Conservation Activities in Mifflin County" at the joint agricultural banquet held at the Camelot Country Restaurant in Reedsville, he couldn't help sharing some of his favorites.

All could relate to Franklin D. Roosevelt's quotes "The nation that destroy's its soil, destroys itself" and "The history of every nation is written in the way it cares for its soil."

The purpose of the banquet was to have Schaffer, along with Harriet Rishel, district manager for the Mifflin County Conservation District, explain the services and duties of the different organizations.

Through slides, those attending the banquet saw, over the years, accomplishments by these associations in conserving Mifflin County's invaluable soil. Schaffer's slides demonstrated before and after effects of soil conserva-

Oct. 23, 1991

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was mostly steady. Demand was generally moderate, and covered the full range. Scattered features continued to enhance movement. Supplies were adequate, and occasionally barely adequate on mediums in the East, adequate in the Midwest, and adequate to ample on the West Coast. Most breakers restricted shell egg receipts to regular sources, and finished product sales remained sluggish. Live hen markets were fully steady to firm, and offerings were limited and short of the mostly good demand.

Pennfield Profile

Third Generation on Huntingdon County Dairy Farm

The Yoder farm has been in the family since 1944, when it was bought by Elmer Yoder. Willard Yoder Sr., his son, grew up on the farm then rented it for two years before buying it from his father in 1959. Willard Sr. still owns the land, but Willard Jr. and his wife, Betsy, own the cows.

The third generation of Yoders take care of things in the barn, but Willard Sr. continues to be in charge of the field work.

Over the years there have been a lot of changes on the farm. Tie stalls were replaced by a freestall barn in 1965. For many years thereafter, cows were fed all their grain in the double-six milking parlor, but that changed when Willard Jr. and Betsy installed their computerized feeding system.

Now cows get their daily ration of grain from feeding stations in the barnyard.

The family's division of ownership and labor is working out well for all concerned. The latest generation of Yoders gets to spend a lot of time with the cows, while Willard Sr. focuses on producing quality forages for the herd.

A new 25'x90' silo has just been installed on the farm. Willard Jr. said they expect to fill it with haylage from their 175 acres of alfalfa. They also bale some hay.

A second silo will be filled with corn silage - they harvest 300 acres of corn - and a third structure with high moisture shelled corn.

In all, there are three silos on the farm. When they are all up and running, Willard Jr. plans to produce a TMR (total mixed ration) to be fed in the barn.

With the feed balanced by one of Pennfield's PFR (Precision Formulated Ration) concentrates, he expects to see a significant production increase.

Computer Helps Herd of Heifers Hold Its Own

Willard Jr. and Betsy Yoder have 150 cows milking on their farm near Huntingdon, and 52 of them are first calf heifers. That's better than a third of the herd. And whether you call her a first calf heifer or a first lactation cow, one thing's for sure - she's not as productive as she's going to be farther into her working life.

The young herd is the result of a change in ownership in 1989, when the Yoders bought 60 cows from Willard Sr. who, at the time, had about 200 cows on the farm. The rest of the animals were dispersed. The 60 they bought, plus 25 they already owned, gave Willard and Betsy a starting herd of 85.

The farm, however, with its 500 tillable acres, 100 acres of pasture, 90-stall freestall barn, double-six herringbone parlor, three Harvestores, full-time hired man and a well-stocked equipment shed is set up for a bigger-than-85-cow herd. So, even as they were getting into the business, the Yoders knew they wanted an eventual herd size of 150 cows.

They have, in fact, added 60 animals to the milking string, and they've done it almost entirely by growing their own replacements.

In February of 1990, three months after they took over the herd, the new operators installed a computerized feeding system that doles out grain and pellets to high producing cows according to their production. The grain is high moisture shelled corn. The pellets are a Precision Formulated Ration (PFR) from Pennfield. The Yoders' PFR is a 32% protein mix with flaked beans.

Every cow in the milking herd gets enough feed in the bunk to support 55 pounds of dairy production. If she goes over that, she gets extra feed from the computer system.

Each cow on the computer wears an electronic device called a transponder around her neck. When she pokes her head into one of the special feeding stations, the transponder sends out a signal to tell the computer which cow is ready to eat.

The computer knows how much extra feed that cow is entitled to, and, if she hasn't eaten her ration for the day, she gets what she's looking for.

"Our DHIA records show a small decline in production," said Willard Jr., "but that's to be expected, I think, if every third cow is in her first lactation."

"Ordinarily in that situation, you could probably look for an even bigger decline. The computer helped us keep production where it is by boosting our high producers even higher."

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

OCT. 28-NOV. 3, 1991

National Magic Day, Oct. 31.

Oct 28, 1636, the oldest American college, Harvard, is founded with a grant from the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, although it is not named after John Harvard until 1638 Oct 31, 1941, after 14 years of work, the Mount Rushmore National Memorial is completed Nov 1, 1913, the little-known Notre Dame football team lead by captain Knute Rockne, defeats Army at West Point, 35 to 13, using a brand new play, the forward pass

Wild oats make a bad autumn crop

Ask the Old Farmer: "She dressed up in her best bib and tucker" What's a tucker? B W, Conn

A loose bit of fabric, often white, which could be tucked into and over the collar of a dark-colored shirt or blouse, for men or women

Home Hints Stake the location of root crops that you plan to winter over in the ground

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: A northeaster is expected to finish off October November brings sunshine and warm weather The month's average of 50° F is 5° above normal

Greater New York-New Jersey: Rain continues as the week begins, but clearing and warming for little ghosts and goblins November begins sunny and warm

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Rainy weather starts the week but changes to sunny and warm to finish October November continues with sunny skies and warm temperatures

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Showers as the week begins, but turning clear and warm for trick-or treaters Continuing clear and very warm on the weekend

OPINION

Put More Wetness In Wetlands Definition

The Bush adminstration has proposed changes in the manuals to define wetlands laws that would be much more fair to farmers and landowners. At present, not only are the rules policed by four different agencies, their views on what constitutes wetlands also differ. New rules have been proposed to bring all the views together and to make the definition of wetlands more true to nature.

Basically, the changes would put more "wetness" into the wetlands definition with 21 consecutive days of surface saturation and 15 days of standing water for ground to be classified as a wetland. The 1989 manual requires only seven days of surface saturation.

We believe these changes should be made. In addition, the definition of "growing season" is too broad. It is defined as three weeks before the last frost in spring until three weeks after the first frost in the fall. The historical average of frost-free days in each county is more appropriate.

The revised manual should only use plants that prefer wet soils as indicators of wetlands. Plants that are neutral or that prefer dry soil should not be used. All three indicators — surface saturation, hydric soils and wetland plants — should be required for a wetlands classification.

And finally, the burden should be on the federal government to prove that a wetlands exists, not on the landowner to prove that it doesn't.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Realize That Water Could Become Scarce

The recent drought coupled with the proposed Susquehanna River Basin Fee schedule has caused several agricultural leaders to become concerned about adequate water supplies for agriculture.

The past seven years have seen a rapid growth in irrigation, animal agriculture, and urban housing development in Lancaster and surrounding counties. These three areas are competing with limited water resources.

Based on historical records, the drought of 1991 was not as severe as the drought of 1966 or the dry years of the early 1930s. Agricultural economists who incorporate weather data into their economic forecasts have identified a 18- to 20-year weather cycle. If this theory is correct, we are currently in the middle of a 1988 to 1993 dry period.

This dry period could draw increased public attention to water use and water rights. If we are to have orderly growth and be able to meet the water needs of the area, water needs to be planned into all agricultural expansion and urban development.

Smart managers will begin to study water rights, determine their water needs, make plans for alternative supplies during dry weather, and develop management plans for maximum water effectiveness.

The days of unlimited water supplies are numbered. Start studying water issues now, so the agricultural community will be able to make good decisions on water use in the future.

To Understand Harvest Method Determines Nutrient Requirement

The method used to harvest a crop governs fertilization planning and application rates for phosphorus and potassium.

If a crop is to be harvested for grain only, then crop nutrient removal will be much different from that the same crop harvested for silage or hay.

A 120-bushel per acre yield of corn would remove about 53 pounds of phosphate and 36 pounds of potash. But if that corn crop were harvested as silage, a yield of 20 tons per acre would remove 72 pounds of phosphate and 166 pounds of potash.

Double cropping and planting and harvesting a cover crop will also increase phosphate and potash removal. When developing your nutrient management plans, remember to consider types of crops to be grown, number of crops, the crops needs, soil test results, and method of crop harvest.

To Study Animal Housing Ventilation

We are now in fall's constantly changing weather patterns — cold nights, cool mornings, warm afternoons, and cool evenings.

This daily fluctuation of temperature is every animal producer's nightmare. To have adequate ventilation requires inlets to be adjusted frequently.

Adjustments need to be made to adjust inlet openings to match the number of fans that are running. Static pressure needs to be raised to around 0.10 inch to insure proper air movement and distribution.

Spend extra time in your barns and poultry houses monitoring air quality and making the necessary adjustments to your ventilation system.

Farm Forum

What a waste of money! Even now, as you read this letter, Dairy Farmers' money is being wasted on what is termed a Dairy Promotion. Presently the administration of the promotion program is at fault. In a report sent to Congress, published by the U.S.D.A., it was stated that 8.5 billion pounds of extra milk was sold, over a six year period, because of advertising. An advertising cost that was paid for by the collection of 219 million dollars collected from dairymen. A collection through the CheckOff Program during the last fiscal year.

Now assuming that each of the proceeding six years were anywhere close to the 219 million dollars collected each year, we have the numbers to calculate the efficiency and effectiveness of the Promotion Program for the past six years.

219 million dollars taken each year for six years would come out to be 1.314 billion dollars collected. Now taking this 1.314 bil-

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

CAUTION: SPIRIT AT WORK!

Background Scripture: Acts 18:1 through 19:20.

Devotional Readiug: Ephesians 6:10-20.

The message that Jesus came preaching and teaching was: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matthew 4:17). After Jesus' death and resurrection, however, the writer of Acts added another dimension to this message. Thus, when Apollos, a very effective evangelist, came to Ephesus, Acts tells us: "He had been instructed in the way of the Lord; and being fervent in spirit, he spoke and taught accurately the things concerning Jesus, though he knew only the baptism of John" (18:25). Acts further tells us that Priscilla and Aquilla, friends of Paul, felt it necessary to take Apollos aside so that they "expounded to him the way of God more accurately" (18:26).

Later, Paul visits Ephesus and speaks with some whom Apollos had converted. When he asks if they received the Holy Spirit, they respond: "No, we have never even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." Finding that they had been baptized only in John's baptism, Paul says: "John baptized with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was to come after him, that is, Jesus." So, he baptizes them in the name of Jesus and "...when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they spoke with tongues and prophesied."

GOD IN US

This account is rather confusing, because it is the only place where we are given the impression that Paul emphasized a se- cond baptism for the receiving of the Holy Spirit. In fact, in I Corinthians 14 he skillfully plays down the importance of speaking in tongues: "...in church I would rather speak five words with my mind, in order to instruct others, than ten thousand words in a tongue" (14:19). Perhaps what was important to Paul was not speaking in tongues or any other charismatic manifestation, but the experience of the Holy Spirit itself, an experience that comes to different people in different ways and issues in different results. Repentance, preparing for the coming of the kingdom, had been the key concept in the preaching of Jesus. But now that Jesus had come and would return again, people needed not only to be cleansed of their sins but also empowered with the spirit of Christ.

I can see, then, why this distinction might have been made between the two baptisms. The one cleanses us so that we may be receptive to Jesus Christ. In it something, our sin, is taken away. In the other baptism, something is added to our lives: the presence of Christ. So, repentance is not enough; it is only the beginning of our life in Christ.

THE SPIRIT

This presence of Christ in our lives — known variously in the New Testament as the Spirit of God, the Spirit of Jesus and the Holy Spirit — is not just an idea. It is the power that issues from our faith in Christ. And it is a power never to be taken lightly. While in Ephesus, this power was responsible for many healing miracles: "And God did extraordinary miracles by the hands of Paul" (19:11).

Farm Credit Bankers Have Long Been Recognized For Achievements In The Field.

Farm Credit bankers possess their share of prestigious achievement awards. But more often than not, the awards they're most proud of are the ones they've earned in, say, conservation, dairy, or veterinary science.

Not many bankers can say that.

That's because most Farm Credit loan officers were born and raised on farms. They grew up active in 4-H and FFA. Many even got their college degrees from ag schools.

What's more, every one of our loan officers goes through the toughest ag lending training program in America.

And because our loan officers understand farming as well as financing, they're not only smarter. They're faster. In fact, they have the power of loan approval equal to most bank presidents'.

So stop by soon and talk with your nearby Farm Credit loan officer. Because whenever you need some extra help in your field, you'll want to work with the banker most accomplished in his.

You'll Get Consistent, Risk-Free Performance From New Funk's G® Brand Hybrids

4393 105 Days | 4472 110 Days | 4530 113 Days | 4624 118 Days

New Funk's G brand hybrids deliver consistent performance even under the stress of heat, drought, marginal soils or disease pressures. So you'll get virtually risk-free performance in good years — and in bad years.

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY research

You see, these hybrids are backed by nine years of CIBA-GEIGY Seed Division research. With local testing in growing conditions just like yours. That kind of research produces hybrids capable of standing up to anything mother nature has to offer. Hybrids that maximize your profit potential, while minimizing your risks.

Get complete performance

Plus, you get performance across the board. With big yields. But with 95% or better standability... 25% or less moisture... and intactness ratings under four. And you get all that in the maturity groups you need to spread your risks even more.

Limit your risks

Get risk-free performance on your farm today by calling Hoffman Seeds, Inc. You'll enjoy the peace of mind that comes from planting these new Funk's G brand hybrids.

PARADISE TOBACCO SALES

1st Sale
Wed., Dec. 4th!
Receiving Tobacco Mon. & Tues.

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

We have been informed from several tobacco folks in the South that the Burley crop has cured early, lots of help is available for stripping, and tobacco will also be available for market earlier. It is important that you know that your 609 tobacco gets blended with Burley; therefore, we feel you should put emphasis on early stripping this year, so you're ready when the market is!! Help is easy to find, so hire some - GET STRIPPED!!!

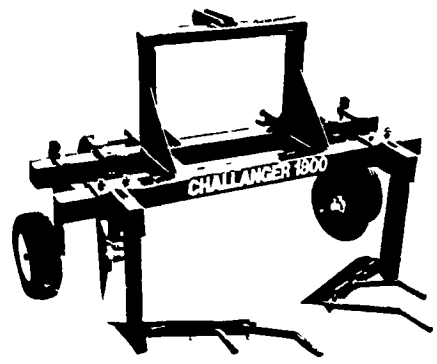
CHALLENGER MODEL 1800

PLASTIC MULCH LIFTER



After your vegetable crop is over the Challenger is designed to retrieve the plastic mulch to the surface of the ground.
Will lift plastics from 3 ft. to 5 ft. wide with fast and easy adjustments.
On lifting plows, the farmer has choice of "Rock shears" or "Deep-suck shears" by Case International.
Its heavy duty "C" springs on the disk coulters are designed to go over rocks and cut the toughest trash and vines which keeps from clogging. Has depth control wheels for constant depth control.
Heavy shanks have ¾ " safety shear bolts. Auto-reset is optional.
The best part of the Challenger is the price — it was designed with the small grower in mind— who doesn't want to invest a lot in removing his mulches.
This year hitch to a Challenger and let it do that dirty job!

RENAISSANCE

WE'VE GOT EVERYTHING WE NEED TO PUT YOUR REPLACEMENT HEIFERS IN THE MILK LINE AT 24 MONTHS.

- Bovatec (lasalocid)-fed replacement heifers reach breeding weight sooner, because of improved growth rate.
- Bovatec-fed replacement heifers are in the right condition for calving at less cost.
- Bovatec is the only Ionophore approved for coccidiosis control in cattle up to 800 lbs. body weight.
- The improved growth rate Bovatec offers also means more profit feeding dairy beef.
- There's no body weight restriction with Bovatec.
- Bovatec is palatable and safe.

Farm Estate Planning Book

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — If you own land or professionally advise landowners, how do you save income taxes, estate taxes and pass the family farm on to the children? Stephen Small is an attorney who specializes in answering these questions, and he recently spoke at a land preservation conference in Millersville. Sponsored by Lancaster Farmland Trust, a private farmland preservation organization, the conference attracted 107 attorneys, accountants, agricultural lenders and landowners from four states.

Speaker Stephen Small, author of Preserving Family Lands: A Landowner's Introduction to Tax Issues and Other Considerations gave the audience ideas about how to advise their clients (landowners) to save income taxes and pass the family land on to the next generation. His advice to save taxes included ideas on using conservation easements to preserve the land, for which income tax and estate tax benefits are available, using family limited partnerships instead of corporations to save taxes, life insurance, land swaps, and putting conservation easements in a person's will. For a free copy of his seminar in question and answer format, or a copy of his book Preserving Family Lands for $3.00, call Karen Weiss at Lancaster Farmland Trust, (717) 293-0707. Additional conference material and audio tapes are available.

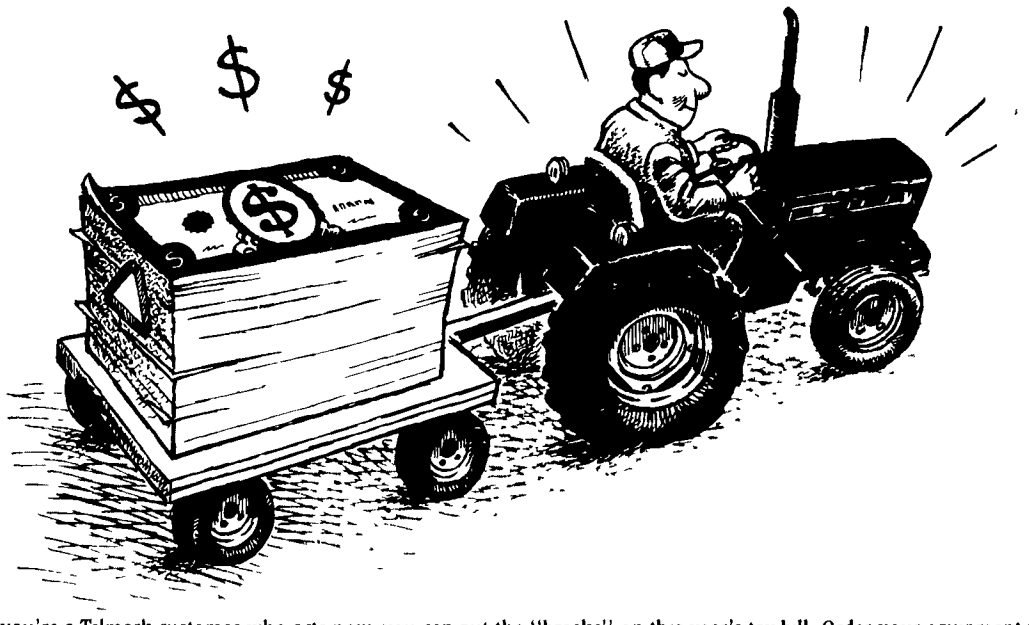
Some Guys Get All The Breaks



If you're a Telmark customer who acts now, you can put the "breaks" on this year's tax bill Order your equipment with a signed lease by December 31, and get 100 % tax-deductible payments this year Plus, with an annual payment schedule, you can benefit from a large tax write-off this year and not make a second payment for as many as 12 full months.

You'll have several more good reasons to look forward to a happy new year You can lock in your order now and take delivery in 1992 You'll enjoy fixed, competitive payments and can choose a payment schedule that allows you to skip payments in the months or season of lowest income You also can get whatever you want right now without jeopardizing your ability to fully depreciate other assets bought earlier in the year*

Find out how lease financing can help you get all the year-end breaks you deserve Contact your local Telmark representative today, or call 315-449-7964

DON'T OPERATE IN THE RED !

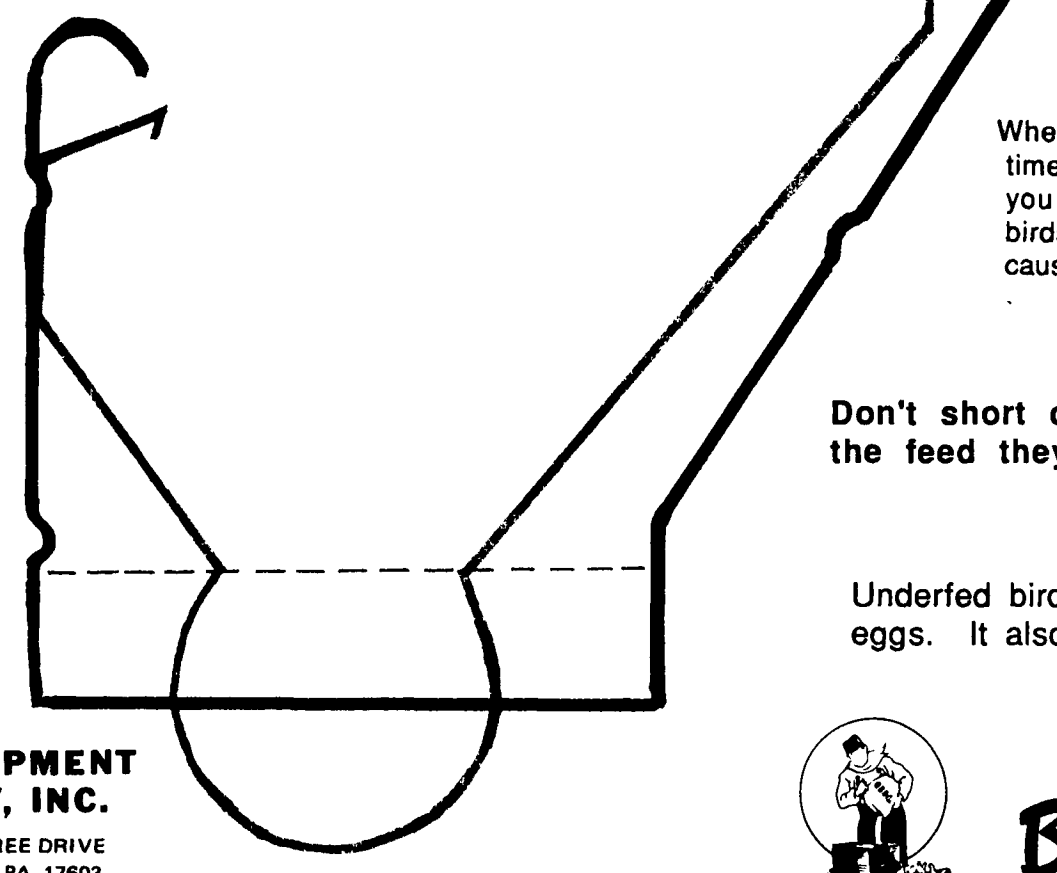
HELP YOUR FARM OPERATE IN THE BLACK !

The Big Dutchman Champion chain feed trough allows 3 1/4" wide feed area in front of the cage. The grind auger only 1 1/4". At 9 birds in a 24" cage, this means that Big Dutchman gives each bird 8 2/3 square inches of feed area, the drag auger only a mere 3 1/3.

The superior design of the Big Dutchman trough reduces spillage because of the extra high lip and curl.
The drag auger trough wastes feed.

The increased feed space in the Big Dutchman trough allows us to run the feeder as few as 3 times per day while the limited feed space of the auger trough forces the grower to run the feeders at least 8 times daily.

Big Dutchman has over 2 1/2 times more feed space per bird



When you increase the number of times the feeder has to be run, you also increase stress on the birds and movement in the cage causing excess damaged eggs.

Most local producers now realize the value of the chain feeder over the grind auger.

Don't short change your birds of the feed they need for Production !

Ag Students Net Scholarships

NEWARK, Del. — Rebecca A. O'Day, a first-year University of Delaware student, is the recipient of an $800 Southern States scholarship for the 1991-1992 academic year.

O'Day, a graduate of Seaford High School, was raised on a 1,250-acre grain and vegetable farm in Seaford, Del. She is majoring in agricultural business management in the university's College of Agricultural Sciences.

In addition to the first-year award, Southern States also funds three $600 scholarships for a sophomore, junior, and senior in the college.

Senior William A. O'Day Jr., brother of Rebecca, is a repeat recipient of the scholarship. He is majoring in general agriculture.

The sophomore and junior are also repeat recipients. Jared C. Adkins is in his second year of study as an agricultural engineering technology major. The Laurel, Del., native graduated from Delmar High School and has worked on two Delaware farms. Junior W. Roger Hudson Jr., from Seaford, plans a career in farm supplies or chemicals. A graduate of Seaford High School, Hudson is an agricultural business management major.

Horse Show Set

YORK (York Co.) — The horse industry of Pennsylvania is a very important industry in Pennsylvania and has not been surveyed for many years.

The Penn State University Animal Science Department, the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service, and the Penn Equine Council join forces to bring the Pennsylvania horse industry into focus for the 1990s.

A special economic impact study was sent out early this year to survey the number of horses, types, and uses in Pennsylvania. It will also study the economical value of tack shops, veterinarians, and feed and hay services to the horse industry.

The results of this study will aid the horse industry to secure research, influence policymakers, and gain overall support for the horse industry.

The economic impact study was sent to all known horse industry people, including 27,000 names. However, as of October, only 9,000 have been returned. It is very important that all people who have not returned their survey do so before October 31.

Surveys received after that date will not be tabulated. For more information on the survey, contact the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service at (717) 787-3904. All horse-related people should encourage their friends to return the study by October 31.

Year-End DHIA

Mike, and Cary run the farm. The cows are fed five times per day according to production with a TMR system. They are milked 2x, and over the years their breeding program has selected for high percent test as well as milk production.

The 80 or so registered and grade Holsteins owned by Milos and Sandy Sinan, of Home, Indiana County, have swept all top rolling herd production records.

The results show that the Sinan's 81.1 cow milking herd produced an average of 28,331 pounds of milk, 1,075 pounds of fat and 875 pounds of protein.

It is the second year in a row that the Sinans have been among the state's top DHIA producing herds. Last year, the Sinan's herd was first in the state for fat production, producing 1,009 pounds average.

The herd, which has remained the same size, increased production of milk by more than 9 percent, from 26,458 pounds. The previous year, the Sinans increased milk production by 5 percent.

Remarkably, both fat and protein production in the Sinan herd has also increased by more than 9 percent over the past year.

The operation, which is run by Milos, wife Sandy, two sons Mevlan and Milos Jr. and a hired man, is based on a 213-acre farm. Additional rental crop acreage fills that out to 400 acres.

The herd is milked three times during a 24-hours period, but that was started in 1987 when the herd was closing in on a 23,000-pounds of milk herd average, so the increase in production this past year can not be attributed to that.

Last year, with the jump in production to lead the state in milkfat production, Milos said that his key to success was feeding constantly and using sulfur and yeast additives in addition to high protein haylage and protein and mineral supplements.

Local county dairy extension agent, Eugene Schurman, who started working with the Sinans about six years ago, said he thinks the Sinans' success resulted from attention to detail and high quality feeds.

Schurman also said the small family farm is successful because, "They all get along really well."

The Sinans have been feeding alfalfa haylage, corn, oats, barley and wheat. The supplemental feeds are purchased.

Schurman, who takes no credit for the Sinans' success, said he first met the Sinans when they contacted him for information about dairy heifer housing.

Milos said he had been having problems with the development of heifers' legs which the new housing has apparently rectified.

Other changes occured over the past five years.

Two years ago, the Sinans remodeled a bank barn with 80 comfort stalls in three lines, put in gravity gutters, and a new pulsedrive, 2-inch pipeline system which Milos says has given him a low somatic cell count.

The rise to the top DHIA herd in the state came as no surprise to Schurman, he said.

"I kind of surmised that they would. All along the way they were progressing and improving," he said.

"Sandy is one of the keys to the operation there. I see a lot of farm wives who work hard, but she is so dedicated to the business, especially the cows themselves," Schurman said.

In addition to the milk production, the Sinans are also in the milk hauling business, with a couple of milk trucks the sons drive a route for Turner Dairy during the day and milk in the evening.

For a list of the top production herds and individual cows for all breeds in all three divisions, turn to Pages D8 to D12 in this issue.

Agway Schedules 27th Annual Meeting in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, NY — Several thousand Agway farmer-members and guests will gather for the 27th annual meeting of the cooperative, October 31 - November 1 in the Center of Progress Building at the New York State Fairgrounds in Syracuse, NY.

Ralph H. Heffner, chairman of the Agway Inc. Board of Directors, and William A. Hiller, president and chief executive officer, will address stockholders on Thursday, October 31, starting at 1:45 P.M. Six incumbent directors, who are standing for reelection to the 18-member board, will be introduced to the membership through a slide presentation describing their farm operations.

Seminars on profiting from Agway's new dairy feeding technology are scheduled at 10:45 AM and 12:15 PM, Thursday, October 31.

Fifty young farm couples from throughout the Northeast will be special guests of Agway for the two-day event. Their schedule includes a tour of the Agway Farm Research Center at Tully, NY.

The popular Agway farm show, also at the Fairgrounds, will be open from 9 AM to 6 PM Thursday and 8 AM until noon Friday. It will feature many exhibits and displays of products and services designed specifically for Northeast farmers.

"The Association," a well-known music group, and comedian Dick Hardwick will be featured at the Thursday evening entertainment at the Onondaga County War Memorial in downtown Syracuse.

Friday morning, November 1, members have an opportunity to question Agway officers and executives on a wide variety of topics during a free-wheeling open forum at 9 AM. A nationally prominent speaker has been invited to address the meeting at 10 AM.

Agway, with headquarters in Syracuse, is a farm supply, energy and food marketing cooperative owned by 91,000 farmer members in 12 northeastern states.

Manage Fall Residue To Save

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.— Using a chisel plow instead of a moldboard plow or heavy disk this fall is a good soil conservation measure. But if you don't outfit your chisel plow correctly, you could end up burying nearly as much residue as with a moldboard plow. You could also be setting yourself up for extra field work in the spring.

According to Deere & Co. agronomist Rich Johnson, chisel plows can leave low, moderate, or high amounts of surface residue, depending on how they are operated.

Most chisels have hydraulically-powered disk or coulter attachments in front of the shanks to chop residue. Both attachments will bury significant amounts of residue if operated deeply.

To chop the residue without burying it, Johnson recommends lifting the attachments out of the soil, or operating them as shallowly as possible.

"Chiseling corn stubble with low-crown to medium-crown sweeps will leave about 60 percent residue remaining because these tools do not invert the soil like shovels," Johnson said. "Lif-

Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association

DICK BARTH
General Manager
Pennsylvania DHIA

About the time you are reading this article, a report called the PaDHIA Herd Management Awards should arrive in the mail. It's new and different, as you can see from the example printed here, and something you should pay attention to.

Fine, you say, but what is it?

Early this year the association adopted a new member recognition system designed to encourage quality production and to give young dairymen the opportunity to compete for recognition across the state. Gone is the system of ribbons used to recognize fat and protein production levels. It has been replaced by a system that evaluates herd performance based on IMPROVEMENT over last year in three categories: production improvement, somatic cell improvement and reproductive management improvement.

The new system looks at each member's herd as of the end of the cow reporting year in September and assigns points to each of ten criteria. To get points, a herd must be enrolled on an official records program, have at least 10 complete cow years and 10 tests during the 1991 cow year. The total fixed points possible is 136 with additional points earned based on average peak milk production. You can compare your points to this total possible and decide for yourself how you did.

On the reverse side of your herd results are compared to the state and county averages for your breed. This is the first time the state asociation has provided this comparison and I hope you will find it useful.

The new system is designed to recognize the top three herds in each breed that has 20 or more official herds enrolled. These herds will be recognized at the PA DHIA annual meeting next March.

Please note two things. This system does not affect the individual cow lifetime certificate recognition program which will continue as in the past. Likewise, it does not affect county recognition programs which are free to operate as the local board or local unit committee determine appropriate.

Later this year you will receive another report called the Herd Profile Report that will show additional comparisons on other criteria. It is designed to be a worksheet for you to use in setting herd improvement goals for 1992 and should be used in conjunction with the Herd Management Award Report.

Please take time to read and absorb the information on both sides of your report. If you have questions after reviewing it, please call the Membership Development Department at 800-344-8378. If you have suggestions for improving the report or the program, please let us know that too.

In the next several weeks the specific contents of each of the three major categories in the Herd Management Awards Program will be discussed. So, please watch this column for more information.

PaDHIA Herd Management Awards - 1991

Sample Herd

The 1991 PaDHIA Herd Management Awards will be based on the following criteria. The information on the front of this page shows each criterion and the points your herd received for each. The back of the page shows your herd in comparison to state and county averages.

I. A. Milk Production Increase per Cow:	Points Received:	+0
Based on a production increase over 1990 of -64 lbs of milk.
B. Fat Production Increase per Cow:	Points Received:	+5
Based on a production increase over 1990 of +7 lbs of fat.
C. Protein Production Increase per Cow:	Points Received:	+5
Based on a production increase over 1990 of +9 lbs of protein.
D. Pounds of Peak Milk Production:	Points Received:	+9
Based on an average of 90.0 lbs of peak milk production.
E. Average Days to Peak Milk Production	Points Received:	+4
Based on an average of 47 days to peak production.
II. A. Percent Improvement of Mean Rolling Somatic Cell Linear Score:	Points Received:	+10
Based on +35.0 % improvement over 1990
B. Overall Somatic Cell Linear Score:	Points Received:	+10
Based on a Mean Rolling Somatic Cell Linear Score of 2.6 for 1991
III. A. Average Days Open, Using All Cows Bred (including pregnant cows) and All Cows Over 60 Days:	Points Received:	+0
Based on an average days open of 115 days.
B. Average Services Per Pregnancy (including All Cows Serviced):	Points Received:	+0
Based on an average of 2.4 services per pregnancy
C. Average Age at First Calving:		+0
Based on an average age at first carving of 23 months.
	Total Points	+43

ARIS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

ARIS allows dairymen and their authorized veterinarians and nutritional consultants to access individual DHIA herd records from a personal computer to the main computer in State College. Call the State DHIA office number listed in the FOCUS column head to learn more about how you can use this unique DHIA service to increase the profitability of your herd and the DHIA records you produce.

Q. How many people are currently using ARIS?

A. To date there are 200 ARIS users. This number includes 42 dairymen, 37 veterinarnians, and 70 consultants. Other ARIS users consist of 35 extension agents, three DHIA supervisors, and 13 "other" users. The total number of herds released is currently 1,408.

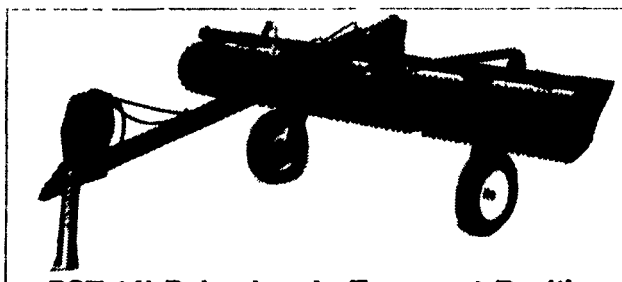
P-SERIES SINGLE GANG PULVERIZERS

Pull Type Pulverizers in 10' to 16' widths. With your choice of 20" ductile iron wheels (which carry a 5-year limited warranty), 20" notched rollers, 20" crowfoot, 18" smooth. 16" notched or 15" smooth wheels with sprockets. Tongue jack included.

The final result when using a Brillion Pulverizer is a firm and tilled, but not compacted, seedbed.



PST-14' Pulverizer In Transport Position

This concept of transport pulverizer is new to the industry. Machine weight is rotated over the tires for transport which considerably reduces the drawbar hitch weight. Transport pulverizer offers choice of 20" ductile iron wheel (which carries a 5-year limited warranty), 20" notched rollers, 20" crowfoot, 18" smooth, 16" notched or 15" smooth wheels with sprockets.

Mifflin County Award

tion improvements, while Rishel listed MC SCD accomplishments and activities including displays, tours, programs, and complaint-solving.

But time was also spent honoring those who dedicated a large part of their lives to conservation. Frank Bonson, representing ASCS, began by commending Ken Loht for 30 years of service as a community committeeman, David R. Spicher, for 10 years as a community committeeman, James Laughlin, for 20 years as a community committeeman, and William Fisher for 20 years as a community committeeman and county committeeman.

Bonson honored David L. Mitchell, who fulfilled his legal term as community committeeman, by saying "if the county ever had a fair person to evaluate the different programs and situations we get involved in, it's sure David Mitchell. His sincerity in difficult situations is always appreciated". Mitchell also earned the "Cooperator of the Year" Award.

Master of Ceremonies John R. Goss, Jr. noted the Mifflin County Conservation District board members' 88% meeting attendance, signifying a real interest in conservation.

Each year the Mifflin County Conservation District presents awards to the Future Farmers of America, the Boy Scouts, and the Girl Scouts "to encourage the youth groups to emphasize the conservation of natural resources in their programs". The main objective stated by Don Baker is to "teach the young because they are our future". Each group received a $25 check for conservation purposes.

The Goodyear Award, established 45 years ago for "an honest farmer who has accepted the challenge of conserving resources, went to John L. King of Belleville, last year's "Cooperator of the Year". This was awarded as further recognition of his dedication, planning, and work in conserving resources".

David L. Mitchell of Dry Valley earned the "Cooperator of the Year" Award by fulfilling "all the things needed to bring his land in compliance with the Conservation District". Mitchell, who farms 300+ acres on his home farm plus rented acres, utilizes strip cropping, conservation tillage, residue management, cover cropping, and improvements on 2800 feet of waterways as part of his conservation plan.

The Business Family of the Year Award, presented by the Chamber of Commerce, went to the William Snedeker family.

The Bill Ammon family received the Farm Family of the Year Award, also presented by the Chamber of Commerce. Their Dairy of Distinction includes strip cropping, improved waterways, a manure pit, and other conservation practices.

Harriet Rishel concluded the banquet by recognizing Conservation District board members Charter Director Clyde Krepps, who served 35 years, Roy Stine, 20 consecutive years, John R. Goss, Jr., 16 years, Donald Baker, 13 years, James Hostetter, 5½ years, and John L. King, the board's newest member.

The banquet, a cooperative effort between the ASCS, USDA SCS, and the Mifflin County, CD, was well attended by farmers and conservationists who could also understand another favorite quote of David Schaffer. Aldo Leopold, a great conservationist from early in the century, stated "When the land does well for it's owner, and the owner does well by his land, when both end up better by reason of their relationship, then we have conservation".

Highlights Of Adams County Holstein Meeting

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — Market outlook for registered cattle and dairy products, committee reports, and a review of the past years activities were highlights of the 40th Annual meeting of the Adams County Holstein Association. President Robert Clowney presided over the event which was held last week at the community fire hall in Biglerville.

Penn State Ag Economist Dr. Robert Yonkers listed Wisconsin, California, New York, Minnesota and Pennsylvania as the top five dairy states. Pennsylvania producing 10 billion pounds of dairy products is twice the volume of Texas, the number 6 state. Pennsylvania has made the 5th greatest increase in production in the last 10 years and will soon move ahead of Minnesota in the national rankings.

Yonkers noted that milk at $12.02 per hundredweight in September will increase about 40 cents by year's end. After the usual price decline in the spring due to a flush of production, prices could rise by as much as $1.75 by the fall of 1992. "A major drought could mean higher prices while a food safety scare would have the opposite effect" said Yonkers. "There currently is no milk surplus and Congress has not gotten far toward amending the federal farm bill" said Yonkers. He believes the two-tier pricing plan is dead.

William Nichol, Executive Secretary, for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, told of the frustrations encountered in satisfying foreign markets for cattle. He told of delays encountered in loading a shipment of 615 heifers for Egypt. He encouraged interest in registered Holsteins saying that while Wisconsin is first in registered Holsteins, Pennsylvania is the leader in breed-related activities.

Jeffrey Roche announced that Karen Holtzinger and Mary Kay Roche will accept orders now for the annual cheese sale, a project that netted the club $2000 in 1990-91.

State Director, Steve Wood said that membership applications for 1991-92 have been mailed. Pennsylvania will host the national meeting in 1995.

Jayne Hess, Adams County Dairy Princess introduced Erin Deputy, the Little Dairy Miss, who assisted Hess in presenting a promotional skit listing the nutritional value of dairy products.

In an election of directors, incumbents Jeffrey Roche of New Oxford and Robin Thompson of Hanover were re-elected: Marvin Brown of Littlestown was elected to replace Robert Clowney, who retired from the board.

Junior awards were presented by Josie Hess to the following: High protein and high butterfat awards to Matthew Guise of York Springs, High milk production award to Christine Waybright of Gettysburg. Both will a receive a Holstein jacket. Other participants Melissa and Melinda Wenger of Littlestown, Ashley Van Lieu of York Springs and Jayne Hess of Gettysburg received cash awards.

In a slide-illustrated summary of activities and educational programs available to dairy farmers in the past year, County Extension Director Thomas E. Piper reviewed the tour of four dairy farms in Franklin County, the type classification meeting at the Frank Ludwig farm, the twilight meeting at the Larry Wilkinson farm, the promotional projects sponsored by the Dairy Promotion Committee including the Dairy Princess Pageant, and the hosting by county dairy farmers of a Manure Storage/Nutrient Management tour in early August.

Piper concluded by encouraging all dairy farmers to attend a Crops Meeting and Feeding Workshop which will be held on Thursday, November 7, 1991, at the Vo Ag Shop of Gettysburg High School. He urged preregistration by November 4th for the York/Adams Dairy Herd Reproductive Workshop that will be held on November 11 and 20th at the York County 4-H Center near Bair Station. Both programs are designed to help dairy farmers improve production and to overcome problems resulting from a drought-shortened feed supply.

Speaking for the Adams County Farmers Association, John Hess invited the farmers and the general public to join in support of the Farm-City Week 1991. Obtain tickets now for the Farm-City Banquet to be held on Friday, November 22 at the York Springs Fire Hall. Also plan to visit these host farms for Farm-City Open House: Thomas Clowney farm at 361 Barlow Road, Gettysburg, Kevin Diehl beef farm at 444 Carrolls Tract Road, Fairfield, and the El Vista Orchard located at 1160 Cold Spring Road, Fairfield.

Entertainment sponsored by Vigortone Supplements was provided by a barbershop quartet, the Harbortones of Harrisburg.

Governor Casey

arrived around 2:30 p.m. The tour began by donning plastic boots and entering the barn.

Seipt explained the breeding terms and the data listed on each name board in front of the Registered Holsteins to Gov. Casey and Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff.

The 90-cow herd boasts an impressive record last year — 24,477 pounds of milk, 886 pounds of fat, and 795 of protein. DHIA test records places them the highest in Northampton Co.

This is an operation run exclusively by the family, including Donald and his wife Gerry and sons Donald Jr. and Douglas. Their daughter Kathy steps in to help when they go away. The grandchildren help out with calves and other small jobs. Part-time help is added in the summer when the field work demands it.

They farm a total of 250 acres. Corn is grown on 125 acres and they grow 100 acres of alfalfa. Small grains make up the rest of the crops.

Seipt served as president of the Holstein Association of America for many years until his recent retirement from the post. He has served as president of the National Dairy Shrine and is currently serving as president of the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association for the second year.

Mrs. Gerry Seipt was raised on the family farm. Their stone farm house has a date on the cornerstone of 1812. The structure will soon be 200 years old.

Her Father, B.L. Hindenach, had the top Holstein Herd in Northampton Co. for many years. His training has given her expertise in choosing good breeding stock. She keeps up the pedigree records and does the registration forms.

Douglas recalls his grandfather's motto, "If the job is worth doing, it is worth doing well." The family is still honoring each other with the same code of values.

The advertising campaign to educate the general public about milk as a health food as well as an economical beverage is improving sales. More is needed to be done to improve this way of life so quickly vanishing from the American Scene. The families involved in this type of business know life to be simple and complex at the same time.

If there is a message to be given to politicians, legislators and others in a governing capacity come on out to the farm," Heart of America" and see the truth about Wetlands, animal rights, and the effects of farming on the environment. The Seipts and others like them work hard at preserving the land and its resources from which they take their livelihood.

Paul King Honored

American and World Dairy Expo competitions.

Numerous notable animals and families were bred at Kingway, including the Holstein breed's first 4-E dam and daughter. Five gold medal dams and two individuals which topped the 200,000 lifetime milk production were also bred and developed by King, and the herd received the Progressive Breeder award for eight years.

Kingway Elevation Very, from Kingway's "Victory" family, is an internationally recognized sire. Owned by Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Very was especially popular among European dairymen and has won European show honors as premier sire.

Kingway-bred cattle have found homes around the world, with offspring in several South American countries, China, Japan, Israel, Italy, France and Spain. Hundreds of Holstein breeders and enthusiasts from across the United States and from 28 foreign countries visited the King's herd during its 20 years in York County.

Paul and Kathy dispersed their herd in 1988, with their approximately 50 head of milking animals then averaging 22,583 milk, 850 fat, and with a BAA of 107.3.

The couple now makes their home in Moorefield, West Virginia, and Paul continues a very active cattle show judging schedule. He has judged shows in Colombia and Peru, as well as numerous states, and in September officiated at the Pennsylvania All-American in Harrisburg.

A long-time leader in the Holstein industry, Paul served in various leadership capacities at local and State levels. He represented Pennsylvania as a national Holstein delegate for 10 years and was a state director for 10 years, including three years on the executive committee. A director of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, he served six years on the board.

After serving as a 4-H leader and dairy judging coach for 25 years, Paul continues to work with the 4-H program in West Virginia. The Kings have three children and three grandchildren.

In their "retirement," Paul and Kathy King have participated in two mission-work experiences, the first in Papua New Guinea, and the more recent, during January, to Senegal. Both were month-long mission construction projects through the Christian outreach program New Tribes.

Senegal is on the westernmost "hump" of Africa, a country about the size of Nebraska. During their work trip, the team of ten constructed a mud-brick home for a Canadian missionary serving the Dialonke (pronounced Ja-lunk'-ee) tribe. Nearest major airport is 16 hours by Land Rover over a rock-strewn, rutted dirt track, which floods during wet periods.

Just south of the Sahara and near the equator, temperatures in the tribal village in which they worked commonly rise over 125-degrees at midday. Houses are one-room huts, of bamboo and hard packed mud, with thatched roofs. Extended families, including some tribesmen's several wives and families, live in fenced compounds of several huts, within the village setting.

"Everyone there works very hard, including the children" Kathy King says of the Dialonke people, to whom they grew very close during their stay. "Every day, the women pound grain for flour to cook with."

Food is grown by hand and peanuts are one of the staple crops. One source of meat for the Dialonke's diet is the warthog, a ferocious species of wild pig.

Water must be carried from a well a half-mile from the village, dug five years ago by the government. Prior to that, all water was obtained from the nearby river. Women carry all the water, on large vessels balanced on their heads, and often with a small baby strapped to their body.

The mission team of volunteers with which the King's worked ranged in age from 18 to 72. Villagers made the 2000 mud bricks used in the house, built by the mission team. Pouring the floor for the small house entailed mixing 200 wheelbarrow loads of cement - all by hand. Hand tools for construction were obtained by borrowing them from other missionaries in the country. Nails, tin for the roof and other building items had to be bought and shipped from France.

"Everything had to be brought in by truck. And they always had to find another truck, because none would make a second trip," added Kathy.

The heat discomfort and the lack of modern equipment and amenities during their monthly-long stay, however, was far outweighted for the Kings by the friendliness and fellowship that developed between the mission team, their host missionaries and the Dialonke tribe. Paul and Kathy hope to continue this volunteer work with the New Tribes organization.

During the business session, Holstein members elected three new directors to three-year terms on the county's board of directors. Newly-elected are Gail Thoman, Dallastown, Mark Bupp, Brogue, and Douglas Kilgore, Airville. Retiring from the board are Scott Cooper, Melvin Marks and Leroy Bupp.

State director Scott Cooper and PHA membership director Ken Raney reported on the state's upcoming cheese sale, a new membership directory in printing, and a dollar-per-head incentive for registry of numbers of calves over the prior year on a statewide basis. New fundraising items for the junior association include Holstein license plates, stadium seat cushions and squeeze plastic drinking bottles.

State junior convention is set for February 7-9, 1992, and senior convention February 27-29, 1992,both to be held at the Sheraton in Warrendale.

PICK YOUR PROFIT!

It's a fact! The higher the tonnage and crude protein of forage per acre you produce, the more beef or dairy production you have to sell. This translates directly to more profit in your pocket!

HYTEST ALFALFAS will increase your profits with high performance varieties specifically selected for:
- High Relative Feed Value (RFV)
- High Crude Protein
- Low Fiber (ADF, NDF)
- High Leaf-to-Stem Ratio
- Fine Stems
- High Disease Resistance
- High Yield Potential
- Long Term Persistence

PICK YOUR PROFIT!

PRISM–Our new multi-leaf variety is the latest in alfalfa technology. Excellent disease resistant package including Aphanomyces coupled with 6[illegible] to 75% expression of the multi-[illegible] trait enable PRISM to set new standards in alfalfa performance.

ALLSTAR–New generation alfalfa exhibits superior disease resistance ratings. Has fast regrowth after cutting, good winter hardiness, high forage quality, and consistently places in the top percentile in independent yield trials.

ECLIPSE–One of the most winter hardy varieties available, has excellent disease resistant ratings. Suited to moderately drained fields, has long term persistence, and is a consistent top performer in yeild trials.

VICTORY–Extremely winter hardy, tested in Upstate New York and Quebec, Canada. This fine-stemmed variety has a good disease resistance package... a top yielder in independent trials.

LANCASTER PLUS–Adaptable to variable soil types. Has good disease resistance and will perform well under stress conditions. Has fine stems, very large leaves and excellent forage quality ratings. A top yield performer with long term persistence.

MEDISTAN EXTRA–Has excellent disease resistance ratings. Matures early, delivers big yields and has extremely fast recovery after cutting. It also has excellent leaf retention and consistently tests high in protein.

At cutting time be sure to use BIOTAL Hay Inoculant to help retain the forage values of these top alfalfas!

Berks Co. Honors Master Gardeners

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — It's not all the time that people get to engage in their hobbies and do something good for the community as well.

That's what Deborah Weaver, Wernersville R.D. 1, noted about her achieving master gardener Monday night during the Berks County Cooperative Extension annual meeting.

Weaver was among 11 gardeners honored at the meeting, held in the 4-H community center. In all, 30 completed the course. Weaver and other members of her class praised the experience.

"It covered the whole spectrum of gardening — from growing fruit to pest control," Weaver said. In addition, the main goal is the payback — volunteering, she said.

Her project, she said, was to teach a class in organic gardening. Among some of the other activities were helping to landscape area hospitals and working in the city greenhouse.

Class participants do about 50 hours of course work and then 50 hours of community service in the gardening area, said Judith L. Schwank, extension director.

"You help your community while learning about your hobby," Schwank said.

Stan Raugh, David Schaeffer, Donna Scibek, Jeffery Seyler, Dharampal Singh, Pamela Skilton, Nancy Taylor, Karen Tate, and Franklin Zettlemoyer were honored.

In addition to these awards, Doris Howerter, president of the extension board of directors, announced the new board members for 1992. They are Michael Spayd, Pat Hunter, Charles Seidel, Eric Hole, Sylvia Blomquist, Nancy Evans, Beth Hartman, Scott Hauseman, Truman Hertzler, Marion Hull, Steve Krupa, Rita Lesher, Lila Newhard, Nancy Sanner, Joe Vogel, William Zollers Sr., Todd Rabenold (4-H boy), and Christine Hunter (4-H girl). Ex-officio members are Robert Yanos Jr., Irvin Kauffman, Jane Treichler, and George Moyer.

The current officers are Karen Mohn, vice president; Eugene Richard, secretary; and Ted Bowers, treasurer. New officers will be elected in November.

The highlight of the evening was a slide show produced by Patrick O. Richie, the agent for ag engineering, which illustrated extension activities throughout the year.

Mercner, Bair To Lead State

Breeders Cooperative. Both received their post at PCC's annual meeting, held earlier this month.

Mercner has been involved in PCC, formerly the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, since the late '70's when she began participation in the local Chester-Delaware Cooperative Council. Today, she serves as the Southeastern Region representative to the state board and is Chair of the Public Relations Committee. She is also Chair and Treasurer of the Southeastern Region board and Secretary/Treasurer of the Chester-Delaware Cooperative Council. She has been a member of the PCC Southeastern Region Ag Horizons Conference Planning Committee since its inception four years ago.

"Carol comes to this position with a strong background in PCC's regional programs and youth activities," says Jay Rush, former President. "Her support of the local co-op councils and their numerous activities in the Southeastern Region have led to a strong and active region with quality programs and heavy participation."

In addition to her PCC involvement, Mercner is a former Chair and board member of the PA Friends of 4-H, the state 4-H Foundation, serves on the Chester County Cooperative Extension Board, is a member of the Southeastern Region PA Council of Cooperative Extension Association board, and is a member of the 1993 Eastern Member Relations Conference Planning Committee. The conference will be hosted by Pennsylvania in 1993.

Mercner majored in psychology/sociology at Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Virginia. She has resided in Chester County for the past 27 years. She has two married daughters and three grandchildren.

Serving as Vice-President of the PCC board is N. Alan Bair, whose responsibilities at Atlantic Breeders Cooperative include coordination of educational and communications programs involving members, cooperatives, the agricultural and livestock breeding industries and the general public.

"Much of my responsibility at Atlantic Breeders Cooperative involves cooperative education work with our members and the general public," says Bair. "We rely heavily on PCC programs for cooperative education with our members and, therefore, support PCC efforts in education."

A native of York County, Pennsylvania, Bair is a graduate of The Pennsylvania State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Dairy Science and a Master of Science degree in 1971 with emphasis on animal breeding. He is a past president of the College of Agriculture Alumni Society (CAAS) at Penn State.

Bair has been employed in agriculture since his discharge from the Army in 1970. For eight years he worked for The Pennsylvania State University as Extension Dairy Agent in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. He has worked for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative since 1978.

Alan and his wife Sally reside in Lancaster County with their two teenage children, Lara and Seth.

"The Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives is facing a particularly challenging and exciting period with numerous personnel changes at both PCC and Penn State," shared Mercner. "As Hal Doran retires and Cathy Hamlett takes the reigns of the Cooperative Business Education and Research Program, it is especially important that we maintain a close working relationship with Penn State."

"The same is true with our organization and the transition from Carol Buckhout to Crystal Smithmyer as Executive Director. We must continue to provide the necessary support to the Council to ensure that our programs and activities remain strong."

The Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives (PCC) is a statewide association of cooperative businesses owned and controlled by farmers and rural Pennsylvanians. Its membership includes major marketing and farm supply cooperatives, Pennsylvania Farm Credit Associations, and Pennsylvania Rural Electric Cooperatives. The Council's primary goal is to develop a better understanding of the cooperative way of doing business. Organized in 1933, PCC is the voice for agricultural and rural cooperatives in Pennsylvania.

-Mrs. Gilbert Paul was elected president of Society of Farm Women 3 at a recent meeting in the Salem Lutheran Church education building.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Lloyd Martin, vice-president; Mrs. Raymond Raihl, recording secretary; Mrs. Rudy Shirk, assistant secretary, and Mrs. William Stober, treasurer.

Mrs. Stober, along with Mrs. Clarence Stauffer, were elected delegates to the state convention in Harrisburg in January. Mrs. Martin will be alternate.

Miss Rebekah Sheaffer spoke on "Today" at the meeting when members of Society 20 were guests.

President, Mrs. Robert Hackman presided. Hostess was Mrs. Allen Stober. Next meeting of the group will be Saturday, Nov. 18, at the home of Mrs. William Stober.

Members of the Lititz 4-H Wildlife Club will hold one of its fall outings in the form of a hike tomorrow, Oct. 29, reporter of the club, Linda Mae Stauffer, of Lititz R3, said this week.

The program was set up at the last meeting of the club at the home of Marvin and Joyce Shenk of Lititz R4. Jay Foreman, president of the club, was in charge of the meeting.

Marvin Shenk showed films in the Western United States.

-The Pennsylvania Game Commission this week called attention of small game hunters to the revisions and additions to the 1961 Pennsylvania Game Law.

Several of the revisions provide increased penalties for noncompliance with the regulations.

1. The penalty for killing or illegally possessing a swan, wild goose, brant or wild duck was increased from $10 to $25.

2. Magazine shotgun must be plugged to a capacity of three shells when used for hunting any wild birds or wild animals other than big game, under penalty of $10.

3. It is unlawful for any person to assist in the illegal taking, killing or wounding of any game animal.

4. The Game Commission was given authority to revoke, for such period as it shall determine, the hunting and trapping privileges of any person convicted of a second or subsequent violation of the game law.

-About 400 Lancaster County farmers have received invitations to participate in the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce's third Business-Farm day on November 16.

Gerald M. Molloy, chamber manager, said the invitations which were sent out Monday ask the farmers and their wives to tour area businesses and industries.

Businessmen will host the farm families at luncheon at the various industries after a morning program of plant tours, discussions and inspection of facilities.

The afternoon program will feature a meeting for all guests in the auditorium of Armstrong Cork Company at Liberty Street in Lancaster.

Feeding for high production has always been a delicate balancing act. But today, based on the results of breakthrough research into the effects of Rumen Available Protein® and Rumen Available Carbohydrate® on milk production, Agway has pinpointed the critical impact of synchronized nutrients on milk production. So you can make more milk, more predictably, more profitably than ever.

And only Agway puts the power of this new generation of RAP®/RAC® balanced feed and dairy ration software—Synchro-Max 2000—at your fingertips. Field studies at working dairy farms just like yours have shown average increased milk production of over three pounds per day per cow using Synchro-Max 2000. With the push of a button, your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson can custom-design a feeding program to maximize your production and dramatically increase income over feed costs using RAP®/RAC® regulated rations.

But that's not all he can do. From dairy feed firsts like NutriTech® and Pro:Right to innovative top-dresses like Ultra:Lac 22 to this latest development in RAP®/RAC® rations—Synchro-Max 2000—nobody knows more about getting the most out of your cows than your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson.

Call him today. He'll give you a hand lifting production levels to new heights

Corn Test Plots Help Twin Valley FFA'ers Learn By Doing

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — Students of the Twin Valley FFA found out that sometimes experience is indeed the best teacher.

On Tuesday, the FFA'ers were out in the fields, conducting yield tests, measuring corn moisture, helping with the harvest, and seeing what fruits resulted from their labor. They examined an array of corn hybrid yields on a three-acre test field near the school.

"We've been doing this every year for 20 years, and this year we're looking at 24 different varieties from six companies," said Ron Frederick, ag science instructor at Twin Valley.

The students counted the stocks and examined population results. A combine and wagon were also brought in during the morning to harvest the crop, and a weigher was used to determine the amount of bushels harvested per acre.

In two weeks, a soybean field will receive the same treatment, according to Frederick. The yield will be sold by David Mast, a local farmer who allowed Twin Valley to use the field.

The study was part of the school's animal science curriculum, whiich includes studies on corn varieties, including size of harvest, moisture percentage, the economics of drying it down, and what effects weather, insect, and animal stress had on yield.

Luckily, the area received a good portion of rain, according to Frederick. But some problems encountered this year included corn rootworm and the weed, bur cucumber.

"We've been blessed right here," said Frederick. "We've not had a shattercane problem in the field."

At 4-H's 75th Anniversary, Lancaster Co. Honors Leaders

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — For the Lancaster 4-H, it was a night to honor dedicated 4-H leaders and the outstanding 4-H'er. But it was more important than that.

It was time to announce Lancaster County's participation in the 75th anniversary of 4-H and a special program to help raise money to benefit 4-H in the county.

To celebrate the anniversary, a special Winross truck program, with proceeds to benefit the 4-H Development Fund, can now be purchased at any extension office in the capitol region. The Winross trucks, with special 4-H insignia, are available for $45 to the public at extension offices in Franklin, Dauphin, Adams, York, Lebanon, and Lancaster counties.

But those wishing to purchase a truck anywhere in the world can contact Zoann Parker, Lancaster extension 4-H agent, at (717) 394-6851.

"The reason Lancaster County is involved with the program is that we're trying to endow our 4-H program," said Parker. "The money that we make off doing the Winross trucks will go to an endowment program, and we'll only spend the interest. That way, if something should happen to our state funding, we can make 4-H affordable for everyone."

Parker said the program was started "because I firmly believe we should be looking toward the future," said Parker, "and with the growth of our program, the state monies that we receive are only a drop in the bucket. Ninety percent of our program is funding through private support. So this is one way to bolster that support."

Eileen Holm, 18, left, was honored as the Lancaster Co. 1991 Outstanding 4-H'er by Kerry Boyd in Millersville on Tuesday night.

Special 4-H service awards were presented to Lancaster County 4-H leaders Tuesday night. Front, Eleanore Nelson, 30 years of service. In back, from left, Larry Weaver, 25 years and Warren Heisey, 25 years.

The Lancaster office expects to sell approximately 500 trucks by January 1, 1992. Approximately 3,000 trucks are being assembled for the program.

The county program has 4,036 4-H members and is the largest traditional 4-H program in the state. The group comprises 510 leaders.

Those leaders were honored at the Lancaster 4-H Recognition Night on Tuesday at Millersville University.

Eileen Holm, 18, a senior at Hempfield High School, was honored as Outstanding 4-H'er. Eileen has been involved in 4-H for seven years.

Special 4-H service awards were presented to Lancaster 4-H leaders. Eleanore Nelson, sewing leader of the Garden Spot Community Club, was honored for 30 years of service to the 4-H. Also, 25-year-service recognition went to Larry Weaver and Warren Heisey.

Parker said the 4-H club continues to expand. On October 28, the club will be starting a series of five meetings for people who are looking for alternative ways to make income through a special Holstein steer program.

"Specifically dairy farmers, but they don't have to be dairy farmers," said Parker.

"We'll start with a cost analysis, and we go into the actual purchasing of the calf, the health and management, and the marketing," she said.

Marketing will be carefully studied, because it is essential to the business of selling steer. "This is something that is definitely needed in the 4-H program," she said.

Parker said several packing companies have expressed interest in contracting for the program.

Those wishing to raise the steer will have the option of raising them "from 300-700 pounds as feeders or to finish them out," she said.

Children who wish to participate must conduct the project "like any 4-H project," said Parker.

"But we are starting with the adults to train them, because feeding a Holstein steer is completely different than feeding a Holstein heifer, or feeding a traditional beef-breed steer," she said.

Parker recently was recognized with the Blue Ribbon Achievement and Service Award by the 4-H Agents Association. The association nominates someone from the state who has been in the service three to seven years for the National Achievement Award, which will be announced in Phoenix, Ariz. the week of Nov. 3-7. The award recognizes the achievements of the entire county's 4-H program.

Any way you add it up

THE RIGHT MAN FOR U.S. SENATE

Friend of Agriculture. As governor, Dick Thornburgh's door was always open to farmers and farm organizations. He supported and signed into law more than 65 pieces of farm legislation, including many aimed at preserving the family farm and prime farmland.

Fiscal Conservative. Dick Thornburgh kept the lid on state spending in eight years as governor, cut business taxes and personal income taxes, and left a $400 million surplus.

Rural Road Advocate. Dick Thornburgh knows the problems. As governor, he initiated a statewide program to upgrade Pennsylvania's rural road system. If there are federal highway funds available, he'll get them for our roads.

Wetlands Realist. Thornburgh supports "appropriate compensation for wetlands owners," and a wetlands classification system that "preserves family farms and prime agricultural land as well as wetlands."

Washington Goals. Says Thornburgh, "I will work to cut taxes and reduce unnecessary spending just as I did in Harrisburg. I will insure that Pennsylvania's agricultural interests are well represented in Congress."

Maryland Farmer Proves Water Quality Protection Is Profitable

MONKTON, MD. — Sam Ensor is a champion of ground and surface water quality. He's also a farmer. And as far as he's concerned, there's no conflict.

Thanks to his own determination and the assistance of the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System and an agricultural equipment manufacturer, Sam Ensor is making a healthy profit raising hogs while protecting Maryland's valuable water resources.

Ensor, who owns 80 acres of tillable land near Monkton, Md., grows corn and soybeans and raises hogs. After expanding his swine operation three years ago, he began working with Leo Keller of the Baltimore County Soil Conservation District (SCD) to minimize any resulting adverse environmental impact. Under Keller's guidance, Ensor modified his tillage practices to include strip cropping and grassed waterways. He also implemented an animal waste management plan that involved installation of a liquid manure storage structure, a roof gutter system and a diversion to prevent rainwater from washing the manure into nearby waterways.

Keller then introduced Ensor to Tim Heckert, the Extension nutrient management consultant for Baltimore County, who helped Ensor develop an economically sound and environmentally safe plan for using his swine manure as fertilizer.

"Manure is the cheapest fertilizer there is, and we have to dispose of it somehow," Ensor explains. "I wanted to take advantage of the nutrients it contains."

Heckert, one of 14 Extension consultants who help Maryland farmers manage crop nutrients more efficiently, analyzed Ensor's soil and manure before developing an individualized nutrient management plan for the property.

"The days when we can just go out and dump the manure on the fields without calibration to get rid of it are gone," he says. "Manure is a valuable resource that should be conserved -- especially now, when operating costs are on the rise."

The results showed that the nitrogen needs of Ensor's crops should be met by applying 4,000-5,000 gallons of manure per acre. But that amount of manure would provide far more phosphorus and potash than the crops required -- a fact that had Ensor worried.

"I was concerned about the amount of phosphorus and potash applied at that rate and its impact on water quality," he says.

So Heckert devised an alternative plan, basing his recommendations on the crops' need for phosphorus and potash rather than their nitrogen requirements. According to this plan, Ensor would need only 2,000 gallons of manure per acre, although he would have to add additional nitrogen.

Unfortunately, Ensor's manure injection equipment could not apply less than 4,000 gallons of manure per acre. He was at an impasse.

That's when Badger Northland Inc., of Wisconsin, the manufacturer of Ensor's disc injector, stepped in, sending District Sales Manager Robert Chance to help Heckert and Ensor solve the problem.

As a temporary solution, Chance suggested that Ensor place valves in the delivery hoses of the injector to restrict the flow of manure.

"We used the modified system on our corn fields last spring, and it worked well except for some clogging problems," says Ensor. "But I figured I could put up with a little inconvenience, knowing that I was applying no more manure than was needed."

This protected not only the local water supply but also Ensor's profits. He estimates that he saved $1,440 in fertilizer costs this year.

And just recently his clogging problems were solved. Badger engineers developed a new flow restrictor design which should work better than Ensor's hardware-store retrofits.

The company's willingness to work with Ensor is a positive sign, according to Heckert.

"When agricultural/environmental problems are solved through cooperation and collaboration, everyone wins," he says. "Farmers can reduce pollution and increase profits, industry can boost sales by modifying products to meet farmers' needs, and the quality of our water resources can be maintained."

PDPP Reorganizes, Adopts Budget

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — At a recent meeting in Wellsboro, Tioga County, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Commodity Marketing Board elected officers and officially set the program's budget for the 1991-92 fiscal year.

The program's new budget, totalling over $1.4 million, reflects activities included in the board and staff's new marketing plan. This plan analyzed the current dairy market situation and determined the proper focus for the PDPP's advertising and promotion programs.

"Because a high percentage of Pennsylvania milk goes into the fluid milk market, the board placed a high priority on fluid milk advertising campaigns," said Brian Ross, PDPP program manager. "We also plan to create cheese and ice cream promotion campaigns because of Pennsylvania's large production in these two product categories."

The PDPP board will continue its joint partnership with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, of Syracuse, N.Y., and the Mid-East United Dairy Industry Association/F.O. 36 Advertising Agency, of Columbus, Ohio. For 1992, the three agencies will again be jointly sponsoring a $1.65 million fluid milk advertising campaign across Pennsylvania.

The PDPP's new budget includes programming for:

•Sports media, including the Penn State Nittany Lions, the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the Harrisburg Senators;

•Promotional events, including a statewide campaign of ice cream, June, Dairy Month promotions, and the Pennsylvania Farm Show;

•And, funding for all three Pennsylvania Dairy Council units.

Following approval of the budget, the board reorganized for the coming year.

Karl Kroeck, of Knoxville, Tioga County, was re-elected as chairman; Donald Cook, of Drums, Luzerne County, will remain the board's vice chairman; Janet Reynolds, of Watsontown, Northumberland County, will serve as the board's secretary; and Robert Gehman, Coopersburg, Lehigh County, remains as the program's treasurer.

Re-elected to the board's executive committee are Richard Shelleberger of Manheim, Lancaster County, and Dr. John Plummer, of Chalfont, Bucks County.

The meeting also included a discussion of the PDPP's Annual Meeting, slated for Monday, Jan. 27, at the Atherton Hilton, in State College.

Small Fruit Growers Guide Book Available

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — People who grow fruit on an acre or less may be interested in a recently released Penn State College of Agriculture guide book, "Small-Scale Fruit Production: A Comprehensive Guide for the Backyard and Amateur Grower."

The guide includes all the basic information a home gardener needs in order to grow pome fruits (apples, pears and quinces), stone fruits (peaches, plums, nectarines, apricots and cherries), brambles (raspberries and blackberries), grapes, strawberries and blueberries. It also tells how to raise gooseberries, currants and elderberries.

Emphasized in the guide are modern production methods that use alternative control strategies, such as integrated pest management, to reduce pesticide use.

"Integrated pest management requires growers to compile detailed, timely information about crops and pests in order to make sound management decisions throughout the year," said Dr. Barbara Goulart, assistant professor of pomology and guide coordinator.

But pesticides aren't the sole key to growing plump, succulent fruits. The guide shows fruit growing as an entire system, so the grower understands the biological complexity involved.

Advice is given on choosing a planting site, determining soil fertility and buying suitable plants. Growers also will find information on cultivars, nutritional requirements, pests and diseases, methods of control, pruning, trellising and harvesting.

Small-Scale Fruit Production sells for $7.50. To obtain a copy, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county, or the Publications Distribution Center, The Pennsylvania State University, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, Pa. 16802, (814) 865-6713.

lion dollars and dividing it by the 8.5 billion pounds of milk, stated earlier, you come up with the cost of $15.45 per cwt. for each 100 pounds of milk sold. A cost that was placed on the dairy farmer.

I have received very few prices over $15.00 per cwt. for milk since 1984, when this six year report started.

When a dairy farmer has a money loser on his farm, he very likely would try to eliminate the loser. But in this situation we have to pay advertising by law. The only way to eliminate this would be in the way of a referendum and I would ask all dairy farmers and farm groups to work together to eliminate this law.

Any time the cost of advertising the product is more than the products' worth the expense of advertising is too high. We could have used the money to buy the milk and process it for livestock feed and cut down on the excess milk to give the dairy farmer more money in the milk check. Officials managing this Program should be educated enough to see that money is being spent foolishly. Again I urge dairy farmers to stand up and be heard. Together we can stop this foolish waste of money!

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. board of coordinators and the program director met recently to review the 35th Anniversary Dairy Princess Pageant and Reunion.

It was considered to be a success with 15 returning State Princesses and 12 returning former directors and coordinators. The 1991 Pageant saw Miss Robin Wilbur from Bradford County crowned as the latest State Princess with Tanya Martin from Bucks-Montgomery counties as 1st Alternate, and Onales Smith from Mercer County as 2nd Alternate.

The coordinators were concerned that three former state princesses were not located for this reunion. They are: 1966 Carol Stephens Campbell from Fayette County. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stephens. Her last known address was Inster, Michigan; 1986 Ann Niesley Black from Cumberland County. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Don Niesley formerly from Mechanicsburg. Ann's latest known address was Littletown, Colorado; and 1969 Susan Clutter Waugh from Washington County. Her last known address was Harrisburg. If anyone would have any information on these former Princesses or their families, please contact Mary Herman, Anniversary Chairman, R.D. 1 Box 197, Roaring Branch, PA 17765.

A reception was held in the afternoon for the returning royalty and former coordinators. Then all enjoyed the 1991 Dairy Princess banquet and pageant, where each was introduced and honored. This Anniversary Reunion was made possible through the contributions of the following: Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Farmers' Cooperative Dairy, Clover Farms Dairy Co., Schneider's Dairy, Inc., Meadow Brook Dairy Company, Valley Farms, Inc., Rutter's Dairy Products, Milk Marketing, Inc., Dairylea.

Editor:

I suggest that Lancaster Farming offer the proposition for consideration to your readers that dairy might be better off in the real world of free market competition; not government protected, like it was argued in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal.

It might be enlightening to hear the feedback from individual dairy farmers. Sometimes I wonder if we only hear the opinions of bureaucrats both in and out of government who have a vested interest in the status quo.

Dairy Production Diseases Under Scrutiny At Seminar

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Methods to help control diseases on the dairy farm and manage thriving herds will be examined at the Dairy Production Diseases and Economics Seminar on Wednesday, Nov. 20 at the Farm Show Complex.

The show, open from 8:45 a.m.-4 p.m. to all dairy farmers, will offer a forum to discuss various herd problems, including mastitis control and ways to manage herd health, understanding BST biology and economics, and a future outlook of the dairy industry.

Speakers include Dr. Jenks Britt, animal practitioner from Animal Health Management Services, Russellville, Ky. Britt will tell how to get the most from dollars spent with your veterinarian. Britt is past president and member of the board of the American Association of Bovine Practitioners, served on the board of the National Msstitis Council, and is a member of the Academy of Veterinary Nutrition and the Holstein Association of America.

Also speaking will be Dr. Joe Hogan, who will examine the practical approaches to mastitis control. Hogan is a member of the department of dairy science, Ohio Ag Research and Development Center at Ohio State. Hogan is a member of the American Dairy Association, is on the editorial board of the "Journal of Dairy Science," and is on the board of the National Mastitis Council.

Dr. David Kronfeld will examine "BST Biology, Economics, and Public Health." Kronfeld is a diplomat of the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine and the American College of Veterinary Nutrition. He is professor of veterinary medicine at Virginia Tech.

Dr. George Haenlein will speak about the future of the dairy industry. Haenlein, professor at the University of Delaware, is the state dairy extension specialist and serves as an active member with a wide variety of dairy organizations.

Cost for the seminar is $3 per person, and will be collected at the door. Lunch will be included.

Contributors to the seminar include Agway, Carlisle Large Animal Veterinary Clinic, Edward M. Mimnagh, Fisher and Thompson, Hoffman-LaRoche, Lancaster Dairy Farm Automation, Penna. Holstein Assoc., W & J Dairy Sales, York Farm Credit, Atlantic Breeders Coopoerative, Commonwealth Financial Group, Elizabethville Veterinary Clinic, Hershey Chocolate Co., Keystone Farm Credit, MSDAgvet, Pennfield Corp., West Agro, Zei-Set Painting Contractors, Capital City Veterinary Medical Assoc., Dr. Robert B. PMMB: Prices Milk, Seeks Profit Parity

Editor's Note: This is the second part of a series of investigative reports by Staffer Vernon Achenbach Jr. on milk pricing and the dairy industry.

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Establishing minimum on-farm and processor prices for fluid milk is a direct interference with the practice of raw capitalism, according to all sides of the dairy industry.

No one contests that.

But with farmers losing money and producing an estimated one-half of 1 percent surplus of milk, numerous factions have been created over what to do to stabilize the dairy industry.

The history of the current situation goes back more than 50 years.

By setting minimum prices, the federal government attempted to guarantee (to the extent that it can be guaranteed) that a cheap food source is available to the public, no matter what the course of the general economy.

The federal system, started in 1935, was put into place for much the same reason that leaders of civilizations have historically stored grain during years of good harvest — to make sure adequate food supplies existed for the masses under rule.

Despite the fact that the United States is not designed to be a society wherein the masses are under rule by the government, but that the government is under rule by the people, the famine experience by the United State during the Great Depression created the need for an age-old social system of insuring one of the basic requirements for life — food.

According to numerous industry experts, the purpose of minimum pricing was to subsidize small dairy farms and ensure a certain income.

The minimum milk prices were created as an enticement for people to stay in, or go into, dairy farming, and to create a surplus product for bad times and future generations.

The need for that today, in light of high costs of production compared to the subsidized rates of production, remains an issue of controversy.

Should a completely free-market system be emplaced, some speculate that a significant number of small dairy farms and milk processors would fall, being replaced by fewer, but larger operations.

The current system limits the growth of dairy farms, because of the surplus of milk it promotes, but it also hampers the creation of possible milk monopolies.

In Pennsylvania, minimum prices and industry regulation were created for two basic reasons: at the processor and retail level to prevent any one business from selling processed milk at, or below, cost in an effort to sieze a larger part of the market and eventually drive out competition; and to protect the small farmer from business corruption and to prevent tainting the wholesomeness of the milk product.

The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB), which is responsible for licensing and regulating dairy business practices within the state, also creates fixed minimum prices for milk and milk products and regulates the classification, marketing and distribution of fluid milk.

Fluid milk, called Class I use, currently represents about half the use of milk produced in the state. The remainder of the raw milk is now used for Class II (ice cream, cottage cheese, etc.) or Class III (ingredients in other processed foods) products.

There are an estimated 13,000, mostly small family-run, dairy farms in Pennsylvania. Not all of which sell Class I milk. Those farms which do not sell milk for Class I use fall outside the purview of the PMMB, and therefore are not afforded the same types of regulation and protection as Class I use.

The function of the milk marketing board is to audit dealers to make sure that farmers are getting paid what they are owed, according to existing pricing formulas.

They do this by making sure that dealers post bonds representing 75 days worth of milk purchases. The amount of milk they buy determines the amount of the bond posted.

Currently the PMMB holds between $95 million to $100 million in bonds for Class I milk produced in the state. There are some out-of-state milk dealers who are out of reach of the authority of the board.

(Note: the issue of mandating out-of-state dealers to pay certain fees is currently being tested in courts in several surrounding states.)

There are, however, many out-of-state dealers who post bonds, even though they legally would not have to.

"The audit function keeps dealers honest that's the primary reason for us auditing," said John Pierce, executive secretary for the PMMB.

"The secondary function is to make certain that fees owed us and bonds that we hold are accurate. Those bonds represent probably about $100 million of security and collateral bonds that we hold, a tremendous insurance program for the dairy farmers."

The need to call in the marker on those bonds occurs rarely. According to Pierce and Thomas Crowley, counsel for the PMMB, prior to their employment on the PMMB there was a cheese manufacture, against which a bond claim was filed.

Within the past six years, there was a small dealer buying from a handful of producers which also had its bond cashed in.

"That is a critical element of the audit function — maintaining the books and records and making sure that the bond represents 75 days worth of purchases," Pierce said.

"Without that, we don't have

10 Pa. Breeders Register Angus

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The 10 producers who registered the most Angus beef cattle in the state of Pennsylvania recorded a total of 943 Angus with the American Angus Association during fiscal year 1991, which ended September 30, according to Richard L. Spader, association executive vice president.

The 10 top recorders in Pennsylvania are Shawnee Angus Farms, New Enterprise, 203 head; Fred Frey & Sons, Quarryville, 150; McKean Bros., Mercer, 131; South Branch Farms, York, 96; Stony-lonesome Farm Inc., Stahlstown, 81 head; Logan Spring Farm, Bellwood, 80; Erdenheim Farm, Lafayette Hill, 66; Burleigh Anderson, Loysville, 48; Clearview Acres, Eldersville, 46 head; Sidney Riggs, Friedens, 42.

Angus breeders across the nation in 1991 registered 166,769 head of cattle compared to 159,036 head recorded in 1990. This marks the fifth consecutive year of registration growth for the breed, Spader said.

any information. Our auditors collect that on a monthly basis."

The mission of the board is to make sure the producers are paid. It's done through regular audits.

Dealers are required to make up underpayments and there are fines levied against those in violation. Sometimes it's a mathmatical error, according to Pierce.

"We identify what every payroll should be. If that is deficient, we then go in and ask why. There may be an explanation for it," Pierce said.

If there is no explanation, the auditors issue citations. The dealer makes up the payments to the farmers and then pays a fine.

However, according to Crowley, the most common problem is checks getting out late.

"That's not to say that's a common problem. It isn't. But of those types of problems, that is the most common. We do in fact occassionally find that they have paid the farmer less than they should have. Frankly that calculation is getting more and more complicated with the feds, (who are) in the process of changing the definition of Class II and Class III," Crowley said.

The work of the PMMB, to referee the milk industry, is complicated and made almost impossible through the hampering of the current government administration.

There are three different federal orders in Pennsylvania, each with a different way of valuing milk. And then there is an area of the state in which producers are not covered by any federal order.

The field work is handled by seven auditors headed by Dave DeSantos. There are also six examiners for the whole state, whose job, among other things, is to examine milk tanks at the farm and check weights of milk and fat tests at the dealer for accuracy.

All the funds raised by the PMMB through licensing and permitting fees go into the state general fund (the repository for taxes) and is supposed to be made available to the agency. That amount is about $1.3 million.

Additionally, the current budget has allocated $950,000 of tax dollars to augment the agencies budget.

But those funds are directly under the control of Gov. Robert Casey's administration. Casey has not allowed the majority of those funds to be used by the board, but has kept funds to offset the state's budget deficit over the past years.

Because of the hold Gov. Robert Casey has on the funds of the PMMB and its ability to hire needed workers, the examiners are pressed into work as auditors.

According to Pierce, even with using the examiners as auditors, the agency is behind up to six months in work, which continue to be aggravated every time someone takes a vacation.

With 13,000 dairy farms in the state, though not all fall under the protection of the PMMB, the agency is not able to do anything but react to complaints.

The 13 workers doing the auditing do 14,544 records a month. Dealer records number 12,042. Annually there are 5,000 records on financial reports.

Also, on a monthly basis, the board workers conduct 487 store price surveys around the state.

In addition, the auditors are to examine 1,588 records of milk haulers on a monthly basis.

Each auditor handles at least 1,000 records a month. The staff of PMMB employees numbered 80 in the late 1970s. It is now 32 and not all positions are filled because of the refusal of the Casey administration to free up money that was to be used by the board.

Legislation is pending which would correct that situation.

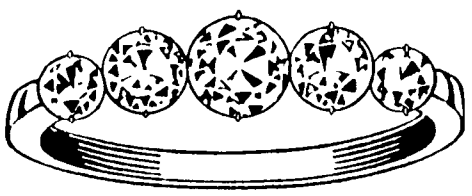
Diamond Anniversary Band



You will get compliments on this diamond anniversary band. It shows off its 5 beautiful diamonds so well that their sparkle and brilliance will captivate your eyes and others' eyes over and over again. The center diamond is larger than the end diamonds, giving this ring a tapered look that will look great on your finger and that many people are sure to admire. Whether your wedding set is white gold or yellow gold, stop in for your new diamond anniversary band; it's here in both white and yellow.

Photobiology In The Barn

GEORGE F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware Fall is here. Canadian geese are flying overhead. Short-day plants like soybeans begin to respond, getting ready to be harvested.

Even poinsettias are poised to bloom. And sheep, goats, deer and other seasonal animals are coming into heat for mating, ready to secure next year's new crop of lambs, kids and fawns. The days grow shorter, and as we know, animals will respond differently to changes in their daily exposure to light.

In the dairy business, we have assumed for some time that today's cows are no longer seasonal breeders, not in the way sheep and goats are. Given this premise, we have also assumed that shorter days would not affect them one way or another.

This is simply not the case.

Poultry farmers learned years ago that chickens lay more eggs when given supplementary light exposure. This discovery led to the understanding that light, more specifically than length of days, is a daily requirement of laying hens, just as much as feed or water is.

The supply of light is converted by the chickens into hormones, which turn on or off the reproductive organs that produce eggs.

Not surprisingly, what works in chickens can also be applied to sheep, goats, deer, and plants; that is, the amount of light, measured in hours, and its intensity, influence reproductive performance.

Now some really exciting research results come out of work at the National Agricultural Experiment Station at Beltsville, Md. Amounts of light have been studied as to their effects on forcing plant seeds to germinate and plants to grow leaves, flowers or set seeds.

The new idea was not just to expose plants to rays from light bulbs of different intensities, but to grow plants on plastic sheets of different colors that, in turn, would reflect light onto the plants in various ways.

Growing tomatoes over red plastic mulch increased fruit harvest by 10 to 15 percent over the traditional black plastic mulch. Blue or white plastic mulch increased potato harvest by as much as 15 percent.

Infra-red light was effective in making plants grow stemmy and tall, while red caused shorter stems and bigger roots. Blue mulch on turnips accumulated more compounds responsible for their strong flavor and taste.

Mulch color also affected the number of insects and nematodes found on cotton and other plants.

Thus a new science was born: photobiology, the study of how we can change normal biology of plants and animals by manipulating light, both in quantity and quality, and by the color of the light.

So, what does this have to do with dairy cows? Maybe, more than we know.

Some years ago, a well-known dairy herd in New Jersey was stabled in a barn that was painted bright blue for the expressed purpose of affecting fly pests and their numbers.

This novel idea did not catch on, but as far as I know, neither has it received research attention.

However, work at Michigan and at British and Canadian research stations has established that we were wrong in assuming that only chickens, poinsettias, soybeans, tomatoes, turnips, goats, sheep and deer respond to photobiological light manipulation.

We now know that light manipulation induces growth of Holstein heifers via their gonads. We also know now that eight hours of light per day causes heifers to get fat, while 16 hours makes them grow taller, more muscular and leaner by a significant difference of 28 percent.

This seems to explain why pork producers of 50 years ago preferred to feed their pigs in dark barns. I well remember this practice from where I grew up. Today's consumer wants lean meat instead, which calls for keeping the lights on in the pig barn.

In terms of milk production, Holstein heifers develop much better mammary growth and udders when exposed to 16 hours light, regardless of their genetics or feed supply.

Most importantly, light-supplemented cows produced 10 to 17 percent more milk over control cows in Michigan, Oregon, Bulgaria, England and Denmark. This research was for most of the entire lactation period, starting with the second month.

Was there a difference in color? Apparently no one has studied this intriguing question, but we do know that the intensity of white light has to be at least 40 foot-candles (Lux), and that an average of 100 Lux for 16 hours will stimulate body growth and milk production in dairy cattle. All this without injections or other supplementation!

Will it pay? It would, theoretically.

Consider this situation: at current price of $11.60 per 100 pounds of milk on the farm; a conservative milk stimulation of 8 percent; a Holstein cow producing 50 pounds of milk per day; and a 7-cents electric cost per cow per 16 hours of light.

This cow would generate extra milk (and therefore) income of 46 cents a day against costs, including increased feed consumption of 30 cents. It would mean a net income gain of $16 per 100-head herd a day.

Furthermore, it has been calculated that at that level of return, new or additional lighting equipment would be paid back in less than 345 days of use.

It seems the time has come even for dairy cattle farmers to take photobiology seriously as a source of potential farm net income.

Who knows, seeing red or blue colors in the dairy barn might be positive and lead to even more profits in the future.

ting the coulter or disk gangs can add another seven to 10 percent remaining."

The soil engaging tool not only affects the amount of residue buried, but can determine the type and number of tillage passes needed the following spring, he says.

In row-crop areas, many chisel plows — maybe even most — are operated with concave twisted shovels fitted to the shanks, Johnson said.

"Twisted shovels tend to bury residue and leave the field surface very rough. In most cases, you may need to level the field the following spring before using a pre-emergence surface- applied herbicide," he said. "To save a tillage pass in the spring, consider using sweeps on your chisel plow."

Ag engineer Loren Bode with the University of Illinois would rather see growers eliminate a leveling pass than skip a herbicide incorporation pass.

"In our studies, we obtained the most consistent weed control by spraying preplant incorporated herbicides directly on a chiseled surface and incorporating twice with a disk or field cultivator," he said. "Leveling the soil surface, applying the herbicide, then incorporating with only one pass resulted in weed streaking in some case."

According to Bode, preplant herbicides can be sprayed directly onto chiseled ground but only if the incorporation tool can be operated deep enough to take out the ridges without placing the herbicide too deep.

"A disk will mix the soil to the depth it is operated and will concentrate the herbicide approximately half as deep," he said. "Since Lasso and Dual shouldn't be placed any deeper than two inches, you'll need to level the field if you have ridges deeper than three or four inches."

On the other hand, thiocarbamate herbicides like Eradicane can be applied on a rougher surface because they can be incorporated deeper.

"We tell growers to set their tillage tool to cut three to five inches deep for the first incorporation pass when using Eradicane," said Bode. "You'll get better weed control from deeper placement because these herbicides have good soil mobility and will move vertically and laterally in the soil profile."

Para-Till --
A New Trend In Tillage

If your goal is to leave more then 60 percent residue cover after a deep tillage operation, consider the Paratill, manufactured by The Tye Company of Lockney, Texas. The Paratill is designed to loosen the soil and alleviate compaction, but bury almost no residue.

The shanks of the Paratill are mounted on a standard toolbar. The shanks are uniquely designed "legs" that enter the soil vertically, then angle inward at 45° to provide a wide zone of soil loosening for increased water infiltration and root growth.

Tye spokesman Andy Anderson says the angled legs cause the soil to fracture vertically along its natural lines of weakness. The Paratill won't create a cloddy surface or bring up subsoil.

University of Illinois ag engineer John Siemens confirms that the tool will bury only minimal amounts of residue and disturbs very little of the soil surface.

"Because the Paratill does not create ridges, growers have the option of applying their herbicide on the first tillage pass in the spring," Siemens said. "The combination of a Paratill and two pass herbicide incorporation in the spring should work quite well for growers who want to leave high amounts of residue on the surface."

Application Options

As the amount of tillage decreases and surface residues increase, growers can also consider going granular, Bode said.

"Spreading a granular herbicide or using liquid herbicide impregnated on dry bulk fertilizer are good options for applying preplant herbicides in high residue situations," said Bode. "The granules filter through crop residue and place the fertilizer and herbicide on the soil surface."

According to Bode, the granules can be spread right onto chiseled corn stalks, the stubble from double-cropped soybeans after wheat, untilled soybean stubble, and even standing corn stalks.

When working with very high residue levels, growers should make their first incorporation pass with a disk, Bode said. A second pass with a disk, field cultivator, or combination tool run at an angle to the first will give better horizontal distribution of the herbicide and fertilizer granules.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Fall.

Season of colored foliage. Season of harvest. Season of misty mornings, of sunshiney afternoons, of crisp, moonlit evenings.

Season of apples and cider, of yellow corn and orange pumpkins. Season of black cats and delightfully dressed-up little kids coming to the door giggling "Trick or Treat!"

Fall. My favorite season.

Where do you suppose it ever got the label "Fall?" Autumn is the official term, though that's so stiff and formal-sounding in comparison to the familiar, more casual "fall."

Fall finds us slipping off to the woods nearly every weekend. Usually it's just for an hour of bird watching or a short hike on a Sunday afternoon, but we try to grab those mini-escapes to the woods and meadow as often as possible during fall's brief burst of glory.

Spend an hour or two in the woods this time of year and the source of the term "fall" will shortly pop into - er, onto - your head, Sir Isaac Newton, discovery of gravity,s tyle. Only what gravitates with a thud onto your noggin will be, probably not an apple, but more likely an acorn. Or two, or three, or a dozen.

This particular fall seems to be especially blessed with this seasonal sort of fallout. One theory that I recently read is that trees and bushes respond to drought conditions by out-doing themselves in trying to perpetuate the species. Based on the volume of acorns we've seen during recent walks, the perpetuation of oak species seems assured.

And our resident squirrels may soon grow so fat they'll need elevators up to the treetops.

On a woodland picnic with friends a few weeks ago, we were fascinated by a more unusual fallout - in a stand of paw-paws. (Yes, Virginia, there is a paw-paw patch.) Ripe paw-paw fruits -look like a green apple shaped like a kiwi, with mushy, banana-like flesh - made great dodgeball ammunition.

Actually we had to come home and study a tree identification book to be sure it was paw-paws we'd be lobbing at each other through the trees.

English walnuts on the kitchen counter came from sharing friends and testify to abundant fallout from nut trees. The giant English walnut that once graced our backyard was zapped by lightning dur ing our early years here on the farm, so we are especially appreciative of their shared bounty.

The many black walnut trees in the meadows and fencerows are equally fruitful this year, littering the ground beneath the spreading limbs with dozens of green-husk-covered nuts. Walking through woodlots with dropping acorns poses only a slight risk in comparison to the clunk on the head rendered by black walnut fallout.

Any journey through wooded terrain, from our small woodlot to vast state gamelands tracts, is accompanied now by a delightful, ticket-tape-welcome effect. Just the slightest breeze sends cascades of colorful confetti tumbling about, leafy shapes in deep maroons, fiery reds, golden yellows and many in flambouyant, multi-hued blends. Like a warm, sunny, snowstorm.

If tradition holds, the maples around the house will sport some of the last leaves in the neighborhood to turn golden and flutter in descent to pile up on the lawn, sometimes holding on 'til near Thanksgiving. But other maple fallout has already begun, as the helicopter-blade seedpods twist and twirl their way down to the front porch. Even the seeds from the trees way on the back side of the house defy the wind to add to the fallout accumulation on the front porch.

Part of Fall's enticement is that it's beauty is so fleeting. And it's best savored leisurely on foot, soaking up the sights, sounds, and smells of the season.

SCOTTDALE (Westmoreland Co.)— "Exciting," is the way Ruth Horsch describes their first bed and breakfast guests in 1985. Since that time, the Horsch home has become a gathering point for small family reunions and a getaway for people needing a rest.

What has gone into hosting almost 1,000 people for more than 1,400 nights?

According to Ruth and her husband, James, the most important ingredient to making a bed and breakfast business successful is to make each guest feel special. To welcome guests, there are fragrances — fresh cut flowers from the four-acre yard, mints by the bedside, and good food. The Horsches have converted their country farmhouse into a place where people may come for a day or a week.

Prior to the decision to open the bed and breakfast business, the family's three children grew up and left empty bedrooms in the house. Ruth began reading about bed and breakfast places during the time she worked full time as manager of a hardware store's housewares, lawn and garden department. Ruth felt that hosting, the essential skill for taking this step, came from her life experience — "It's something I've done all my life," she said. It became a way of life for Ruth to have some income, in addition to using her talents and interests in home decorating, gourmet cooking, and gardening with herbs and perennials.

Beginning in business

In the beginning, "it was all Ruth," according to James. She named the three guest rooms, calling them the Country Charm Room, The Painted Trillium Room and My Favorite Room.

The couple set rates, printed a brochure, and installed safety equipment such as fire alarms in the house. A reservation and referral agency from Pittsburgh inspected the accommodations.

Ruth remembers that the first guests were anticipated with a "company's coming" kind of excitement. The family from Decatur, IL, made Pine Wood Acres the stop that concluded a vacation stay in eastern Pennsylvania.

The first years were a flurry of advertising, promotion, and high interest from newspapers and magazines. Several regional newspapers published articles on Pine Wood Acres. Horsches listed Pine Wood Acres with The Laurel Highlands Association, a travel and information service for Southwestern Pa.

In the guest book, the line on October 16, 1986 lists a guest from Evening Magazine, a show produced by Channel 2 television station in Pittsburgh. The segment on the Horsches aired about two weeks later.

With all this publicity, the Horsches expected some response, but when they began getting calls from California and Arizona they wondered how people got their name. The interest, they discovered had come from a national guide called Great Affordable Bed and Breakfast Getaways. The $12.95 book lists only those places where a double occupancy room will be less than $50 a night. The guide, according to James, "is very popular because the places it lists are so affordable."

At this point, Pine Wood Acres is listed in five different bed and breakfast guidebooks, and several regional annuals. They buy ad space in a couple regional publications.

As their business matures, Ruth sees that their guests' habits are changing. At first, guests chose the Horsch's home as an inexpensive alternative to motels for people going from one place to another — most of their guests stayed only one night. Now they host more family gatherings. Friends also have found they can meet without a lot of hassle at Pine Wood Acres. This allows someone else to assume the hosting responsibilities.

People also use Pine Wood Acres as a vacation hub from which they can explore the surrounding area. In their brochure, the Horsches list almost two dozen attractions in the surrounding area. "Fallingwater — the Frank Lloyd Wright House operated by the Western Pa. Conservancy — has been a great source for referrals," says Ruth.

As people come back a second or third time, the need to attract new people goes down, and the Horsches have done less advertising.

Special hosting skills

One essential to making their business a success, is Ruth's special skill at hosting. She is great at helping people feel relaxed and comfortable. She helps her guests get away from the stresses of modern life. Fresh-cut flowers from the four-acre yard, a bird feeder located just outside the dining room table, and the selection from a collection of six table setting colors are all nice touches to make people's stay interesting.

The guest book shows many people from the metropolitan areas of Pennsylvania, New York, and Ohio. Many guests have also come from the Washington, DC area. By September 1991, visitors had come from 29 states and 15 countries.

"Beautiful. Like heaven," is the way one guest from Allison Park expressed the experience.

Building the relationship between host and guest, providing a quiet country atmosphere, and providing special food has made Pine Wood Acres a thriving business.

"Sometimes we've had as many as 15 days straight with people in the house and it gets a little long. You need a break," says Ruth. In fact, the Horsch children now need to call ahead to make sure that they will have a place to sleep when they come home.

In conversations with visitors, Jim and Ruth are often asked about their own lives. Since Jim is an editor at the Mennonite Publishing

Homestead Notes

Outside Plants Brought Inside For Winter Need Attention

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Those houseplants you've kept outside all summer may be harboring unwanted guests.

"When bringing plants inside for the winter, it's important to keep them on your porch for a few days, where they won't be killed by a frost and where you can check them for insects and other pests," says Dr. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "Even one or two insects can be the start of an infestation."

Pests to look for are aphids, mealybugs, spider mites, white flies and scale.

Aphids are small, black or green crawling insects that live in thick colonies along the soft parts of stems, sometimes covering them entirely. They excrete a sweet liquid called honeydrew, which often attracts ants. "Aphids are quite destructive," says Nuss. "They cause distorted and curled leaves, malformed flowers and hardened buds."

Mealybugs are about the same size as aphids but are white and fuzzy. Masses of them, resembling pieces of cotton, nestle and lay eggs where leaves and branches attach to stalks. Mealybugs can stunt and kill plants by depleting their fluids.

White flies also are small and white, but unlike mealybugs, will take flight if you shake the plant. "You'll never find just one white fly on a plant," says Nuss. "They come in quantities and can spread to all the plants in your house."

Spider mites are miniscule but very destructive. An infested plant will have yellow-speckled leaves and may be covered with tentlike webs. "The mites look like grains of cayenne pepper," says Nuss. "They're easy to spot if you hold a piece of white paper under the plant and shake the leaves so the mites drop onto the paper."

Scale appears as blister-like areas on stems and the undersides of leaves. These areas can be circular, oyster-shell-shaped or rectangular and are colored white, brown, grey or black. Scale also produces honeydew, which may drip from the leaves. "Scale seriously stunts growth," says Nuss. "If not treated, it can kill the plant and spread to other plants."

"With a small infestation, you may be able to wipe the pests off with a Q-Tip dipped in alcohol," says Nuss. "Rinsing the plant under a gentle stream of water for a few minutes can wash away insects and eggs. Keep checking the plant for a recurring infestation during the next couple of weeks."

It's also important to gently dig around the roots and look for pests in the soil, such as sow bugs, millipedes and slugs. You can remove most of these by hand, or you may want to rinse the soil off with a garden hose and repot the plant in new soil.

Serious, persistent infestations can be treated with an insecticial soap spray or a multipurpose insecticide containing a miticide. Both are available from gardening centers. "Be careful to follow the directions on the label exactly," says Nuss. "Excess spray can be toxic to the plant. If you spray too closely to the leaves, the aerosol propellant can freeze them."

After spraying, keep the plant in a large plastic bag for a few hours to contain and concentrate the spray, then isolate it for about two weeks or until you're sure it's pest-free. "It also is a good idea to follow all these precautions if you've bought a plant or received one as a gift," says Nuss. "Even well-cared-for nursery plants can harbor pests."

Fall also is the time to repot plants that have been outdoors all summer. Turn the plant upside down and tap the bottom of the pot while supporting the plant. The roots and soil probably will come out in one piece. If the roots are crowded into the shape of the pot, it's time to remove the old soil and move the plant to a pot one size larger.

If the plant has grown excessively, you may want to trim it to an appropriate indoor size. "Trimming can stimulate more growth, so you might need to do it again later," says Nuss.

When the plant is repotted, trimmed and pest free, place it inside where it will get at least a few hours of full sun every day, and rotate it once a week so it will grow straight. Fertilize moderately and water only when the soil is completely dry. "It's best even to let the plant wilt slightly before watering," says Nuss. "Overwatering quickly can kill plants."

Is setting your plants outside worth all the hassle? "The advantages are great," says Nuss. "Sunlight, rain and warm weather produce a flush of healthy growth, and the pests usually are easy to get rid of. Overall, it's worth it."

Company's Coming

House in Scottdale, many people ask about the Amish and Mennonites.

"Many assume that we are the same. My standard answer is that we are cousins — part of the same family tree, but different," said Jim.

The guests' response is very positive. "We have a whole box full of 'thank you' cards," said Jim.

History of U.S. bed & breakfasts

When did people in the United States begin to think about hosting as a business? Europeans have been providing the service for themselves and visitors from other countries for years. Ruth began reading of bed and breakfast places in California around 1975. For its more formal beginning in the states, Ruth points to a 1981 survey by what is now the American Bed & Breakfast Association and their publication The Inn Times. In 1981, they began with 35 members.

The Horsches were a part of an attempt to organize the 35 or so bed and breakfasts of southwestern Pa. Only a small number were represented at an initial meeting, and it has been difficult to develop communication between them. Since that time, two fo the businesses closed after being open less than a year.

In many ways, the attraction of the bed and breakfast defies organizing. One fo their early guests said that they had come all the way on back roads. And when the Horsches wanted to stay at a bed and breakfast on a trip to Virginia, Ruth says, "I spent a couple hours making arrangements with the hosts. It takes effort to plan a trip around the bed and breakfasts. It's like treasure hunting."

The total bed and breakfast business has now grown to the point that The Official National Bed and Breakfast Guide lists 1,650 establishments, with access to more than 9,000 spots through reservation services. Horsches have numerous listings and memberships.

The kind of people you will find opening bed and breakfasts are like Doc and Sandy Dawson, of the Historic Chalybeate Springs Hotel in Bedford. In 1990, they began restoration of a building that was constructed in 1786. They currently have four beds with the plan of adding more beds and rooms as the restoration progresses. Their initial motivation for moving to that area was to raise their children in a small town atmosphere. They have combined the bed and breakfast with a gift shop and Christian books.

A satisfying feeling

Ruth says that the most satisfying part of the work comes from the opportunity to provide a positive experience for each guest. "I try to make each person feel special," she concludes.

Proper lime application can increase your dry weather yield

You can't control the weather, but you can increase your dry weather yield by controlling soil fertility with proper lime application. Fall and early winter lime application corrects soil pH, restores vital nutrients, and makes your fertilizer more effective in preparation for spring planting.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

When using recipes in your microwave oven, use good microwave sense. Seeing foods cook can be mesmerizing, but don't stand there and watch foods overcook in one spot. Turn the dish, stir the food and turn the food over.

Cover your vegetables with vented plastic. This helps to prevent a build up of steam.

When using vegetables that are store-bought in pouches, put small holes in them to let out the steam.

Another hint is when cooking bacon. Place a paper towel over the pieces so that they won't splatter. Dry pieces afterward on paper towels to absorb some of the grease.

Boiled Red Potato Halves

6 red potatoes
6 cups hot water
Baking dish - 2 qt. casserole
Time at high - 14 to 16 minutes
Standing time - 2 minutes

Wash and halve potatoes. Pare if desired. In a casserole dish combine potatoes and hot water to cover. Cover. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 14 to 16 minutes. Let stand covered 2 minutes. Drain and serve.

Another recipe for potatoes that is good is Stuffed New Potatoes.

Stuffed New Potatoes

Arrange 8 potatoes on a platter. Microwave small new potatoes for 14 to 16 minutes. Cut a very thin slice off one end of each potato to form a flat base. Scoop out the top of each potato using the small end of a melon scoop.

Save the potato balls for a salad. Spoon 1 to two teaspoons of dairy sour cream, Hot Perrer Pesto or All Seasons Pesto, into the potato well. Arrange in a 9-inch pie plate. Garnish with pimiento strips or ley, thyme or tarragon. Microwave, uncovered at MEDIUM HEAT for 2 to 3 minutes.

Baked Sweet Potatoes or Yams

4 sweet potatoes or 4 yams
Time at high - 11 to 14 minutes
Standing time - 5 minutes.

Wash potatoes. Pierce each potato several times with a large fork to allow steam to escape. Arrange potatoes in a circle in the microwave. Microwave at full (HIGH) for 11 to 14 minutes. When done, potatoes shoudl be almost tender in center when pierced with a fork. Wrap in foil and let stand for 5 minutes.

Serving ideas for sweet potatoes: toss them with peach jam, drained canned sliced peaches and a little lemon juice. Of you can drizzle hot sweet potatoes or yams with maple syrup, then sprinkle with nutmeg or allspice.

Spinach Mounds

½ cup no-fail hollandaise sauce
2 packages chopped spinach, cooked
3 ounce package cream cheese (softened)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons dry onion soup mix
1 teaspoon lemon juice
9 anned artichoke bottoms or thick tomato slices
Baking dish - 10"x6"
Time at high - 6 minutes

Prepare No-Fail hollandaise suace; keep warm in water bath. Drain spinach well in a sieve. Press out as much liquid as possible from spinach. In a bowl, combine hot spinach, cream cheese, butter, onion soup mix and lemon juice. Mix well. Rinse artichoke bottoms; pat dry. Place artichoke bottoms or tomato slices in a baking dish. Using a ¼ cup ice cream scoop, mound spinach mixture on artichoke bottoms or tomato slices. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 6 minutes or until heated through. Top with warm hollandaise sauce.

No-Fail Hollandaise Sauce

6 egg y olks
¼ cup lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 cup butter
½ teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
½ teaspoon grated fresh lemon peel
Glass measuring cup - 4 cup
Time at high - 2 minutes
Time at Medium heat - 9-10 minutes

In a blender container, combine egg yolks, lemon juice and pepper. Cover and blend at low speed until frothy. Place butter in a glass measuring cup. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 2 minutes. With blender at high speed, slowly pour in melted butter blending constantly until mixture is very thick. Stir in tarragon and lemon peel. Pour into same glass measuring cup. Microwave at MEDIUM HEAT for 9-10 minutes.

For the Kids:

Basic Vanilla Pudding

½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
Bowl - 2 qt.
Time at high (Milk Mixture) 6 to 7 minutes
Time at high (egg yolsk added) - 1 minute

In a bowl, combine sugar and cornstarch, mixing thoroughly. Whisk in milk. Microwave a full power (HIGH) for 6 to 7 minutes until mixture is thickened and bubbly, whisking 3 times. Stir small amount hot mixture into beaten egg yolks. Stir yolk mixture into hot mixture. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for time in chart or until thickened, whisking twice. Stir in vanilla. Cover surface of hot pudding with plastic wrap or waxed paper. Refrigerate until cool enough to serve.

Radio Advertising Promotions

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairy farmer advertising dollars are being extended through special promotions done by radio stations in American Dairy Association's and Dairy Council's (ADADC) marketing area.

Over the past year, ADADC media buyers have received more than just advertising time for the money invested to tell consumers the benefits of drinking milk. Special promotions such as "Revive and Energize at 3:35 p.m." on WRRS-FM in New York City told listeners to stop and take a milk break because "Milk is America's Health Kick" and everyone can revive and energize with a healthy snack. Also in New York City on WLTW-FM, a special promotion called "Light Lunch" was sponsored.

Another popular milk promotion conducted by ADADC and radio station WSEN-AM/FM in Syracuse, New York, was "Breakfast in Bed". This promotion reinforced the message that milk is part of a healthy breakfast by delivering breakfast in bed to 10 winners in its listening audience.

In the Harrisburg area, on WNNR-FM, a milk recipe contest aired. During a different time period, WIOV-FM conducted a milk trivia contest. On WABM-FM AND WSBA-AM, listeners also had the opportunity to submit their 10 best reasons why milk was the official beverage of the station.

Several similar milk promotions throughout ADADC's marketing area were conducted to further the message that milk and dairy products are a vital part of a well-balanced diet. ADADC will continue to include special promotions in its media package buys in order to stretch dairy farmer promotion dollars in today's market.

Lean Face Of Beef

Beef isn't what it used to be. In keeping with the times, beef has trimmed down and shaped up for the 1990s, resulting in a healthier "new" product.

Average beef cuts contain 27 percent less fat than its equivalent did just five years ago according to a national survey.

Beef is an excellent source of nutrients and , when broiled or roasted, adds significantly less fat to a diet than ever before. Because beef has a high proportion of nutrients compared to calories, it is called a nutrient-dense food. A 3-ounce serving of cooked beef provides a 30-year-old woman with 52 percent of recommended daily protein, 18 percent iron, and all vitamin B-12 and half the zinc. It has 183 calories.

To help health-conscious consumers select the leanest beef, industry experts have designated the "skinniest six" cuts, all of which have no more than 180 calories and 8.5 grams of fat per 3-ounce cooked serving. The skinniest six beef cuts are round tip, eye of round, top round, tenderloin, top loin, and top sirloin.

MEXICAN STEAK AND VEGETABLES

1½ -pound top round steak, 1-inch thick
2 tablespoons olive oil, divided
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
2 teaspoons ground cumin, divided
1½ teaspoons chili powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground red pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 large onion, cut into 8 wedges
1 medium green pepper, cut into 8 wedges
1 medium tomato, cut into 8 wedges
½ teaspoon dried oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine 1 tablespoon oil, lime juice, vinegar, 1 teaspoon cumin, chili powder, salt, red pepper, and garlic. Place steak and marinade in plastic bag or utility dish, turning once to coat. Tie bag securely or cover dish and marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours, turning at least once. Remove steak from marinade and place on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 8 to 10 minutes; turn and broil second side of steak 8 to 10 minutes, to desired degree of doneness, brushing with marinade occasionally. Meanwhile, heat remaining oil and cumin over medium-high heat in a large heavy non-stick frying pan. Add onion and green pepper and heat through. Carve steak into thin slices and serve with vegetables. Serves 4 to 6.

SALISBURY STEAKS WITH MUSHROOM GRAVY

2 pounds ground beef
3 tablespoons margarine
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon water
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons flour
½ cup dry bread cubes
1½ cups beef broth
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced

Combine beef, eggs, salt, and pepper in mixing bowl. Shape into 6 oval-sized steaks. Sprinkle both sides with bread crumbs and press firmly into steaks. Refrigerate about 45 minutes. Saute mushrooms in butter and oil until brown. Remove from pan. Fry steaks until done. Mix water and flour. Add to pan juices along with broth and mushrooms. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and stir until gravy thickens.

CHEESEBURGER BAKE

1½ pounds ground beef
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup chopped onion
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1½ cups catsup
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup grated American cheese

In heavy skillet, combine ground beef, flour, and onion; brown. Remove from heat. Add tomato sauce, catsup, salt and pepper; mix well. Pour into 8- or 9-inch square pan. Top with cheese. Prepare topping; place on top of meat mixture. Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Topping:
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt; cut in shortening; add milk. Stir until combined. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Knead 10 or 15 strokes. Roll into 8- or 9-inch square; cut into 8 pieces. Place on top of meat mixture.

BAKED FRENCH TOAST

½ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons light brown syrup
8¾ -inch thick slices French bread
1½ cup milk
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Combine butter, sugar, and syrup in saucepan. Heat until melted. Pour into 9x13-inch pan. Place bread on top of sugar mixture in one layer. Whisk eggs, milk, and cinnamon. Pour over bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake uncovered 35 to 40 minutes at 350 degrees until firm and spongy in center.

Top with blueberries, strawberries or peaches.

Silk isn't just silk anymore . . . it's sanded, sueded and washed silk. These new names refer to the new appearances and textures now popular on silk. These new silk fabrics have a much softer feel, sometimes described as a clammy-like feel. Consumers seem to either fall totally in love with this feel, or do not care for it at all. Many of the new silk fabrics have a chalky appearance which explains the sanded or sueded terminology associated with these fabrics. In the past, silk fabrics were known for having a high luster and sheen with a smooth appearance and feel. Today's silks often have a chalky appearance caused by the roughing up of the surface yarns, yet the fabric has a very soft hand due to the application of special finishes.

The different types of silk fabrics carry a variety of different care procedures. Some labels recommend dry cleaning, other suggest hand washing and hanging to dry; others may recommend machine washing and tumble drying. All of these items should be cared for according to the specific care labels.

Dry cleaners and consumers have been experiencing some complaints with repeated wear and care in reference to dulling of color, shiny areas, and loss of softness. In some cases with repeated wear, some of the roughed up, chafed surface yarns start to wear off. This allows the fabric to revert back to a smoother finish which will often cause a change in color. These areas will often become shinier and darker. This will usually be noticed first in areas that receive the most wear such as the seat, elbows, and shoulders.

A variety of techniques are being used to produce a definite and distinct texture and appearance in today's silk fabrics. These techniques will have varying degrees of resistance to conditions of wear, dry cleaning, and washing procedures.

VINEGAR: 10,000 YEARS OLD AND AS VERSATILE AS EVER

Vinegar was discovered by accident more than 10,000 years ago, and is still widely used today.

The French called vinegar "vinaigre", meaning sour wine or "wine gone past its time." Through the centuries, vinegar has been produced from molasses, sorghum, fruits, berries, melons, coconut, honey, beer, maple syrup, potatoes, beets, malt, grains and whey.

How is vinegar made from these many different sources? Vinegar is simply the fermentation of natural sugars to alcohol, then a secondary fermentation to vinegar.

Today, vinegar is being rediscovered as a household helper in food preparation, personal hygiene, clothing care and cleaning. For centuries good cooks have used vinegar in many different ways:

* Tenderizing less tender meats or game by adding vinegar to marinades.
* Keeping cheeses fresh and moist by wrapping them in cloths dampened with white wine vinegar.
* Preparing low-calorie salad dressings.
* Adding a teaspoon of wine vinegar to soups, gravies and sauces for a zesty taste.
* Soaking fish in vinegar and water for a whiter, less "fishy" tasting fish.
* Adding 1/4 teaspoon of white vinegar to three egg whites for an extra fluffy meringue.
* Using white wine vinegar for soups or other "too salty" foods, or to cut down on the "sugary" sweetness of many foods.

Ice Cream Awarded To Home Run Inning, Bill Board Contests

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — While the baseball season has come to a close, the bats of several Harrisburg Senators made sure that 14 area residents will enjoy a year's supply of ice cream. The winners received their prizes when Harrisburg Senator players hit homeruns in either the fourth inning, "Ice Cream Home Run Inning," or over the ice cream billboard in left center field.

"The contest was very successful for Pennsylvania's dairy farmers," said Brian Ross, program manager with the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. "Our ice cream promotion helped Giant Food Store managers promote sales of ice cream and gave consumers a greater awareness of Pennsylvania's large dairy and ice cream industries."

Each grand prize winner received 52 certificates for a half-gallon of Pensupreme Ice Cream. These certificates were provided by Pensupreme and Giant Food Stores, who also provided more than 400 consolation prizes, a half-gallon of ice cream, to radio contest participants. Giant customers entered the "Ice Cream Home Run Inning" contest at 10 area Giant store locations from Carlisle to Lebanon.

Winners in the radio portion of the contest, the "Ice Cream Home Run Inning," included: Kay Straub, of Carlisle; S.M. Eppley, Camp Hill; Jan Springer, Carlisle; Anne Mescan, Harrisburg; Doris Guelcher, York Haven; Elizabeth Sample, Harrisburg; Jean Fisher, Harrisburg; Katie McCaulie, Etters; and Pam Monismith, Carlisle. The radio contest was aired during every Harrisburg Senator broadcast on radio station WCMB-AM, of Harrisburg.

The swings of several Senators also provided stadium or billboard winners in the contest, including: David Haltberg, of Mechanicsburg; Michelle Smith, of Arnold, MD; Rose Natale, of Harrisburg; Clarence Moul, of Marysville; and Robert Campbell, Jr., of Camp Hill.

"Following the success of this promotion, we plan to conduct a similar contest in 1992," added Ross. "We hope that the winners have enjoyed their ice cream and will participate in the contest again next year."

ANSWER — Mrs. A. Sherman from Horse Valley requested animal cookie cutters. Contact Mary S. Martin, RD2, Box 274, Annville, Pa. 17003 or call (717) 865-3281, for cookie cutters and kitchen gadgets.

ANSWER — Melanie Jones, Annville, wanted a recipe for a creamy, white rice pudding. Thanks to Arlene Hershey, Oxford, who sent a recipe. She said that whole grade A milk must be used. Also, thanks to Anna Zerr, Geigertown, for sending a recipe.

Creamy Rice Pudding

Boil 2 minutes:
- ½ cup uncooked rice
- 1 cup water

Add and cook 40 minutes, stirring until creamy:
- 1 quart milk

Beat in separate bowl:
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup milk

Top Of Stove Rice Pudding

- 5 cups milk
- ½ cup rice, not instant
- ½ cup sugar, scant
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix 4 cups milk, sugar and salt. Bring to boiling point. Wash rice and add to hot milk. Simmer for 1 hour. Watch carefully. After soft, add 1 cup cold milk and vanilla. Remove and cool. The pudding will be creamy.

Anna writes: Stir often. Use River Rice. I don't use salt. This is a favorite of ours.

ANSWER — Anne Fenley, Perkasie, requested a recipe for Philadelphia cheese steak hoagies. Thanks to B. Light for sending a recipe that her brother-in-law who was born and raised in Philadelphia uses.

Philly Steak

- 4 minute steaks
- 4 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 extra large onion, cut in strips
- 8-ounces mozzarella cheese
- 4 long steak rolls
- 1 small can tomato sauce, optional

Fry minute steaks in 2 tablespoons oil for one minute on each side. Saute onions in 2 tablespoons vegetable oil until translucent. Layer steak, onions, and cheese on rolls. Place sandwiches under broiler until cheese melts. If desired, top with tomato sauce.

ANSWER — Nancy VanCott, New Milford, wanted a recipe for Mexican bread dough used to sculpture delicate-looking flowers. She said seven ingredients were used in the recipe. A reader sent the following recipe but it does not use seven ingredients. If someone has another recipe, send it, please.

Mexican Dough Art

- 2 cups baking soda
- 1 cup cornstarch
- 1¼ cups cold water

Combine ingredients in pan. Cook, stirring constantly for 5 minutes or until mixture thickens and forms into a ball.

Remove from heat, cool slightly. Knead by hand until smooth. Form into jewelry, figurines, small sculpture or object of art. Dry. Paint if desired, finish by spraying with a clear plastic to seal and protect.

ANSWER — Laura Bean, Hollywood, Md., requested a recipe for cinnamon cookies, which appeared on the back of a McCormick cinnamon can sometime between 1955 to 1960. Thanks to Rachel Heistand, Manheim, who sent a recipe from a McCormick can that sold for 15 cents during that era.

Golden Nuggets

Cream together:
- 1 cup butter
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 2 eggs

Sift together:
- 3½ cups all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Add to creamed mixture. Shape dough in small balls.

Mix:
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Roll balls in mixture. Place on greased baking sheet; press walnut half on each. Bake in 375 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 5 dozen.

HAMBURGER JIFFY

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3 tablespoons fat
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 8-ounce package broad noodles
- 2 small cans tomato sauce
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon oregano

Brown meat and onions in skillet, turning frequently. Prepare noodles according to directions on package. Drain noodles and spread noodles over the browned and seasoned hamburger. Pour warm tomato sauce with 2 teaspoons sugar and ½ teaspoon oregano over noodles. Cover skillet and cook for 20 minutes over low heat. Do not stir. Serves 4 to 6.

Mertztown

BARBECUED BEANS

- 1 cup kidney beans
- 1 cup lima beans, cooked and drained
- 1 large can pork and beans
- 1 pound ground beef
- ½ pound bacon
- ½ teaspoon mustard
- 1 teaspoon catsup
- ½ teaspoon vinegar
- ½ cup brown sugar
- Salt to taste
- 1 cup onion

Drain kidney beans. Brown bacon, pour off drippings. Brown ground beef and onion lightly. Pour beans and meat mixture into a 2-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes, covered, then 30 minutes, uncovered.

MEXICAN BEEF STIR-FRY

- 1 pound beef top round steak
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 red bell pepper, cut into thin strips
- 1 medium onion, cut into wedges
- 1 to 2 jalapeno peppers, cut into slivers
- 3 cups sliced romaine lettuce, cut ¼ -inch

Cut beef top round steak into ¼ -inch thick strips. Combine oil, cumin, oregano and garlic, reserve half. Heat half the seasoned oil in large nonstick frying pan over medium-high heat until hot. Add red pepper, onion, and jalapeno pepper; stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes or until crisp-tender. Remover and reserve. In same pan stir-fry beef strips (half at a time) in reserved oil 1 to 2 minutes. Return vegetables to pan and heat through. Serve beef mixture over lettuce. Serves 4.

Food Safety Program To Be Held November 16

FOREST HILL, Md. — The Cooperative Extension Service, Harford County, has scheduled a program "The Food Safety Chain: From Production To You" for Saturday, November 16, at 8:30 a.m. at the Harford County Extension Service offices in Forest Hill, MD (2335 Rock Spring Road). This program will focus on the food safety and nutrition efforts of local producers, food service, retail and processing industries.

Highlighting the morning program session will be an on-farm safety discussion from a local fruit and vegetable producer, Don Hoopes. Mr. Hoopes also serves as president of the Harford County Farm Bureau and will present materials relating to local, state, and national initiatives for production of safe food commodities. To add to this local discussion will be Sam Poster, of the Harford County Health Department, explaining state and local safety regulations.

Dr. Paul Steiner of the horticulture department at the University of Maryland, College Park will speak on pesticide reduction practices and Integrated Pest Management (IPM).

Adding a food service flavor will be Linda Howe, sales representative for McDonalds Corporation of Columbia, Md. Ms. Howe's discussion will focus on the food service industry's efforts on both food safety and nutrition in processing and new product development.

The afternoon program is highlighted by a tus tour of county food service and production enterprises. These inlcude Klein's Superthrift (retail merchandising), McDonalds (food service), Merry-Lar Dairy Farm (dairy and milk production) and Whiteford Packing, Inc. (vegetable processing).

Program participation is limited and preregistration is required. Registration fee is $10 a person due Friday, November 8. Details are available at the Harford County Extension offices in Forest Hill or (301) 838-6000, Ext. 255.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Fay Leslie, Woodstown, N.J., would like a recipe for old-fashioned horehound candies made from the herb. Thanks to Helen Kirsch, Carrolltown, for sending a recipe that is made from the hoarhound herb.

HOARHOUND CANDY

1⅓ teaspoons pressed hoarhound
1¼ cup boiling water
⅓ cup white corn syrup
2 cups sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt

Pour water over hoarhound herb. Allow to stand 10 minutes. Strain. Combine sugar, salt, syrup, and water from hoarhound. Boil to soft crack stage. Pour in thin sheet onto well-buttered baking sheet. Mark into squares before candy hardens.

ANSWER — Ruth Ann Zeiset, Manheim, said that she tried the recipe for sweet potato biscuits from Iris Givens. Although they were delicious, they only raised to a ¼ -inch thickness. She asked if the baking powder should be 3 tablespoons instead of 3 teaspoons? Iris Givens replied that the recipe calls for 3 tablespoons baking powder.

ANSWER — Frances Keith, Oxford, would like a recipe for barbecue sauce, often used by organizations, that is sprayed on rather than brushed on. Thanks to B. Light, Lebanon, for sending a recipe.

Barbecue Sauce

½ cup sugar
½ cup vinegar
½ cup water
4 tablespoons butter

Combine ingredients in a pan, bring to a boil. Cook for 5 minutes. Pour into spray bottle and spray mixture on while warm.

ANSWER — Regina Bauer wanted a recipe to can catsup that has the consistency of store-bought catsup. Thanks to Vickie Copp, York, and to Rhoda Sauder, York, for sending recipes that they think are the best.

Catsup

4 quarts ripe tomatoes, peeled, cored, and squeezed
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped sweet pepper
1½ teaspoons celery seed
1 teaspoon whole allspice
1 teaspoon mustard seed
1 stick cinnamon
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1½ cups vinegar
1 tablespoon paprika
2 tablespoons cornstarch mixed in 2 tablespoons water

Cook tomatoes, onion, and peppers until soft and put through a food mill. Cook mixture rapidly for about 1 hour or until thick. Tie spices in cheesecloth bag, add to tomato juice with sugar and salt. Cook gently 25 minutes. Stir frequently. Add vinegar, paprika, and cornstarch mixture. Stir while adding. Cook until thickened. Remove spice bag, jar, and seal. Makes about 3 pints.

Catsup

½ bushel tomatoes

Pour boiling water over tomatoes to loosen skins. Slip skins, core and squeeze out some juice and seeds. Cook until soft. Put in colanders and let juice drain several hours or overnight.

Put pulp through blender for smoothness, then through food mill to remove seeds.

Add to pulp:
2 cups vinegar
4 cups sugar
4 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon dried basil
1 tablespoon paprika
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1½ teaspoons dry mustard

In porous material spice bag, add:
1 tablespoon whole cloves
2 tablespoons whole allspice
1 tablespoon whole peppercorns
½ stick cinnamon
4 bay leaves

Simmer slowly 30 minutes or more, stirring often. Add ¼ cup clear jell mixed with a little water. Simmer until thickened. Remove spice bag. Can in pint jars by processing 10 minutes in boiling water bath.

Pumpkin Patch Fun

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — More than 150 kindergarten children searched thousands of pumpkins that grow at MAP Farms in Womelsdorf to find a perfect pumpkin. With the help of Pumpkin Lady Sally Royer and owners of MAP Farms, Michael and Martene Firestine, the children found a favorite pumpkin to take home for Halloween.

A bus took the children from the Conrad Weiser School District to the farm. Then the children took a bumpy hayride to the vine-filled pumpkin patch.

For some, the search took longer than it did others. But each child returned with a pumpkin and a grin from ear to ear.

After another bumpy hayride to the farm, the Pumpkin Lady distributed milk, lemonade, and cookies.

The Firestines told the children about the different kinds of pumpkins raised in the field. The larger pumpkins with dark ribbing are called Happy Jack, which are mostly used to carve Jack-O-Lanterns. The smaller pumpkins are called Spookies, which can be used to make faces and to make pies, cookies, and cakes.

The children learned that making Jack-O-Lanterns are a Halloween tradition. "If you feel happy, you will probably carve a happy face," Mr. Firestine told the children. "If you are feeling sad, maybe you will carve an sad face," he said.

The children returned to school where they drew pictures of their visit to the pumpkin patch. Then they took the pumpkins home where they will either use the pumpkin for decoration or help their mother make cookies, pies, or cake from it.

For more than 10 years, school classes have been visiting MAP Farms to choose a pumpkin. Mr. Firestine, who heads the agriculture lending group at Lebanon Valley Bank, said he and his coworkers enjoy getting acquainted with the children.

"The children are so tickled with the pumpkins and we enjoy th opportunity to provide them with a day of fun," said Mrs. Firestine.

"What do you think of this pumpkin?" the Pumpkin Lady asked two girls who were searching for the perfect pumpkin.

Before the children searched the pumpkin patch, Michael Firestine explained the difference between pumpkins called Happy Jacks and Spookies.

The Pumpkin Lady came to the rescue when pumpkins were too heavy for the kindergarteners to carry.

Seven Counties Compete For State Wool Contest

BY GAY N. BROWNLEE

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Twenty participants gathered at the Ramada Inn for the annual, seven county, District IV, Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool contest. District IV includes the counties of Somerset, Bedford, Cambria, Blair, Fulton, Franklin and Huntingdon.

Set to head for West Middlesex next month for the state competition are division winners; Debbie Black, pre-teen; Jodell Rhoads, junior; Julia Ann Keafer, senior; and Susan Clites, adult. Their alternates are Jeanna Svonavec, Jennifer Black, Tammie Frazier, and Ruth Goddard.

Appearing in a red solid and plaid, two-piece ensemble, Jodell Rhoads wore the outfit voted "Contestant's Choice," by her competitiors. In August, the garment was also voted as "Best of Show", at the Somerset County Fair held in Meyersdale.

Going to the opposite side of the color spectrum, adult winner, Susan Clites constructed and modeled a two-piece wool suit combining a slim navy skirt with a jade and navy jacket.

Using the wool material that she had won at last year's contest, Debbie Black, pre-teen winner, coordinated a red sweater and dark skirt for her contest entry.

Garments sewn and modeleld by other contestants included shorts, skirts, suits and sweaters, all of 80 percent or more wool content. Tweeds joined the plaids and solids and many of the garments were fully lined. Some of the accent pieces included scarves and wool hats.

With the basic message that wool material is both beautiful and versatile, durable and wearable, the fashion show segment of competition was held in the Inn's Tropical Courtyard in a setting of greenery, masonry planters, tables, chairs and walkways.

District IV director, Barbara Shaffer, Hooversville, coordinated the affair. Greta Mostoller moderated the fashion show. Judges of the garments were Linda Maust, Dorothy Naugle, connie Marteeny, Karen Marteeny, Patty Smith and Rose Yonai. Christine Long and Marsha Wysocki were the monitors.

From sloppy material to pen-packed manure with bedding, New Holland side-delivery spreaders handle a variety of materials quickly and cleanly. They also spread poultry, free-stall and gutter manure from barn cleaners.

New Holland side-delivery spreaders give you precise control over the amount of material per acre. Spreading rates are hydraulically controlled, providing uniform spread patterns. The Ford New Holland warranty gives you full protection against tank rust-through for ten years. High-strength, corrosion-resistant steel, also used in other areas of the spreader, assures maximum durability and performance.

Now New Holland side-delivery spreaders come in six capacities, from 1,000 gallons all the way up to 2,400 gallons. See the full line of New Holland side-delivery spreaders today.

Farm Women Celebrate At County Convention

READING (Berks Co.)— The 40th annual convention of Berks County Farm Women was held recently at Haag's Hotel in Shartlesville with 122 members and guests present.

The convention was called to order by president Joan Leib.

The morning session was opened by singing "God Bless America" followed by devotions by Joan Andris and Joyce Scott of Group #10.

Greetings were made by Doris Brown followed by a guest vocalist, Amy Breidegan, a ninth grade student at Tulpehocken High School.

Kelly Geisinger, Berks County Dairy Princess, presented a presentation entitled "Milk Is No Illusion." Rachel Hartman, mini-dairy princess, sang a song entitled "Cows."

The auditing committee consisted of Celeste manbeck and Sylvia Scharff.

Dorinda Lingle was nominated for county treasurer.

Arlene Witman, state president, said that the State Convention for 1992 will be a one-day affair on January 13.

Marie Baughman asked for names for her stuffed heifer and asked for essays on what the Farm Women have done to brighten the corner and spread happiness.

Naomi Bupp reported that 4,500 state cookbooks have been sold.

The Memorial Service was conducted by Sandy Rauenzahn and Karen Mohn.

The attendance award was presented by Martha Klahr to Group #8 who had 75% of their group in attendance.

Scrapbook awards were presented by Joan Andris to Group #10, Group #12, and Group #11.

Safety awards were presented to each group by Darlene Yost.

Youth awards were presented to each group by Dorinda Lingle.

A silent auction was held after which door prizes were awarded.

PDPP Workshops Offer Opportunity To Learn, Share

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — County dairy promoters across Pennsylvania recently participated in six regional promotion workshops conducted by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. The workshops were designed to provide educational information and a forum where promoters could share successful promotions and ideas.

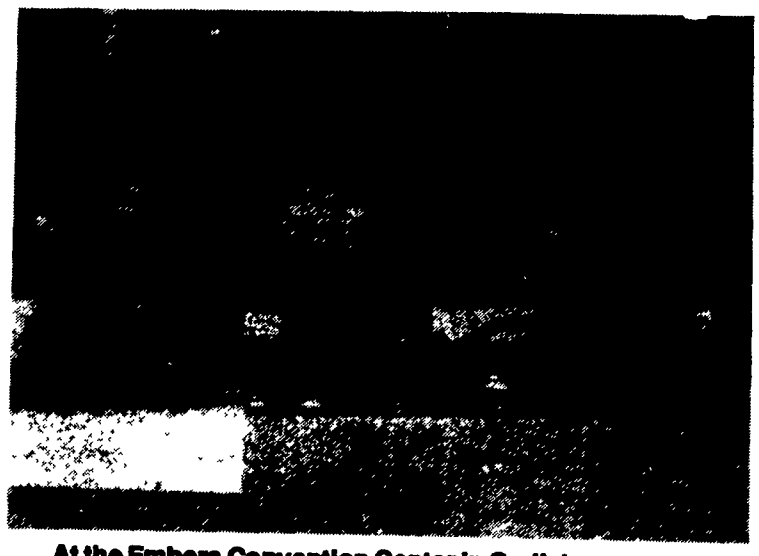
During a week span, nearly 90 promoters representing more than 40 county promotion committees discussed dairy marketing issues, volunteer recruitment, funding sources, and promotion evaluations. The latter was the focus of several work sessions where promoters shared their successful promotions and then evaluated the promotions in a group session.

"We were very pleased with promoters interest in our workshops," said Betsy Dupuis, PDPP promotions specialist. "Everyone came prepared to share information, ask good questions, and learn more from each other."

Ideas presented during the week included: holding free milkbreaks at interstate reststops; conducting seasonal promotions with area hospitals; dairy fun nights at county fairs; sponsorship of a bloodmobile; holiday train ride promotions; Christmas in the classroom; and ice cream extravaganzas. A complete list of the ideas presented at the workshops is available from the PDPP.

Promoters seemed to appreciate the workshops with comments like "I learned more in depth marketing statistics, promotion activities, and what's happening in our industry," and "I liked the idea of setting priorities and evaluating the effectiveness of our projects."

Others were appreciative of specific workshop segments like volunteer recruitment and effective planning. "I enjoyed learning how to stay 'perky' as a volunteer and encourage newcomers to join dairy promotion activities," and "I liked the planning session and working together to make better programs."



At the Embers Convention Center in Carlisle, representatives of Adams, York, Cumberland and Perry Counties prepare their ideas to share with other committee representatives present. They also met together as a group to evaluate each promotion and to determine the most effective and efficient promotions for their particular counties.

The PDPP organized the workshops to help make local promoters more aware of current trends in the dairy promotion industry and offer new promotion ideas for effective local promotion efforts. Because of these concerns, all counties receiving funding from the PDPP were required to attend one of the six workshops.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Over the years, I've often mentioned that I'd like to walk the Appalachian Trail.

So, the other Sunday my husband talked of taking a drive to see the fall leaves. And, he added that we could go on the Appalachian Trail too. We drove to Pine Grove, on Route 501 where the trail crosses the highway.

We started north on a very stony path. The small rocks were one against the other and they were pointed. I do not have hiking boots and the soles of my shoes were rather thin. Thus, we only walked a short distance before turning back and finding another wider path that had been used by trucks but now as set shut with boulders.

Some of the small maple trees had bright red and yellow leaves. The oak trees did not seem to have dropped many acorns or else the squirrels already had carried them off.

When we took a downward trail on the other side of the highway, we came to a lookout point where a number of hikers had stopped. The view from this vantage point was spectacular. Although, I admit that I get an odd feeling when I'm close to a precipice.

I'm afraid that at my age, I could not shoulder a 40-pound pack and walk 15 miles a day over roots, rocks and slippery mud. About 1,500 hardy souls go the entire 2,144 miles through 14 states from Georgia to Maine each year. The Appalachian Trail is the longest continuous footpath in the United States. And, older Americans, over 50 years of age, make up 40% of the hikers.

Plan For Carefree Holidays

NEWARK, De. — Don't let the excitement of holiday giving spirit away your budget, warns Roxane Whittaker, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension home economist.

"The winter holiday season often requires a little budget stretching," says Whittaker. "But to many people, the stretch feels more like a tug-of-war: you feel pulled between what you'd like to do and what you can afford to do. It doesn't have to be difficult—not if you make realistic goals and stick to them."

Begin by making alist of the people you want to remember with a gift. Set limits on the price range and stay within it. And most important, know what you can afford. Before you go shopping, decide how much you can afford to buy on credit, and whether or not you want to dip into savings.

"Examine your budget," the home economist suggests. "If you find you have less money to spend than what you need to complete your gift buying, reevaluate the number of people on the list and the level of gifts you are considering."

Whittaker also recommends you make holiday budgeting a family affair. Include all family members in holiday budget discussions and decisions.

If gift buying is out of the question, making gifts may be an alternative. Special foods from your kitchen or handcrafted items are personal and valued for their thoughtfulness. And gifts or services, such as baby-sitting, carwashing, pet care or housecleaning, Whittaker adds, do not tax the budget yet are greatly appreciated by the recipient.

Although gifts often take the biggest bite out of your holiday budget, other expenses must be planned for as well. Whittaker advises you consider the costs of seasonal foods, cards and gift wrap, charities, special events and travel when putting together a holiday budget.

"The best plan for a carefree holiday is a budget you can live with," says Whittaker. "The spirit that makes the holiday happyt doesn't require your spending a lot.

Hammer Creek Mennonite Women Compile Cookbook From Mother's Cupboard

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HAMMER CREEK (Lancaster Co.) — As a tribute to mothers, grandmothers, and great grandmothers who have passed on the art of cooking and for children who are the cooks of tomorrow, women from Hammer Creek Mennonite Church have published a cookbook.

From Mother's Cupboard includes 785 favorite recipes including microwave cooking, entertaining ideas, a history of the church, and numerous household hints.

Compiling a cookbook is no easy task, but Ruth Thomas, chairperson for the event, and Anna Mary Wenger, treasurer, are eager to share their expertise.

First, Ruth suggests, decide what type of cookbook you want. She and her committee examined many cookbooks. Some were difficult to read, some fell apart easily, some would not lay flat when opened. The committee decided on an easy-to-read style with wire spiral binding that does not come apart like the plastic spiral type. The cookbook cover is of durable, washable laminate.

Artwork for the cover and the book's dividers was drawn by Rosanne Burkholder of Ephrata.

Ruth has a word of advice to others who want to publish a cookbook: Always pick people who can do a better job than you to help.

Ruth chose Edith Schnupp, secretary; Anna Mary Wenger, treasurer; Joan Auker, Irene Burkholder, and Yvonne Martin to help her.

Church members were handed a color assortment of paper on which to print their recipes. Dessert recipes were written on pink sheets, vegetables and salads on green sheets, breads on yellow paper, main dishes on white, and miscellaneous on blue. The colors made the job of categorizing the recipes easy.

Typists Esther Martin, Yvonne Martin, Jean Shank, and June Stoltzfus typed the 785 recipes. Della Oberholtzer, Marian Kreider, and Irene Burkholder proofread the copy and the typists made the corrections.

Ruth believes that many cookbooks have an inadequate index. What good is a cookbook if you can't find the recipe you want?" she asked.

She took the responsibility to compile an in-depth index, which the publishing company charged extra money to print.

"But it's worth it," Anna Mary said. "It's the best indexed cookbook you'll find."

The publishing company mailed a galley of the book on which the women needed to make corrections.

"That was probably the hardest part," Anna Mary said. "The copy had so many typographical errors."

The proofreaders went to work and made the corrections. After the committee returned the corrected copy, 2,000 copies of the books were in their hands within two weeks.

Although the finished book brought a sense of accomplishment, even more rewarding are the comments the committee hears about the cook book.

"Everyone likes trying new recipes. It's the topic of conversation for men and women," Anna Mary said.

Those who purchased the book are pleased with the special section on entertaining. Julie Heller, wife of Fred Heller who is both pastor of the Hammer Creek Mennonite Church and farmer, wrote a special section on entertaining guests. She tells how not to panic when unexpected guests arrive, quick-fix menus, how to make guests feel welcome, and special touches for elegant dining.

An unusual feature of the cookbook, is a brief history of the Hammer Creek Mennonite Church, dating back to the early 1700s. "Many good cooks like history, too," said Anna Mary Wenger of the decision to include several pages of history.

The history relates that the area was named Hammer Creek because three large forge hammers were located along the creek where the thump of the 500-pound hammers echoed throughout the area. Stories are included about the church first meeting in homes, a migration of Hammer Creek Mennonites to Canada, and details about the three meetinghouses erected on the land.

For a copy of From Mother's Cupboard, send $13, which covers the cost of the book, postage and handling, to Anna Mary Wenger, 390 Sleepy Hollow Road, Lititz, PA 17543.

DUTCH BABIES

For 2 to 3 quart casserole:
¼ cup butter
3 eggs
¾ cup milk
¾ cup flour
Salt to taste

Put butter into casserole. Set into 425 degree oven while mixing batter; butter will melt. Put eggs in blender on high for 1 minute. Gradually pour in milk. Slowly add flour and salt. Continue whirling for 30 seconds. Pour batter slowly into casserole with melted butter. Bake until puffy and browned. Serve warm with syrup.

Janella Landis

SCRAPPLE

2 quarts water
3 pounds pork puddings
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
4 cups corn meal
¾ cup whole wheat flour
1 quart water

Place the water, puddings and salt in a heavy 6-quart kettle. Bring to a boil. Mix corn meal and flour together. Add 1 quart water. Add this mixture to the boiling mixture and simmer for 1 hour or until wooden spoon will stand alone in the middle of kettle. Pour mixture into loaf pans and completely cool. Slice and fry in hot fat.

Ruth Thomas

BAKED OATMEAL

½ cup oil
2 eggs
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
3 cups oatmeal
1 teaspoon salt

Mix together oil, sugar, and eggs. Add remaining ingredients. Pour in greased cake pan and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve hot with milk.

Variation: Instead of oil and white sugar, use 1 stick margarine, melted, and 1 cup brown sugar. Add ½ cup raisins or cinnamon apples, if desired.

MAPLE-FLAVORED SYRUP FOR PANCAKES

2 cups sugar
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
2 cups water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon maple flavor

Combine sugars, corn syrup, and water. Stir until dissolved. Bring to a boil. Cover and boil gently for 10 minutes. Do not stir. Remove from heat. Cool slightly. Add vanilla and maple flavoring. Stir only until mixed. Makes about 1 quart.

Violet Noll

TING-A-LINGS

2 6-ounce packages chocolate chips
2 6-ounce packages butterscotch chips
5½ ounce can chow mein noodles
½ cup small peanuts or cashews

In saucepan, combine chocolate and butterscotch chips. Melt, stirring constantly, over low heat. Remove from heat and stir in noodles and nuts. Mix quickly to coat evenly. Drop by teaspoonful onto waxed paper and cool.

Irene Haller

SOUR CREAM APPLE PANCAKES

¾ cup flour
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cups apple, grated
1¼ cups sour cream
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a large bowl, combine dry ingredients. In another bowl, combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Add to dry ingredients and stir until just blended. Preheat griddle, grease if necessary. Using ¼ cup batter for each, pour into skillet and flatten slightly. Bake pancakes about 3 to 5 minutes. Turn and bake other side. Makes about 12.

Radio Spots Aim At Baby Boomers

Syracuse, N.Y. — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) is airing three new 60-second radio spots expounding the virtues of milk.

The campaign is directed at increasing milk consumption among baby boomers adults ages 25 to 49. Boomers represent 38 percent of the population and 30 percent of all milk sales. Looking and feeling younger is important to them and they have a strong interest in their health and appearance.

"Take a long, hard look at yourself. You stand for hours in front of that bathroom mirror. You fuss with you hair... all in pursuit of 'the look.' Well friend, now it's time to look within... and build your body from the inside out," says the commercial, "Build your body!"

"Indulge and Enrich" focuses on slowing down a hectic pace and enjoying a "cold, quiet glass of milk... therapy for your body, food for your soul."

Another spot, "Drink Your Milk," conjures up memories of being told what to do as a child. Now that consumers are older, they should decide for themselves to reap the nutritional benefits of milk. "You're all grown up now, my friend," says the spot. "Do you really need to be told to drink your milk?

Each radio spot is individually punctuated with new, original music designed to vitalize and dramatize the message, "The answer is in a glass of milk!"

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Society of Farm Women No. 8 met on October 9, at the home of Elaine Fuhrman in Maytown.

The program was given by Kathy's Flower Works of Marietta demonstrating Fall flower arrangements. The November 13, meeting will be held at the home of Alice Walter in Elizabethtown at which time all members are to pay their dues for 1992.

Lancaster Society 19

On Oct. 14, Lancaster Farm Women's Society #19 celebrated Farm Women's Day by having a dinner meeting at 6:00 at General Sutter Inn, Lititz. After enjoying a luscious meal, members spent some time reminiscing about experiences in past years.

President Esther Landis reminded members about the County Convention which will be held at the Farm and Home Center on Nov. 2. Plans were made again for packing and selling nuts during November and December.

The next meeting will be held at Hammer Creek Church with Wilma Slaymaker serving as hostess, Marian Long will talk to us about antique plates.

Lancaster Society 14

Lancaster Farm Women Society 14 met at the Hollinger House to entertain Society #18.

Following the luncheon, Robert Wiley, a professor at the Lancaster Bible College, portrayed George Witefield a spiritual leader in the early 1700s. His relationship with the life of Jonathan and Sara Edwards was inserted in his story.

Hostess Jean Thomas gave the history of what is known as the Hollinger House built in 1870.

The treasurer reported that the September auction amounted to $362. Annual dues of $4 were collected. The Coupon Books are here and for sale.

Berks Society 4

The October meeting of Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 was held at Christophers Restaurant to celebrate Farm Women's Day.

A short business meeting prior to the meal was conducted by president Elsie Rothenberger. An invitation was received from Berks County Group 7 to attend their 25th Anniversary on October 23 at Conrad Weiser High School. Bingo is being planned for Berks Heim Annex on November 14. Each member received a Halloween favor. Evelyn Becker won the door prize.

A Tupperware party and everybody's birrthday party will be held at the next meeting at the Boyertown RD #1 home of Lottie Burkepile on November 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Symposium Spurs Low-Fat Pork Sausage

CHICAGO, IL — Low-fat pork sausage will be a commonplace in supermarkets and foodservice outlets if indications by 140 processors, suppliers and food technologists hold true.

A checkoff-funded symposium September 23, co-sponsored by the Pork Industry Group of the National Live Stock and Meat Board and the National Pork Producers Council through a grant from the National Pork Board, brought attention to what may be the hottest new pork product in the next few months.

The symposium featured presentations from 11 companies or institutions that have developed a low-fat pork sausage technology, all based on the goal of maintaining flavor texture and juiciness, while eliminating much of the fat. Fat replacing ingredients ranged from soy protein, oat bran and modified food starch to carrageenan.

AEB Begins Special Egg Safety Project

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — The American Egg Board recently hired Connie Cahill to serve as food safety specialist, focusing her efforts on the Northeast region of the United States.

Connie's job is to conduct a concentrated egg safety education program, targeting managers of commercial and non-commercial foodservice operations.

Egg safety-focused seminars, workshops, and exhibits are being planned throughout the area, involving whenever possible scheduled major meetings of state and regional foodservice associations.

Connie is a media and public relations consultant whose clients include many Fortune 500 companies such as Thomas J. Lipton, Inc.; Oscar Mayer Foods Corporation; Del Monte; and Perdue, Inc. Members of the egg industry may remember Connie's years of public relations work with the Ohio Poultry Association and more recent efforts for the Michigan Allied Poultry Industries Association.

During the recent Northeast Trade Show in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Connie met with area egg producers to discuss their ideas for the direction of the program and to enlist their help with the project. She is also working closely with AEB's Foodservice Department and utilizing existing AEB egg handling materials.

AEB Board Members feel that this program can make an impact on proper handling of eggs in foodservice operations throughout the Northeast. Producers across the nation will benefit should Salmonella outbreaks diminish and the media spotlight turn away from eggs.

If you have any comments on this program, contact Alice Heinze, food service manager, at (708) 296-7043 or Connie Cahill, food safety specialist, at (614) 792-1931.

Scholarships Available For Ag Students

CHICAGO — The Chicago Mercantile Exchange is challenging students of agriculture to cash in on their writing skills by entering the 1992 Beef Industry or Pork Industry Scholarship Programs, administered respectively by the National Cattlemen's Foundation (NCF) and the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC).

A total of eight $2,500 scholarships will be awarded through the two scholarship programs. The four beef industry scholarship winners will be announced at the National Cattlemen's Association Convention in January and the four pork industry scholarship winners will be announced at the Pork Industry Forum in March. Additionally, one of the top four winners in each industry will receive an all-expense-paid trip to that industry's convention. To qualify for one of the eight scholarships, students must:

- Be enrolled in a two-year swine program or in the College of Agriculture at a four-year institution;
- Write a brief letter indicating what role the student anticipates playing in the industry after graduation;
- Write an original 750 word essay, identifying an issue confronting the beef or pork industry, and proposing a solution;
- Obtain two letters of reference from current or former professors or industry professionals;
- Prepare a cover sheet with applicant's: (1) name, (2) complete mailing address and telephone number, (3) school name, (4) year in school and (5) permanent mailing address and telephone number; and
- Enclose the above items in a single envelope and submit to the appropriate industry organization:

Submissions for the CME Beef Industry Scholarship Program should be sent to Donald Butler, Chairman, National Cattlemen's Foundation, 1301 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Suite 300; Washington, DC 20004-1701 no later than Dec. 16. 1991. Questions regarding the Beef Industry Scholarship Program should be directed to Pamela Fyock, 202/347-0228.

Submissions for the CME Pork Industry Scholarship Program should be mailed to Ernie Barnes, National Pork Producers Council, Box 10383, Des Moines, LA 50306 no later than Dec. 31. 1991. For more information on the CME Pork Industry Scholarship Program, contact Ernie Barnes, 515/223-2600.

Obesity And Heart Disease

If you're overweight and your blood cholesterol level is high, losing weight should be your top priority.

Obesity is associated with high blood pressure, heart disease, stroke, diabetes and some cancers. The effect of losing weight on decreasing blood cholesterol is now thought to be as effective as decreasing saturated fat in the diet and more effective than decreasing dietary cholesterol. Obesity also decreases HDLs (the "good" cholesterol) and raises LDLs (the "bad" cholesterol). Blood cholesterol can be elevated by as much as 8 mg/dl with each five-pound increase in body fat.

To lose weight, you need to burn more calories than you consume, so increase your activity level and cut those incoming calories! Because one gram of fat contains more than twice as many calories as the same amount of protein or carbohydrate, you should eat less fat. By cuffing back on total fat, you'll also be eating less saturated fat, the kind that's largely responsible for raising blood cholesterol. As long as you don't replace the missing fat with larger amounts of other foods, you'll reduce your blood cholesterol level while you lose weight.

Eating less fat isn't as difficult as you might think, but don't try to do it overnight. Love that salad dressing? Just eat less of it, or find a dressing that contains less or no fat. Trim visible fats off meats and take the skin off chicken. Substitute broiling and baking for frying. Switch from butter to margarine (less saturated fat) and use half the usual amount. Slowly change from whole milk to skim and from ice cream to ice milk. You'll soon be amazed at how your taste buds have adjusted! With the addition of some daily exercise, you'll be on the way to success.

Remember that cholesterol is the least important dietary factor affecting blood cholesterol. Fortunately, the great nutrition of eggs allows them to fit nicely into your new diet. A Large egg has only 5 grams of fat--that's about one teaspoon—lots of vitamins and minerals and 6 grams of top-quality protein, all for a mere 75 calories.

Students Participate in Dairy Label Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In recognition of Pennsylvania's dairy industry, over 7,000 youngsters, in 250 fourth-grade homerooms, are competing to win prizes for their classrooms. Homerooms are battling to gather the most points in the contest, by collecting labels from dairy products produced in Pennsylvania, and subsequently win RCA televisions and video cassette recorders.

In addition to the televisions and VCRs, winning classes will be treated to ice cream sundae parties and the top three students, by points, will win bikes, boom boxes, or walkmans. All teachers in the contest are also eligible to win "Creative Teacher Awards," cash prizes that can be used to buy nutrition education materials.

The contest, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and the PA Department of Agriculture, runs from November 4, to December 2, 1991. Winning homerooms will be announced during the second week of December. Further information about the contest is available by calling Briggs at (717) 787-5086.

4-H Pig Club Round-Up Held

The 49th annual Franklin County 4-H Club Show and Sale was held on Saturday, August 10 at the Greencastle Livestock Market with 74 head going across the auction block, according to county agent Bill Reagan.

The grand champion weighing 250 pounds was shown by Roger Carbaugh, Mercersburg, and purchased by Hatfield Packing Co., Hatfield PA for $2.35 per pound.

Reserve champion honors went to Braden Eaton, Dry Run, with his 230 pound crossbred purchased by Sellers Hog Buying Station, Greencastle, for $2.00 per pound.

The champion pair was shown by David Sheiss, Marion, and averaged 247 pounds and were purchased by W.R. Sellers, Greencastle for $1.85 per pound.

The reserve pair shown by Seth Walk weighing 220 pounds each were purchased by Wayne Feed and Supply Co. of Chambersburg for $1.00 per pound.

In summary, the 74 project animals sold averaged $90.58 per hundred weight at an average weight of 229.6 pounds. The sale value was $15,389.33, representing 16,000 pounds of pork-on-the hoof.

The show was judged by Franklin Feeser, a swine breeder and pork producer from Taneytown, MD

Roger Carbaugh, Mercersburg, and Judge Franklin Feeser, with the Grand Champion 4-H market pig shown at the recent Franklin County 4-H Pig Club Round-up.

Somerset 4-H'ers To Represent State At National 4-H Congress

GEHL®

Gehl Skid Loaders Win Hands Down

Precise bucket and drive control is easy with Gehl's exclusive Load-Trak T-bar hand controls.

Performance features include:

- Tilt-back cab - Provides easy engine access for servicing
- Quick-Lock attachment system - For fast attachment changes
- Eight models - With SAE operating capacities from 750 to 2,050 lbs. to meet your needs.
- A choice of gas or diesel engines - Rated from 20 to 60 horsepower.
- Large selection of attachments - Means versatility

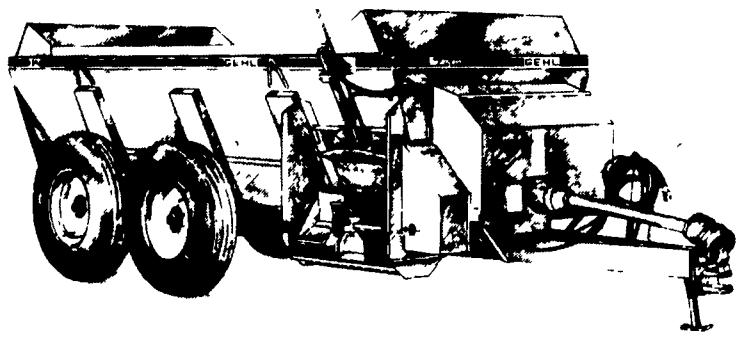
North America's #1-Selling V-Tank Spreader



The Gehl Scavenger® II is the "original" V-Tank spreader and still the best. It delivers outstanding performance in all types of manure, from liquid to semi-solid to pen-packed or even frozen manure.

- Patented square-tube auger - Hydraulically powers up and down to break up solid material.
- Variflo discharge - Spreads smoothly and evenly for complete application control
- Five models - From 192 to 596 bushel heaped capacities to match your operation
- 10-year warranty - Against rust-through on the tank for peace of mind.
- Options include - Truck-mounted units and hydraulic lids

If you handle mostly solid manure, a Gehl box spreader has the performance features you want at a price you'll appreciate. Features include special Gehl-Tuff flooring that prevents the apron from freezing to the floor and lets manure slide out with little resistance; 12-gauge, corrosion-resistant GEHL STEEL sides for strength and endurance; wide-spread beater paddles for wide, even spreads; constant velocity pto; and a standard two-speed worm drive transmission. Add a 10-year warranty on the floor and sides and you have an unbeatable package available only from your Gehl dealer.

Keystone Shepherd Symposium Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 6th annual Keystone Shepherds' Symposium will be held November 22-24 at the Ramada Inn in West Middlesex, Pa.

"This year's symposium should be of particular interest to sheep producers who want to direct-market their lambs," said Clair Engle, co-chair of the event and professor of animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "The event will feature hands-on lamb grading demonstrations, as well as educational sessions on methods for calculating carcass cutability and coordinating in-store lamb promotion programs."

Friday's highlights will include seminars on sheep health by Dr. Donald Bailey of Roseburg, Oregon. Dr. Linda Detweiler, U.S. Department of Agriculture Veterinary Health Services, will give an update on the scrapie issue. Rita Kourlis, vice president of marketing of the American Sheep Industry Council, will discuss wool marketing strategies for the farm-flock producer. The annual meeting and officer elections for the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association will be held at 7:45 Friday evening.

On Saturday, Nov. 23, the "Make It With Wool" contest will be held, as well as various production and management seminars. Saturday's other highlights include retail lamb processing and sheep fencing demonstrations, a discussion of the basis of sheep health, evaluation of sheep pasturing systems, and breeding soundness evaluation workshops.

"The Penn State Forage Van also will be on hand to make forage analyses this year," Engle said. Producers can bring current pasture, forage, and grain samples for testing. "The feed value of these samples can be evaluated on-site within minutes, and you can't beat the price of $8 per sample. This is probably one of the best investments sheep producers can make if they want to learn how to cut their winter feed bills. It also helps match your feeding program to a particular production stage, such as lactation or gestation."

This year's Lamb-O-Rama Festival will begin at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. The festival features both live entertainment and a variety of new lamb entrees for the home and marketplace.

A buffet breakfast will be held Sunday, November 24. Following the breakfast, Allen Nation, editor of the "Stockmen's Grass Farmer," will close the symposium.

The preregistration fee is $35 per person or $50 per family if postmarked by November 4. For more program and registration information, contact the agriculture conferences and short course office at (814) 865-8301 or send a fax to (814) 865-7050.

Franklin Co. Meets

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — John E. Benhart, professor and chairperson of the geography-earth science department at Shippensburg University, will be the guest speaker for the annual Franklin County ASCS/Conservation District banquet.

The banquet will be held on October 29, at the Saint Thomas Township Volunteer Fire Company at 6:45 p.m.

Benhart received his B.S. degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Tennessee. He has traveled extensively, studying geography curricula in Australia, New Zealand, the Soviet Union, the Netherlands, and England. "Geographic Changes in the Soviet Union" will be the title of his presentation.

The Annual Conservation Farmer of the Year Award will be presented at the banquet. This award is given to an operator who has implemented a variety of management practices which have contributed significantly in reducing soil erosion on the farm.

The Commodity Queens will be present before the banquet to promote Franklin County agricultural products.

Tickets for the buffet style dinner are $8.50 per person and can be purchased from the ASCS Office, the Conservation District office, the ASCS committee, and conservation district directors.

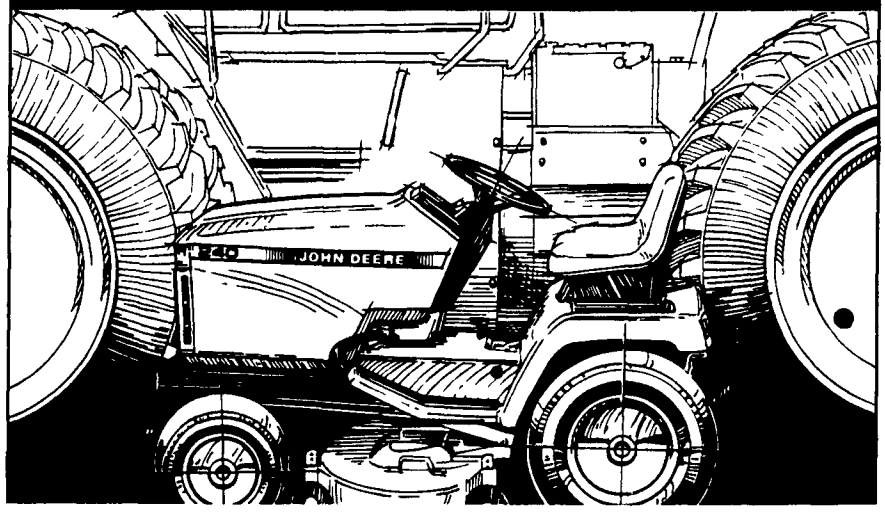
IT'S ALL RELATIVE



Come in and see the remarkable similarities between the John Deere 200 Series Lawn and Garden Tractors and our largest 4-wheel drives. While the larger one may offer more power, our 200 Series Tractors can mow more than an acre of lawn an hour. Make no mistake: John Deere 200 Series Tractors come from good stock. See them today.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Club Holds October Meeting

The October meeting of the Boots & Saddles 4-H Club was held at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

The meeting was called to order by President Eileen Holm. There were 21 members in attendance and 13 guests. Pledges where given by Abby Sullivan and Emily Hill.

4-H will be selling a limited edition of Lancaster County 4-H Winross trucks. A slate of new officers was taken for next year and will be voted into office at the November meeting at the Farm and Home Center. This meeting will also consist of a covered dish supper and year-end awards.

Important upcoming dates are as follows: October 27, Therapeutic Trail Ride at 11 am. at Lower Hopewell Horse Center. November 2 and 3, Club trail ride at Valley Lea. November 11, tour of the Lancaster Humane League (one of the club's Community service projects). November 23 and 24, Farm Tour club giving pony rides at the Fellenbaum Farm.

For further information on any of the above events or on joining the Boots & Saddles 4-H Club, call Rose Fellenbaum at (717) 569-3068.

EGG REFRIGERATION HELPS REDUCE SE

John Schwartz
Poultry Specialist

The Pennsylvania Egg Industry has been successfully reducing the incidence of Salmonella enteritidis (SE) in humans.

Improved cleaning and disinfecting, egg refrigeration, and improved food handling have helped to decrease the number of human outbreaks.

Recent research indicates egg refrigeration plays a big role in reducing SE in eggs. Dr. Anita Bleem, USDA, in the October 14, 1991 issue of "Feedstuffs," reports on several SE studies involving egg storage temperatures.

In one study, the yolks of Grade A shell eggs from normal hens and Group D seropositive hens with SE were inoculated with SE and incubated at varying temperatures. Positive SE growth was observed at 98.6 degrees F. from both seropositive and normal birds. However, rowth was reduced at 60 degrees F. and no growth occurred at 44.6 degrees F.

In another study, the yolks of Grade A shell eggs were inoculated with SE and held at varying times and temperatures. SE growth increased as the temperature increased from 39.2 degrees to 80.6 degrees F. and the incubation time increased from 10 to 30 days. Little or no SE was recovered in eggs held at 39.2 degrees F.

In another study, the yolk and albumen of salmonella-free eggs were inoculated with SE. No growth occurred at 46.4 degrees F. and slow growth occurred at 50 degrees F. SE growth was observed in yolks at 59 degrees F. However, SE was not recovered from the albumen in eggs held at 59 degrees F.

These studies support the recommendation to cool eggs to 50 degrees F. on the farm and below 45 degrees F. as soon as possible in order to reduce the risk of human SE infection.

It is believed that freshly laid eggs are unlikely to pose a significant health hazard. However, prompt refrigeration of eggs at 45 degrees F. or less and storage is necessary to prevent SE multiplication. This, coupled with strict biosecurity, best cleaning, and disinfecting of poultry houses possible and excellent rodent control program will keep SE at a level which should pose very little risk to human health.

The food service industry is developing ways to reduce food poisoning outbreaks in their establishments. By working together, we should be able to continue produce eggs that are wholesome, healthful, and nutritious.

EC Decides To Re-List U.S. Pork Plants

DES MOINES, Iowa — The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) said it welcomes the European Community's (EC) decision to re-list seven U.S. pork plants as eligible to ship meat to the EC. However, the NPPC continues to insist that the EC quickly agree that U.S./EC meat inspection systems are equivalent based on accepted scientific data.

The EC announcement now brings a total of 14 U.S. plants that are approved for shipment to the EC. Along with the seven pork plants, the EC approved three beef plants. Another four plants, none of which market pork, were approved for shipments beginning October 1.

NPPC President John Hardin, Jr., a pork producer from Danville, Indiana, said the EC's approval of the plants is "a step in the right direction, but only a small step. Our position on this matter has not changed. U.S. pork producers have grown weary of this artificial trade barrier and want it resolved without any further delay."

Last month, the NPPC announced that if the EC did not accept an equivalency agreement by November 15 that the NPPC would seek all available avenues to respond against the more than $325 million of EC pork coming into the United States.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills accepted a Section 301 trade petition on the Third Country Meat Directive in January of this year and called for the formation of a General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) panel to hear the U.S. complaint. The NPPC and other meat industry groups were disappointed that Ambassador Hills removed the issue from the agenda of the GATT meeting held this week. Unless substantial progress is made in resolving the one-year-old dispute, NPPC will request that the EC ban be discussed at the November GATT Council meeting.

Both Houses of Congress are considering new legislation that could be used to retaliate against the EC ban. The bills would stop all imports of EC meat, including more than $325 million of pork, into the United States until the EC ends the ban under its Third Country Meat Directive.

Horse Study In Full Gear

YORK (York Co.) — The horse industry of Pennsylvania is a very important industry in Pennsylvania and has not been surveyed for many years.

The Penn State University Animal Science Department, the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service, and the Penn Equine Council join forces to bring the Pennsylvania horse industry into focus for the 1990s.

A special economic impact study was sent out early this year to survey the number of horses, types, and uses in Pennsylvania. It will also study the economical value of tack shops, veterinarians, and feed and hay services to the horse industry.

The results of this study will aid the horse industry to secure research, influence policymakers, and gain overall support for the horse industry.

The economic impact study was sent to all known horse industry people, including 27,000 names. However, as of October, only 9,000 have been returned. It is very important that all people who have not returned their survey do so before October 31.

Surveys received after that date will not be tabulated. For more information on the survey, contact the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service at (717) 787-3904. All horse-related people should encourage their friends to return the study by October 31.

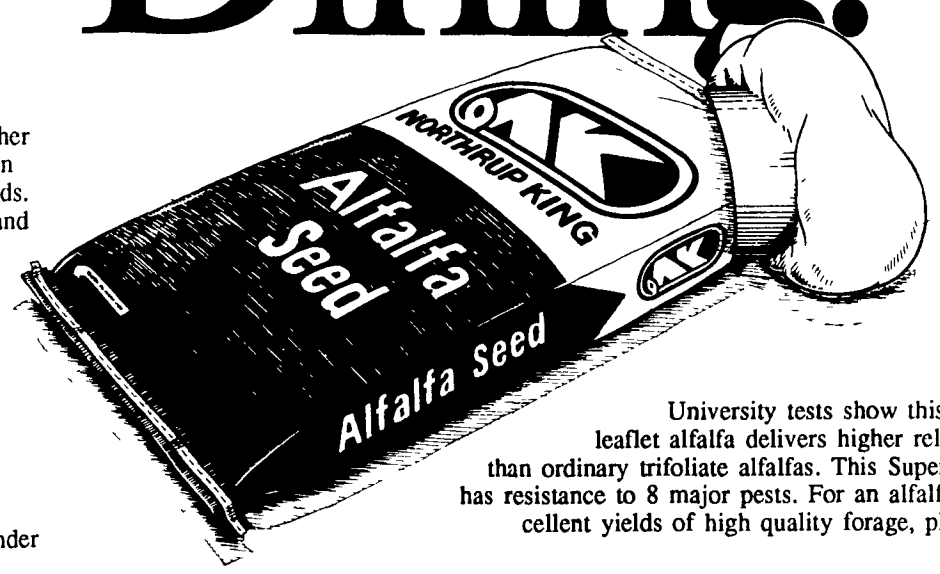
MultiKing 1 This is the sensational new multi-leaflet variety that's becoming the alfalfa industry leader. MultiKing 1 can deliver substantially higher relative feed value than other prime alfalfas. And tests have shown it has a higher expression of multi-leaflets than competitive brands. The Super Prime™ alfalfa has shown very good winterhardiness, and also features:

- High quality forage
- Resistance to 8 major pests
  Bacterial wilt
  Fusarium wilt
  Phytopthora root rot
  Spotted alfalfa aphid
  Anthracnose (race 1)
  Stem nematode
  Verticillium wilt
  Pea aphid
- High yield potential
- Early maturity with fast recovery after cutting

Treated with Apron® fungicide to aid in stand establishment under wet conditions.



University tests show this exciting multi-leaflet alfalfa delivers higher relative feed value than ordinary trifoliate alfalfas. This Super Prime™ alfalfa has resistance to 8 major pests. For an alfalfa that gives excellent yields of high quality forage, plant winterhardy MultiKing 1.

Duty Rate Jumps To $18 A Head

DES MOINES, Iowa — The countervailing duty on Canadian live hogs has been increased to about $18 (U.S.) per market hog. The new rate, which went into effect on October 7, is the highest since the duty was imposed in 1985 and is more than double the existing rate of $7.61.

The U.S. Department of Commerce set the new rate based on subsidies paid to Canadian pork producers during the period of April 1, 1989 to March 31, 1990. The duty will be collected on market hogs at a rate of 8.20 (U.S.) cents per pound. Commerce also established a duty rate of 0.43 (U.S.) cents for Canadian sows and boars entering the United States.

"Canada is now reaping the results of its heavy subsidization of Canadian pork producers," said John Hardin, Jr., president of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC). "The Canadian federal tripartite subsidy program provided the lion's share of these subsidies during a time when U.S. market prices were low. Therefore, the tripartite program continues to be the main reason why U.S. producers need the countervailing duty for fair trade."

The importation of subsidized Canadian live hogs to the United States cost U.S. pork producers at least $83 million in the first seven months of this year, according to University of Missouri agricultural economist Glenn Grimes.

Commerce also ruled that the United States should continue to collect the duty on Canadian weanling pigs. (Weanling pigs are swine that weigh less than 110 pounds and are commonly referred to as feeder pigs.) Canadian parties had requested that the duty be removed on the weanlings because the animals are not destined for immediate slaughter. However, Commerce upheld its original decision that the duty does apply to weanlings. Commerce will assess the duty on weanlings at 8.20 (U.S.) cents per pound.

The countervailing duty on subsidized Canadian live hogs was put into effect in 1985 at the initiation of NPPC, which represents U.S. pork producers.

DPI Sponsors Bus Trip To Atlanta

GEORGETOWN, Del. — One of the biggest events of the year for the poultry world is the International Poultry Exposition in Atlanta. Delmarve Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) is again sponsoring a bus trip for poultry growers to the show.

Plans call for growers to leave Delmarva in the early morning of Monday, January 20, 1992, with arrival in Atlanta that night. Growers will spend three full days in Atlanta, including two days looking at the nearly 1,000 commercial exhibits and attending the educational sessions. The return trip to Delmarva will be on Friday, January 24, 1992.

The cost of the trip is $330 per person, based on double hotel occupancy. This includes bus transportation, bus refreshments, and four night's lodging in Atlanta. Meals are not included in the package price.

Interested growers are asked to make reservations with DPI as soon as possible because space is limited to 45 persons. Payment must be made by December 2.

In Atlanta, growers will be among 20,000 poultry industry leaders viewing the latest technology and equipment and hearing new ideas on poultry production and processing.

The trip was suggested by DPI Immediate Past President Harry J. Mitchell, a grower from Berlin, Md.

"This is the poultry world's premier event and I encourage growers to make plans to attend," Mitchell said. "There's nothing else like it. It is a great opportunity for local growers to learn about the broad expanse of our industry."

Club Calf Sale Pleases Somerset Beef Producers

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — The annual Club calf Sale, sponsored by the Somerset County Beef Producers, took place here at the fairgrounds on a beautiful, somewhat frosty, western Pennsylvania autumn evening.

Smart folks dressed for it with those chilly temperatures in mind. Adults dug out the flannels and woolens, donning the plaid shirts and insulated jackets. They pulled gloves over their hands and wrapped their babies in cozy bundles.

Nevertheless, it was a good night for the sale. According to Butch Mostoller, Boswell, sale chairman, buyers paid well for their purchases — well, enough to bring in a total of $76,000 for the evening. Officials averaged out that figure to $697.25 for the 109 animals sold.

A calf from McHale Farms was named the grand champion during the earlier show. Sellers, Steve and Julie McHale, Lewisburg, W.Va. had quite a few calves to sell that evening. They saw their champ sell for $975 to Rachel Logan of Irwin.

Like its predecessor, the reserve champion was a Maine Cross. April Kyger was the seller. Her address is Port Republic, Va. Mike Shankle of Schellsburg liked the calf well enough to pay $925 for it.

The Somerset County bred champion was sold by H. Wayne Miller of Fairhope. With a hip height of 45 inches, and weighing 495 pounds, the Chianina Maine Anjori cross sold for $850 to Tim Bishop.

B&J Angus of Mt. Solon, W.Va. sold the highest priced calf of the evening for $3,000. The guy who thought the animal was worth the investment was Ron Schmuck of Scullton. It was a Chianina Maine cross, a division reserve champion that weighed 495 pounds with a hip height of 44½ inches.

In his comments, Mostoller said the sale attendance was excellent and brought in buyers from five nearby states. He also said the sale prices were very good for the calves.

John Spiker was the sale auctioneer and Randall Updike the show judge. Dave Brant did the announcing. Ringmen were Robert and Kermit Stahl. Steaks and Chops 4-H Club handled food concessions. Kincaid Farms donated the trophies.

Drivers Honored

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — Martin Limestone, Inc. honored 75 truck drivers at the company's seventeenth annual driver safety award banquet on October 10, 1991, for operating one or more consecutive years without a chargeable accident.

Drivers from Martin Limestone, Inc., and the company's divisions of New Holland Concrete in New Holland and Burkholder Paving in Ephrata, along with drivers from Star Carriers, Inc., Blue Ball, traveled more than 4 million miles during the year delivering crushed limestone, agricultural limestone, asphalt, concrete block products, and ready-mix concrete throughout eastern Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Forty-one drivers received recognition for compiling five or more consecutive years without a chargeable accident. Drivers recognized for 17 consecutive years were Lloyd W. Fox from New Holland Concrete, H. Ed Lapp from Martin Limestone, Inc., and Warren H. Martin and Larry Troyer from Star Carriers, Inc.

Justin P. Andrew from Martin Limestone, Inc., accumulated 16 years and Allan A. Sheaffer from Martin Limestone, Inc., earned an award for 15 years.

Herman Kauffman from Star Carriers, Inc., and Rick L. Buch from Martin Limestone, Inc., earned 14-year awards. Henry W. Horst from New Holland Concrete, and James E. Smoker from Martin Limestone, Inc., received recognition for 13 years. Leroy M. Weaver from Star Carriers, Inc., along with Galen E. Sweigart, Jr., from New Holland Concrete received awards for 12 years, and Blaine S. Martin from Star Carriers, Inc., earned an 11-year award. Walter Kurtz from Martin Limestone, Inc., earned a 10-year award.

Other drivers receiving awards included Richard S. Groff, Donald L. Landis, Darryl S. Leid, Clarence H. Weaver from Burkholder Paving, nine years; Melvin B. Felpel from Star Carriers, Inc., Robert A. Riehl and John J. Haas from New Holland Concrete, Ray M. Brubaker from Martin Limestone, Inc., and Robert C. Shreiner from Burkholder Paving, eight years; and Jeff L. Garman from New Holland Concrete and Levi S. Horst from Star Carriers, Inc., seven years.

Earning six-year awards were Gerald S. Stoltzfus, Marvin Z. Martin, Smith C. Burkey, Nevin H. Zimmerman, and Floyd L. Stoltzfus from New Holland Concrete; Robert R. Snader, E. Clair Bowman, and Martin L. Zimmerman from Martin Limestone, Inc.; Glenn J. Sensenig and Mark T. Young from Burkholder Paving; and W. Anthony Martin and Harold L. Fisher from Star Carriers, Inc.

Four drivers earned five-year awards: Hershey Zimmerman and Ray Ravegum from New Holland Concrete and Dale Harnish and Warren Scott Patten from Martin Limestone, Inc.

DowElanco Creates 'Environmental Oasis' At Farm Progress

At the 1991 Farm Progress® Show in Dalton City, Ill., DowElanco, Indianapolis, Ind. did just that by creating their "Great Outdoors" exhibit.

This dramatic departure from traditional farm show exhibits was a virtual "environmental oasis," said one farmer.

The Great Outdoors exhibit featured a corn field, a soybean field and two large farm ponds. Each pond was complete with live crappie, bluegill, and catfish. Plus numerous ducks were near and on the water. One pond even included a flowing waterfall.

The company's products were displayed among large areas of trees, flowers, shrubs, and sodded grass. Mannequins, both real and human, created scenes of fishing and kite flying. Audiences were spellbound as they attempted to get the mannequins to break their pose. One mannequin even wore a shirt bearing the words "Protect our Natural Resources."

To complete the outdoor feel and appeal to the sense of sound, the exhibit included sound effects of frogs, birds, and crickets. The effects were so real that many visitors just stood still in amazement.

Steve Tuttle, district sales manager for the company's Champaign, Ill., district office said, "Any farmer who attended the Great Outdoors exhibit knew immediately what the DowElanco environmental position is. We feel that people, crop areas, and wildlife can live together in harmony."

Low-Interest Loans Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff advised farmers and processors that they can apply for low-interest loans through a program that promotes the use of new technology in Pennsylvania.

Applications to the Agricultural Technology Loan Program (ATLP) will be accepted now through December 31.

"This program represents a tremendous opportunity for Pennsylvania farmers to take advantage of leading edge technology designed to increase efficiency and productivity," Wolff said. "It's another part of our ongoing effort to support and promote agriculture, our number one industry."

Matching loans of up to $50,000 are available at an interest rate of half the federal discount rate. Last year's loan rate was 3.5 percent.

Farmers demonstrating the greatest need and proposing the most innovative use of technology will be awarded the low-cost loans for projects that will increase productivity or provide entry into new product areas.

Tractor Calendar Honors Agriculture's Proud Past

WILMINGTON, Del. — A tractor weighing 10½ tons, a 70-year-old "iron horse" driven with reins, and a sleek, streamlined tractor that resembles a spaceship are three of the unique antiques featured on the 1992 Classic Farm Tractors Calendar.

Produced by Du Pont Agricultural Products, maker of "Classic" herbicide for soybeans, the calendar is graced by 14 tractors 50 years old or older. All are in mint condition and "ready to go to the field." Instead, they go to parades and state fairs where they are admired by old and young.

A sleek-looking 1941 McCormick-Deering 04, owned by the Steward Brothers, Springport, Mich., is built for orchard work. Extensive sheet metal shielding gives it a Space Age appearance, though its purpose 50 years ago was to protect the tractor and driver from branches and low limbs. The fire-engine-red antique is pictured in a blooming apple orchard on the May 1992 page of the calendar.

This is the third year Du Pont AG Products has produced a calendar of antique tractors.

"Interest in the restoration of farm tractors is at an all-time high," said Ran Langille, Du Pont soybean business manager.

"Again this year, our large, full-color calendar is printed with soybean oil ink — more than 250,000 pounds of soy oil ink, in fact. The use of this product helps support our customer, the soybean grower," said Langille.

The 1992 Du Pont calendar takes on a global flavor with its first ever Canadian-built tractor, a 1916 Sawyer-Massey owned by Tom Stewart, Woodstock, Ontario. There's also a bright orange, English-built Fordson. "That's the true color," said owner Richard Vogt, Enid, Okla.

Tractor restoration and preservation isn't confined to the older set. A handsome 1928 John Deere GP was restored by James Thompson, Laurelville, Ohio, and his son Terry, who was inspired by his high school vocational agriculture teacher's interest in "old iron." Likewise, Dave Preuhs, Le Center, Minn., and son, Wayne, worked together to bring new life to a 1930 Oliver Hart-Parr. The two help run the Le Sueur County Pioneer Power Show each summer.

The other 14 tractors were chosen from hundreds of entries, said John Harvey, Du Pont communications manager, who directs the calendar program.

"To qualify as an official candidate, the tractor must be at least 50 years old and be fully restored. If it's a tractor that's been in the family for years, the judges give it extra points," Harvey said.

The 14 tractors include the cover shot, December of the current year, and the 12 months in 1992. The large 14x22-inch calendar has space for written reminders on the date page.

Our "Classic Tractor Collection provides an amazing amount of information about the coming of the machinery age to U.S. agriculture, and helps explain how the North American farmer became so productive in a relatively short period in history," said Harvey.

For complete information, call toll-free (800) 527-2601.

Poultry Nutrition Course Set

NEWARK, Del. — The 1991 Delmarva Poultry Nutrition Short Course is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 14, from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Delmarva Convention Center in Delmar, Md.

University of Delaware Cooperative Extension and the Delmarva Poultry Industry will sponsor the educational event.

The day begins at 8:30 a.m. with registration. The formal program will begin at 9:10 a.m. with a welcome from Dr. John Nye, dean of the university's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The morning session will feature Dr. Steve Leeson, University of Guelph, speaking on nutritional problems related to fast growth rates. Dr. Mike Denbow, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, will discuss diet and immume function. Dr. Kirk Klasing, University of California, will address nutritional factors related to the avian immune system.

The afternoon session will begin at 12:45 p.m. with an update on broiler research at the University of Arkansas by Dr. Park Waldroup. Dr. Keith Behnke, Kansas State University, will discuss feed uniformity in mixer evaluation. The final speaker of the day will be Jim Hudson, California Pellet Mill Co., speaking on fundamentals for better pellet quality.

Preregistration is required by Nov. 7. The registration fee, which includes a copy of the proceedings and lunch, is $40 per person and $15 for university, federal and state employees.

To request a registration form or for further information, contact Dan Palmer, extension poultry specialist, University of Delaware Research and Education Center, RD #2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947, (302) 856-7303.

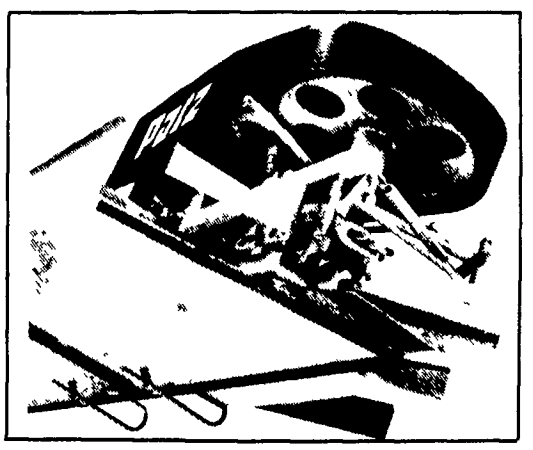
Patz Gutter Cleaner



Fast Facts:

- Durable Patz hook-and-eye link chain allows easy maintenance. Progression forging builds extra strength in hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance.
- Choice of two link sizes to match gutter length.
- Four-tooth sprocket drives every link. Each sprocket tooth drives each link behind the hook — the link's thickest and strongest point.
- Flexibility for various layouts.
- Select 2" steel angle flites for solid manure or 4" high flites for slurry manure. Flites are welded to Patz links.
- Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length and allow expansion.
- Corner wheel top-and-bottom flanges guide the chain around the corner. Corner wheel assemblies remove easily for service without concrete breakout.
- Automatic chain tightener.
- Heavy-guage steel slide with steel center beam for added strength.

Fall Harvest Management of Alfalfa After A Dry Summer

During September and early October, weather conditions are usually favorable for alfalfa growth. Increased emphasis on production coupled with high hay prices are causing alfalfa producers to consider harvesting during this period.

When making the decision to take a fall harvest or not, it is important to understand the risks and possible economic benefit of harvesting during this period.

Importance of Fall to Alfalfa Survival

During the fall, winter hardy alfalfa plants develop cold resistance in response to shortening day lengths and cool temperatures. This process, known as hardening, involves reduced herbage production and increased carbohydrate storage in the roots.

Carbohydrates are produced in green alfalfa herbage. In the spring and after cutting, carbohydrates are removed from the root until 6 to 8 inches of herbage is present, then carbohydrates begin to accumulate again.

Winter survival of the alfalfa plant and spring regrowth are dependent on adequate carbohydrate storage before cold temperatures kill the herbage in the fall. About 50 percent of the stored carbohydrates are used during the winter for plant survival.

The remaining carbohydrates are available in the spring for initial herbage growth. Cutting alfalfa in the fall may cause plants to regrow and expend some carbohydrates in the process. Subsequent regrowth often is insufficient to restore root carbohydrate levels by the first killing frost, which increases the risk of alfalfa winter kill.

Alfalfa stubble left in the field has the potential to catch and hold snow which insulates the crown and roots from extremely low air temperatures. Stubble may also serve to reduce the incidence of freezing and thawing, and disrupt ice sheets which may smother alfalfa plants.

Should I Harvest Alfalfa in the Fall?

Since harvesting during the hardening period disrupts carbohydrates accumulation in the roots, there is increased risk of stand loss associated with fall harvesting. This leads to the traditional recommendation not to harvest alfalfa 4 to 6 weeks before the first killing frost.

However, advances in alfalfa breeding and overall alfalfa management allow greater flexibility in fall harvest management than traditionally recommended.

The real question is an economic gamble. Is the forage in the field worth the risk of reducing stand persistence? Alfalfa that has been been drought stressed this summer has had extended periods between harvests and has had an opportunity to build up root carbohydrate reserves more than in a year with normal rainfall. It is still acknowledged that fall harvesting can stress the alfalfa plant and increase the potential for winter injury, but management practices and planning can minimize this potential.

- Young stands are less susceptible to winter injury due to fall harvesting than older stands.
- Length of harvest interval during the growing season is more important than date of fall harvest in determining alfalfa stand survival. Taking at least one harvest during the growing season at 50 percent bloom reduces the risk of fall harvest compared to taking all harvests at late bud or first flower.
- Maintaining soil fertility levels is extremely important in reducing risks associated with fall harvesting.
- Use of disease-resistant and winter hardy alfalfa varieties will greatly decrease the risk of winter injury because of fall harvesting.
- Environmental conditions will moderate or aggravate the effects of fall harvesting. These include temperatures of 5 to 15 degrees F, which will injure alfalfa crowns and roots. Fortunately, the soil and snow generally insulates the crown and root from dangerously low temperature.

Amount of snow cover determines the amount of crown and root protection from cold temperatures. Snow cover greater than 6 inches is usually adequate to insulate the crowns and roots from low air temperatures.

Soil moisture is important because water is a better conductor of heat than is air. Wet soils cool faster than dry soils, which may lead to lower soil temperatures. In addition, wet soils will freeze and thaw more extensively, which increases the potential for frost heaving.

Summer drought stress of alfalfa will reduce the risk of harvesting during the 4 to 6 week dormancy period.

Summary

Although fall harvesting increases the risk to long-term stand persistence compared to not fall harvesting, it should be considered a management alternative to allow flexibility in alfalfa harvest scheduling.

Fall harvesting of alfalfa that has been drought stressed will cause less stand thinning than fall harvesting alfalfa that has not been drought stressed.

Risks to stand persistence can be reduced through management, use of alfalfa varieties with sufficient levels of disease resistance and winterhardiness, and high levels of soil fertility (especially potassium).

Practices such as leaving 6 inches of stubble in the fall or leaving unharvested strips in the field will also help by increasing the potential for snow cover.

Regional Greenhouse Seminar Set

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — The Northeast Greenhouse Seminar will be held Wednesday, November 13, at the Luzerne County Community College Conference Center in Nanticoke starting with registration at 9 a.m., according to extension agent Al Skala.

Speakers will be Thomas Brewer of the Agriculture Economics and Rural Society Department at Penn State University; Dr. Richard Diamonti, Grace Sierra Company; Andy Germick, Kettell's Greenhouse; Alan Michael, multicounty ornamental/horticulture agent of Dauphin County; Bill Watson, Grimes Seed; and Al Skala, Luzerne County extension agent.

For reservations, contact Al Skala, extension agent, Courthouse Annex, 5 Water St., Wilkes-Barre, PA 18711 no later than Tuesday, November 4. Call (717) 825-1701 or (717) 459-0736, extension 701 for more details.

Sayres Become Land Stewardship Winners

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Lawrason and Jane Sayre, owners of Waffle Hill Farm, Churchville, Maryland, were named eastern regional winner of the 1991 Land Stewardship Award presented by the "Angus Journal," official publication for the American Angus Association.

The Sayres maintain their 125 registered Angus cows on 217 acres of owned property and 120 rented acres. The rolling terrain includes a high percentage of highly erodible land with loam-based soils. The land is devoted to improved pasture and hay plantings which serve as the foundation for a year-round forage-based grazing and feeding system for the cow-calf operation.

State and federal agencies helped Lawrason develop a farm management plan to provide a profitable beef production enterprise and a model of environmental respect and land and resource conservation. The result was a total pasture-based production system for the cow herd.

Land once tilled for corn production was cycled into permanent hay and pasture. Existing grass pastures were renovated using nondisruptive, no-till planting methods for the addition of legumes.

Pasture productivity was increased and the need for external nitrogen application was reduced. Grass and legume species were selected to provide year-round, grazeable forage.

A total animal management plan was developed to maximize the grazing season and minimize the need for harvested feed. The use of temporary, portable fencing enables an intensive grazing program with the cow-calf herd. The results are a timely, even harvest of the pasture which optimizes animal nutrition and prevents overgrazing and loss of soil cover. Also, weed control was accomplished by the animals, and herbicide use was not required.

The use of temporary fencing and intensive grazing management allows the Sayres to manage cattle access to streams which cross the property. Stream crossings were established where cattle were moved to new paddocks, thus controlling stream bank erosion.

As well, the Sayres provide well-managed hedge rows and wooded areas to provide cover, shelter, and protection for native wildlife.

The Lawrason Sayre Family will be featured in the 1991 Herd Reference Edition of the "Angus Journal," which is to be mailed in early July to its 15,000 readers.

Other winners in the Land Stewardship Contest included (West) Donna Sitz and Family, Sitz Angus Ranch, Harrison, Montana; (Midwest) Richard Christy, Zanobia Angus Ranch, Scott City, Kansas; and (South) Al Pedigo, Pedigo Farms, Fountain Run, Kentucky.

Lawrason and Jane Sayre, owners of Waffle Hill Farm, Churchville, Maryland, were Eastern regional winners of the 1991 Angus Journal Land Stewardship Award. The Sayres were presented the award at the National Angus Conference held in Austin, Texas.

CME Announces Scholarships

CHICAGO, Ill. — The Chicago Mercantile Exchange is challenging students of agriculture to cash in on their writing skills by entering the 1992 Beef Industry or Pork Industry Scholarship Programs, administered respectively by the National Cattlemen's Foundation (NCF) and the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC).

A total of eight $2,500 scholarships will be awarded through the two scholarship programs. The four beef industry scholarship winners will be announced at the National Cattlemen's Association Convention in January and the four pork industry scholarship winners will be announced at the Pork Industry Forum in March. Additionally, one of the top four winners in each industry will receive an all-expense-paid trip to that industry's convention.

To qualify for one of the eight scholarships, students must:

- Be enrolled in a two-year swine program or in the College of Agriculture at a four-year institution.
- Write a brief letter indicating what role the student anticipates having in the industry after graduation.
- Write an original 750-word essay, identifying an issue confronting the beef or pork industry, and proposing a solution.
- Obtain two letters of reference from current or former professors or industry professionals.
- Prepare a cover sheet with applicant's 1 name, 2 complete mailing address and telephone number, 3 school name, 4 year in school, and 5 permanent mailing address and telephone number, and
- Enclose the above items in a single envelope and submit to the appropriate industry organization.

Submissions for the CME Beef Industry Scholarship Program should be sent to Donald Butler, chairman, National Cattlemen's Foundation, 1301 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Suite 300; Washington, DC 20004-1701 no later than Dec. 16, 1991. Questions regarding the Beef Industry Scholarship Program should be directed to Pamela Fyock, (202) 347-0228.

Submissions for the CME Pork Industry Scholarship Program should be mailed to Ernie Barnes, National Pork Producers Council, Box 10383, Des Moines, IA 50306 no later than Dec. 31, 1991. For more information on the CME Pork Industry Scholarship Program, contact Ernie Barnes, (515) 223-2600.

Beef Gets Leaner

PAT KENDALL, R.D., Ph.D.
Food Science and Human Nutrition Specialist
Colorado State University
Cooperative Extension

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — Today's beef is leaner . . . so much so that the beef section of U.S. Department of Agriculture's Handbook 8 has been revised twice in recent years to account for the leaner nutritional composition of beef.

Much of this reduction in fat has come from closer trimming by retailers and packers. Whereas one-half to an inch of fat was left around a retail cut of steak 10 years ago, today we are likely to see both raw and cooked retail cuts with 1/4-inch to zero external fat.

Changes in production practices also have contributed to increased leanness. Today's animals are being marketed before they can become overly fat. This practice helps reduce the amount of "intramuscular" fat, or fat within the muscle that can't be trimmed away.

Livestock producers also are looking at the genetics of their herds. The goal is to produce offspring with a minimum amount of fat and a maximum amount of taste appeal.

Consumers, too, have contributed to beef's leaner image. A recent national study showed that fat on retail meat cuts is trimmed not only at the grocery store, but also at home. Eighty-one percent of consumers trimmed some fat from meat cuts and 65 percent trimmed nearly all of the fat. Trimming before cooking is recommended as a way of reducing the fat content of meat products.

Dr. Gary Smith of Colorado State University's animal sciences department said that when single muscle cuts such as loin and round cuts are cooked with external fat still attached, some of the fat liquifies and migrates into the lean. This can result in an increase of as much as 20 percent in the amount of fat in the separable lean of the cut compared to the same cut cooked without external fat.

Where do you find the leanest piece of beef? Beyond trim, consider cut and grade.

Retail beef comes graded as Prime, Choice, or Select. Since grading is specifically determined by the fat content of the entire carcass from which the cut is taken, there is a direct relationship between the grade and amount of fat in the cooked piece.

Prime grades, which produce the juiciest and tenderest steaks, have the highest fat content. Prime grades are generally available only in restaurants.

Renamed "Select" from "Good" in 1987, consumer interest in Select beef is growing. In the latest government reporting period, Select accounted for 16 percent of all beef that was graded.

The "cut" of meat specifies where on the animal's body it comes from. The leanest cuts come from single, whole muscles, which have no seam fat. Muscles used to support the body have less connective tissue — and therefore less fat — than muscles involved in locomotion.

For example, a beef tenderloin (which anatomically serves only to rotate the hip) is lean and tender but less flavorful than a chuck steak (which comes from muscles working the shoulder and is flavorful but fatty and tough).

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.
ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Each day, up to 100,000 U.S. dairy cows feed on rations containing wet brewers grain. That's because their owners know it minimizes feed costs while it maximizes production.

Wet brewers grain is a high-protein feed ingredient. It's always fresh, because it's delivered directly to your dairy. It fits into most programs, is easy to handle, and easy to store.

Call us today. One of our professional feed consultants will help you work wet brewers grain into your ration, so you can make it a profitable ingredient for your business.

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

Look over these outstanding features.

- Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.
- Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
- Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

Distributor for CCE Roll Tarps

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT BEFORE BUYING '92 HYBRIDS

by Willard Jones

I'm Willard Jones, Doebler's sales manager, urging you to consider "calendarizing" for 1992. It could work for you.

Bad weather is getting to be the norm around here. Two droughts and a deluge in four years.

But there are ways to reduce the impact. My favorite is calendarizing. You spread the risk by juggling four hybrids and three maturities.

Here are my picks

Calendarizing is cheap crop insurance against another bad weather year. Especially when you plant Doebler's hybrids bred and tested for the East.

Full Season Country
EARLY--Doebler 57XP, 97 days. Or 66XP, 103 days.
MEDIUM--Doebler 75X, 113 days.
LATE--Doebler 86X-A, 119 days; or 84 XP, 118 days.
SILAGE--Doebler 75XMODII, 113 days.

110-Day Maturity Area
EARLY--Doebler 57XP, 97 days; or 45XP, 92 days.
MEDIUM--Doebler 69XP, 107 days; 66XP, 103 days.
LATE--Doebler 75X, 113 days.
SILAGE--Doebler 650A-3 way, 100 days.

100-Day Maturity Area
EARLY--Doebler 29XA, 81 days; or 35XP, 84 days.
MEDIUM--Doebler 57XP, 97 days; or 45XP, 92 days.
LATE--Doebler 66XP, 103 days.
SILAGE--Doebler 370A-3 way, 85 days.

HYBRIDS FOR THE 90'S

Monsanto Turns Mini-Bulk Tanks To Fuel

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Herbicide mini-bulk tanks no longer fit for service are being reclaimed and put to a valuable new use, thanks to an innovative recycling program developed by Monsanto Company.

Monsanto is pilot testing a recycling program that further advances the company's efforts to reduce container waste by taking old Shuttle tanks out of service and shredding them into a fuel source.

Over the past five years, the Shuttle mini-bulk system has enabled Monsanto to eliminate some 12 million two and one-half gallon containers and six million shipping cartons.

"But even a returnable, reusable container like the Shuttle eventually comes to the end of its useful life cycle," said Brad Lewis, operations supervisor at Monsanto. "The question then becomes, how do you ensure that the 200- and 100-gallon tanks are disposed of in a proper, environmentally sound manner?"

Recovering the energy value of the tanks as a fuel source is an added benefit of the program's main objective, which is to support farm chemical dealers by ensuring proper disposal of unserviceable units, Lewis said.

All of Monsanto's Shuttle tanks currently in the field are being evaluated for stress cracks, fractures, and abnormal discoloration. While a mini-bulk tanks's life span can range from four to seven years, depending on weather exposure, geographic location and quality of maintenance, Monsanto will be pulling tanks out of service after five seasons, Lewis said.

Units deemed unfit for continued service are transported at Monsanto's expense to a St. Louis facility. After being checked to see that they are clean, triple-rinsed, and free of rinsate, the tanks are cut into strips and shredded into quarter-inch-square particles.

The shredded material is then shipped to Continental Cement in Hannibal, Mo., and burned in a high-efficiency cement kiln, replacing coal as a fuel source. This type of kiln has a burn temperature of about 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, compared with 1,500 degrees for a typical trash incinerator. The higher temperature converts any remaining chemical residues into harmless carbon dioxide and water, Lewis said.

The program is being pilot tested in six Midwestern states — Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, and Ohio.

"Based on an estimated return this year of 3,000 Shuttle tanks in those states, the recycled material will produce the energy equivalent of about 270 tons of coal," Lewis said.

While not required by existing regulations, the Shuttle recycling program is cited by Lewis as another example of how industry is responding to customer and market needs.

"Monsanto is sometimes asked how it can go beyond what is currently required by law and still succeed in a highly competitive marketplace. This assumes that competitiveness and environmental responsibility are mutually exclusive. Frankly, we've found that the right thing to do can also be the competitive thing to do," Lewis said.

Tax Meetings To Be Held

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Professional preparers of federal and state income tax returns are invited to enroll in one of the Penn State Income Tax Institutes during November and December. The institutes will be offered at 10 locations throughout Pennsylvania.

The program will focus on recent developments in tax law. Other topics to be discussed include reducing individual taxes, filing partnership tax returns, and minimizing business taxes.

Special rules for reporting income by church employees and clergy members, employment taxes in general, and other topics also will be addressed. In addition, a special discussion of the Pennsylvania state income tax will be held.

Instructors for the two-day institutes will include Penn State faculty, representatives of the Internal Revenue Service and the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue, and specialists who have been selected for particular topics.

The locations and dates for the institutes are:

- Edinboro, Nov. 11 and 12
- Butler, Nov. 12 and 13
- Beaver Falls, Nov. 13 and 14
- Uniontown, Nov. 14 and 15
- Wilkes-Barre, Nov. 18 and 19
- Souderton, Nov. 19 and 20
- Allentown, Nov. 20 and 21
- Morgantown, Nov. 21 and 22
- Carlisle, Nov. 25 and 26
- State College, Dec. 9 and 10.

Each institute begins with registration at 8 a.m. the first day. The instructional program runs from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Those who complete the two-day program will receive 16 continuing professional education credits.

Participants will receive a number of valuable tax references, including materials selected by the instructors, a master federal tax manual published by the Research Institute of America, and the Penn State income tax workbook, which is available only through Penn State tax programs and is used by thousands of tax professionals in more than 40 states.

The registration fee for the two-day institute is $160, with a $20 discount for registrations mailed by November 1. The registration fee includes lunch for two days, coffee breaks, and the reference materials.

Registration forms and more information about the Penn State Tax Institutes are available from the Tax Institute Coordinator, 202 Armsby Building, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-4580.

AGCO ALLIS
6600 SERIES TRACTORS

OPERATOR FRIENDLY

The AGCO Allis 6600 Series row crop tractors are engineered to put you comfortably in control. In addition to a comfortable cab or a platform and ROPS, you get low maintenance, low operating costs and a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Trouble-free, air- and oil-cooled engine. The 6600 Series tractors are equipped with low-maintenance, 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engines. The 6670 provides 63 PTO hp and the 6680 73 PTO hp, both with 22% torque rise. The 6690 has a turbocharged 81 PTO hp engine that delivers a 28% torque rise, as well as the best fuel economy in its class.
- Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds; a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds. All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.
- Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear® radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns. All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab.

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

United States Senator Harris Wofford A friend to Agriculture

Sen. Harris Wofford (right) and Charles Bomgardner examine a shriveled ear of corn on Bomgardner's farm in North Annville, Lebanon County.

"Agriculture is the cornerstone of our rural economy. Everywhere you turn, you see the pride and stewardship of Pennsylvania's farmers. I have witnessed this pride firsthand on my farm visits, and at Ag Progress Days. Your hard work and dedication to providing a quality standard of living for your family and rural community shows in all that you do -- from your farm, to the product you produce."

— U.S. Senator Harris Wofford

Senator Wofford has:

* Cosponsored legislation to ease the financial effects of the drought
* Submitted testimony on the low milk prices
* Supported the 1992 Ag Budget which included the Extension Service, 4-H, and various commodity programs.

Pennsylvania farmers can send a clear message to Washington
Vote for Senator Wofford on November 5th.

Livestock Notes

Controlling Urinary Calculi (Water Belly) In Lambs

Some minerals in sheep rations can result in reduced production and even death if provided in incorrect amounts. This is particularly true when we get careless with the correct levels and balance of calcium and phosphorous in the feed.

Calcium is one of those major minerals that can cause real problems in lamb finishing rations if given at insufficient levels or if not balanced with its counterpart, phosphorous. These mistakes can lead to urinary calculi problems (water belly) especially with castrated male lambs.

Ideally, any lamb finishing ration needs to contain twice as much calcium as phosphorous. Another approach to safeguard against water belly is to add two percent feed-grade limestone to all high grain rations. Free-choicing some high quality alfalfa hay; providing a good source of fresh, frost-free water; and giving additional salt-free choice also have been found beneficial in preventing this nutritional disease.

Ammonium sulfate can also be added to the complete ration at 10 to 20 pounds per ton, or you may choose to add ammonium chloride at 5 to 10 pounds per ton as a preventive measure. It is suggested that you resort to these two additives only when it seems difficult to evaluate the calcium and phosphorus levels in the rations.

Lamb Marketing Major Industry Concern

A panel of experts attending the recent American Sheep Industry (ASI) Convention in Long Beach, Calif., consisted of a packer, lamb feeder, marketing specialist, cattleman, and an economist. Their assignment was to discuss and suggest ways the industry could end the current depressed lamb market.

Roy Meek, lamb feeder and market specialist, warned producers that lack of product consistency continues to haunt the marketing arena. We've simply got to change our marketing system so we can sell and get paid on grade and yield rather than dressing percent, he said, adding that overfed lambs are the result of marketing lambs on an antiquated system. The consumer is demanding a lean product and we insist on selling a fatter one.

Colorado lamb feeder Richard Drake told the wall-to-wall crowd that producers need to learn more about the industry in order to make marketing more efficient. You have to know your industry, know your product, and define your markets if you are going to sell it properly, he said. Drake also said that all lambs reach the feedlot between mid-August and mid-November. This means that approximately 2.3 to 2.4 million lambs arrive to the feeders during that three-month time period. Some way we've got to stretch it out, he said.

The lamb industry is continually going up against its more organized, better informed red meat competition, said packer Phil Cohn of Ellensburg, Wash. He pointed out that the current marketing system is not working for lamb and warned producers that it's time for decision making. Cohn said lamb supply and demand do not balance out, so producers need to figure out a way to have lamb distributed to grocery stores more evenly throughout the year. He believes the farm flock state sheep producers are in a better position to make these adjustments than the larger range sheep operations, but he said lack of organization and commitment seems to curtail this effort.

Cohn suggested the lamb marketing industry, like the other red meat industries, needs to continually re-examine what the consumer wants and start doing things to produce a product that meets those needs. We must remember the show ring enthusiasts do not have the answers, and if what they have contributed to productivity over the last 20 years is an indication, we might just as well write off the sheep industry right now. He added, we have to be able to stand up to the industry and say this is right and this is wrong.

Indiana cattleman Sam Washburn said niche marketing may be the key. He advised sheep producers to concentrate on the special benefits of lamb. Capitalize on your strengths, he said. Lamb is a specialty product. Don't apologize for it. Capitalize on it.

Swine TB Field Study Confirms Meat Inspector Accuracy

A recent study of swine tuberculosis in Pennsylvania shows that about three-fourths of the hog carcasses identified by inspectors as having swine TB were, in fact, positively infected. The Penn State study also showed that most TB infections are associated with birds or sawdust.

Swine tuberculosis does not exhibit clinical signs in pigs (and appears to have no effect on humans), but the disease often causes considerable economic loss to producers. Carcasses with multiple TB lesions in the lymph nodes must be either "Passed for Cooking" (PFC) or condemned. Producers lose money on these pigs.

The organism that causes most swine TB is Mycobacterium avium. Several serotypes exist for this organism, but the four most often implicated are serotypes 1, 2, 4, and 8. Serotypes 1 and 2 are typically associated with wild birds and poultry, while serotypes 4 and 8 are associated with bedding, especially sawdust and wood shavings.

The best way to diagnose the disease is to culture the organism from infected lymph nodes. Unfortunately, growing the organism under laboratory conditions takes weeks. Inspectors at packing plants look for lesions in the lymph nodes of the carcass to identify TB. If the inspector finds one infected node in two regions, or several in one region, he labels the carcass PFC. That means the packer must cook the carcass at 170 degrees F for 30 minutes before he can sell the meat. If the inspector discovers numerous infected nodes in two or more regions, the carcass must be "tanked," and cannot be used for human consumption. Producers usually receive $2.00 for a tanked carcass.

The study hoped to get a better understanding of the disease by identifying the source of the organism. This was done by making selected farm visits to herds in which infection had been confirmed by bacterial culture or microscopic examination of suspicious lymph nodes taken at slaughter. The results of the study are shown below.

SWINE TB FIELD STUDY RESULTS

Lymph nodes tested:	125
Number of positive lymph nodes:
Microscopic exam:	105
Bacterial culture:	92 (74%)
Stain:	15
Number of serotypes:
1 & 2 (birds)	33
4 & 8 (sawdust)	35
All others and undetermined	57

It appears that most of the lymph nodes inspectors identify as positive are infected with mycobacteria. (Previous studies have shown that only about half of the suspicious lymph nodes are actually positive.) Microscopic examination can help to confirm the presence of infection, but in our study staining was not a reliable method. Based on the data shown above and the surveys taken during farm visits, we also conclude that most swine TB infections can be associated with either birds or sawdust.

Goat Health Conference Nov. 2

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Final preparations are under way for the 1991 Goat Health Conference sponsored by the Penn State College of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association. The one-day conference will be held Nov. 2, in the new Agricultural Sciences Industry Building on the Penn State University Park Campus.

A wide variety of topics will be addressed. Nelson Escobar, extension goat specialist at Langston University in Oklahoma, will discuss a research project that traces marketing trends. He will relate his research to the East Coast.

Wendy Freedman, a small ruminant specialist at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center, will focus on goat health issues for the 1990s.

Michael O'Connor, Penn State professor of dairy science, will discuss recent developments in reproductive physiology. Stephen Spencer, Penn State professor of dairy science, will talk about hand milking and using milk machines.

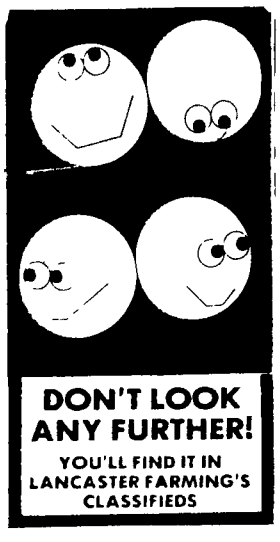
Early registration is encouraged. The cost is just $15. Checks should be made payable to Penn State and sent to the Goat Health Conference. The Pennsylvania State University, 306 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

For specific program information, contact Carol Burns, Penn State program coordinator, at (814) 863-0488 or Helen Snyder, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association, R.D. 2, Box 182, Newport, PA 17074 (717) 567-3554.



SURGE

ULTRA-VIOLET WATER CONDITIONER

99.99% BACTERIA FREE WATER

• LOW COST OPERATION The Surge U-V Conditioner will treat 6,000 gallons of water for the cost of 1 kw-hr of electricial power.

• NO CHEMICAL ADDITIVES Effective disinfection with chlorine requires 20 minutes for regular chlorination and a minimum of 5 minutes for super chlorination. High levels of chlorine may be corrosive, toxic, and impart undesirable taste to water. In addition, Ultraviolet eliminates the need for holding tanks, chemical additives and related monitoring devices.

• AUTOMATIC OPERATION There are no moving parts to wear out. No operator is required. No valves or gauges to set. Simple cleaning of the quartz sleeve and annual replacement of the long life U-V lamp are all that is required.

• SIMPLE INSTALLATION Two plumbing connections and one electrical connection are all that is required. Inexpensively fits right into your present water system.

• WHAT IS ULTRAVIOLET ENERGY? Ultraviolet energy is released by a low pressure mercury lamp which has a special type glass to allow passage of a light ray expressed as 253.7 nanometers. This particular light ray has the unique ability of killing micro-organisms that it comes in contact with.

• HOW IT KILLS BACTERIA The ultraviolet rays strike the bacteria, virus, mold or algae and break through the outer membrane. This releases the DNA and destroys the organism.

EXCLUSIVE INTELLIGENCE CENTER KEEPS YOU FULLY INFORMED

The exclusive Case IH Intelligence Center (optional) provides readouts in English or metric of engine, PTO or ground speeds.

Separate warning systems monitor pressure and filter conditions as well as critical operator functions. Bar graphs display fuel level, coolant temperature, voltage and exhaust temperature. Visual and audible signals alert you when attention is needed, while a green light signals "systems normal".

The Intelligence Center's electronics can determine acres covered per hour, cumulative acreage count and elapsed time

FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY

The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.'

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

Lancaster Level-Flo's replacement gooseneck lets you fill your silo faster and easier It has a 33% larger capacity than original Harvestore® goosenecks and its high-profile shape improves flow You can actually blow in 3 tons of haylage a minute without plugging the Level-Flo 12" gooseneck Yet it attaches easily to standard 9" fill-pipe.

Our gooseneck's completely enclosed design keeps silage off the roof of your silo Not only does this eliminate waste, it extends the life of the silo roof

With an outer shell of galvanized steel, the Level-Flo 12" gooseneck stays bright and shiny for years And it contains an inner liner of extremely wear-resistant stainless steel

- Designed with final section straight and vertical to put silage in the center of your silo
- And it's almost 50% less expensive than a Harvestore® replacement gooseneck

PURINA

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

Now you can evaluate the damage caused by the long, hot, dry summer. Many of you see decreased forage yields. Some see poorer forage quality. Take a close look at the alfalfa haylage you have.

Historically, the protein quality of alfalfa haylage has not been questioned. Most simply look at crude protein. Some also look at heat damaged protein. Ongoing work at the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center, in Madison, WI, has shown that cows fed alfalfa haylage diets often give additional milk when protein supplements are fed in excess of protein requirements.

Even though the crude protein value of alfalfa haylage may "test" 20% or greater, it likely does not have this high value in the cow. Wisconsin researchers have shown that the protein of high quality alfalfa haylage is up to 77% non-protein nitrogen (i.e. not amino acid nitrogen). The ensiling process converts much of the true protein into non-protein nitrogen.

Be careful of relying too heavily on the protein in alfalfa haylage to meet the requirements of your high producing cows. It still pays to feed for maximum milk! Your fresh cows must peak, if they are to produce up to their genetic potential.
